A CINCH FOR ROUNDABOUT-TRAINED DRIVERS

Involved as an abstract painting but as utilitarian as a monkey wrench this aerial picture of the Decarie Boulevard interchange, part of new Montreal expressway shows seven roads, allowing traffic to enter and leave at three levels. The east-west expressway will stretch 33 miles and cost $100,000,000.

Canada Speaks Out Against U.K. Market

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government has made it clear that it intends to fight any move by the British government to enter the Common Market.

Canada's position was disclosed Friday in a joint communique issued by the two governments following two days of talks between Duncan Sandys, Britain's Commonwealth relations secretary, and four Canadian Cabinet ministers.

The 250-word communique said the Canadian government's assessment of British membership in the customs union of France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg is different from that put forward by Mr. Sandys.

It showed that Canada is frigid to Britain even entering negotiations to join the Common Market.

Mr. Sandys conferred for 10 hours Thursday and Friday with External Affairs Minister Green, Trade Minister Hees, Finance Minister Fleming and Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton. He also met for an hour with Prime Minister Diefenbaker and plans to return to London Monday.

OPPOSITION STRONGER

Canada's unyielding opposition to British entry into the customs union appeared to be even more critical than that of Australia and New Zealand.

Canada's previously stated position on British entry into the Common Market is that trading interests with Britain will be damaged, perhaps seriously, if the U.K. aligns itself with Common Market countries. For Canada this could mean a loss of Commonwealth tariff preferences in the U.K. and possibly even preferences against Canada.

'FAILING TO COMPETE ABROAD'

DURHAM, England (Reuters) — Opposition Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskell said today Britain was apparently "drifting into a major economic crisis."

He told a group of miners that ministers in the cabinet of Prime Minister Macmillan were "going out of their way to stress the gravity of the situation."

"We are failing to compete effectively with foreign producers. They are outselling us abroad and at home. That is the dead end to which 10 years of Tory economic policy have brought us."

Beginning Of the End?

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (AP)—Sir Roy Welensky, prime minister of the Central African Federation, said today Britain's entering the European Common Market "might well mark the beginning of the end of the Commonwealth."

Welensky, speaking at the opening of an agricultural show, said: "I warn that any serious diminution in status of the United Kingdom as a political entity, coupled with any further lessening of ties which exist between Commonwealth countries and the pivot of that organization, represented in Britain, might well be the beginning of the end of the Commonwealth as a group of nations having any substantial meaning.

400 Fires

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Weary firefighters battled more than 400 lightning-triggered blazes today across tinder-dry northern California.

'Tighten Your Belts'

HAWARDEN, Wales (AP)—Britain's Conservative government today warned Britons, who enjoyed a spree of post-war prosperity, to brace for some belt-tightening.

Chancellor of the Exchequer John Selwyn Lloyd declared in a speech prepared for a political rally:

"I am determined that some of the present trends in our economy should be changed. I shall recommend such action as I think necessary to secure this, however unpopular or unexpected."

WINS U.K. OPEN

Final round of 72 by Arnold Palmer was good enough today to win British Open Golf Championship at Birkdale, England, by one stroke over Dai Rees of Wales. Palmer was second by one stroke in the Open last year.

MOB SCENE IN LONDON

Women Hysterical As Yuri Departs

LONDON (Reuters) — Yuri Gagarin, the Russian spaceman who evoked almost hysterical welcomes from the British, left by air for Moscow today after a five-day visit.

Gagarin, a crowd-puller to the last, was beseiged by a fighting screaming mob of 2,000 when he left the Soviet Embassy to drive to the airport. The scene was typical of his receptions since he stepped off a plane last Tuesday on his first visit to Western Europe.

Gagarin said he was returning home with "most warm memories" of Britain.

As his TU-104 airliner took off, the cheers of thousands of people lining the roof of the airport building could be heard even above the roar of the jet engines.

The spaceman in his farewell statement praised the Queen and Prince Philip, Prime Minister Macmillan and "people prominent in public, political and trade union life" in Britain.

Gagarin, who made history April 12 when he became the first human to orbit earth in a space ship, said the Soviet Union wanted achievements of modern science to be used for peaceful purposes and the enjoyment of mankind.

"That is something which cannot be achieved without a stable peace. May the friendship between the Soviet Union and the people of Great Britain develop and grow strong."

During the embassy scene women fought to get near his open limousine. Some women fell to the ground screaming, shrubs and bushes were trampled to the ground and the embassy lawn badly torn up.

Gagarin remained calm and imperturable, smiling, waving and raising his cap to the fighting crowd.

Shortly before he left the embassy an official accepted a bouquet of flowers for him from Hazel Joseph, a Canadian.

Asked why she sent the bouquet, Miss Joseph, now a London nurse, said:

"I did it really to annoy my boy friend. He says I think more of Yuri than of him. Just the same I hope this does not break up our friendship."

Negro Rides Ball Over Niagara Falls

Disaster Hits Festival

MOSCOW (UPI) — Fashion disaster struck tonight at the Moscow film festival. Liz Taylor and Gina Lollobrigida turned up at a Kremlin reception in the same Christian Dior gown.

Even their hairdoes were the same.

"Oh, how nice to see you," Gina said sweetly to Liz.

The two brunette beauties embraced each other while their eyes flashed fire. From time to time there was an exchange of dagger-like glances.

But no fireworks.

DEAD AT 76

John E. Brownlee, former premier of the United Farmers of Alberta government and until recently president and general manager of the United Grain Growers Ltd., died today at his home in Calgary. He was premier of Alberta from 1925 to 1934. (See page 2).

Few Scratches Only Injuries

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A New York City Negro from the Bronx went over the 162-foot Horseshoe falls in a giant rubber ball today and survived with only a few cuts and scratches.

Nathan Boya, 30, declared cheerfully from his hospital bed: "I always wanted to make this trip and now I have—I felt it was something I had to do."

Boya, who gave his occupation as self-employed and said he is a member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, quipped to hospital staff that he had just "integrated the falls."

The daredevil was taken to hospital here under police guard for examination overnight. A first check, including a chest x-ray, showed only abrasions to his back and both arms.

A police spokesman said Boya will be charged under the Niagara Parks Act which forbids such stunts in the park system.

Chief Edwin Refeld of the parks commission police, who watched Boya's voyage but was powerless to stop him, said the New Yorker told him: "I made it all right and I'm happy.

"I don't care what happens—talk to my attorney."

Boya took his spectacular plunge within view of hundreds of tourists—and the police—at about 10.45 a.m. He opened a hatch in the ball and waved to spectators on Table Rock Plaza after his drop.

1,250-Pound Sphere Dented In Drop

His craft, a 1,250-pound sphere slightly bigger across than Boya's own height of five feet 10 inches, and dented into a half-moon shape and half filled with water when the daredevil emerged after his trip.

Boya, who called the ball a Plunge-o-Sphere, said he started building it in New York last March but refused to say how he brought it here. He covered a steel frame with six-ply rubber, then a coating of sheet metal and a final coating of rubber. He estimated it cost him $5,000.

Boya, the seventh man to go over the falls intentionally and the fourth to survive the stunt, said he got advice weeks ago from the last man to go over and live, Jean Lussier of Niagara Falls, Ont.

Lussier, who used a rubber ball to make the perilous trip in 1928, warned the New Yorker about the danger of being trapped behind the falls like George L. Stathakis, who suffocated after a plunge in 1930 when his barrel was trapped behind the curtain of water.

Boya carried 13 cannisters of oxygen along with breathing apparatus—enough to last him 30 hours. Inside the ball, he took a semi-reclining position. His head and knees were padded with air cushions.

Boya said that when he was in the river he felt a severe jolt which ripped the hatch partially open. He grabbed a rung in the hatch and held on, thinking he had gone over the falls.

Through a slit in the hatch he could see daylight and realized he had not made the plunge but had entered the treacherous upper rapids.

Held Hatch Down With His Hands

He said he held the hatch down by hand when he went over the brink of the falls.

Boya, who wore a black polo shirt and dark trousers for his trip, was picked up from the river below the falls by a launch belonging to the Maid of the Mist Steamships.

Captain Lawrence McGinn who was accompanied on the launch by Niagara parks police corporal Alex Awada, found Boya peering around and waving from the open hatch of his craft. They took him aboard and towed the ball ashore.

Boya said he first began to plan the stunt 10 years ago when he was studying at the University of Geneva in Switzerland.

Chief Rehfeld said he spotted the big ball moving downriver when it was about two miles above the falls. He ran indoors for his binoculars, checked the craft's progress, then jumped into a car and followed the ball's progress from the shoreline.

The chief said the turbulent of the water at the brink of the falls prevented him from seeing Boya go over.

Chief Rehfeld said that when he picked up Boya, the daredevil asked: "Were you the fellow who was following me in the car?"

A year ago last Sunday, young Roger Woodward of Niagara Falls, N.Y., became the first person in history to survive an accidental fall over the cataract.

Roger, then seven years old, was fished out of the water at the base of the falls after he fell from a boat and was swept over.

Island May Lose Passenger Train

By AB KENT

The E and N Railway is considering abandoning passenger service on Vancouver Island, an authoritative source said today.

A spokesman for the Canadian Pacific Railway, owner of the historic Victoria-Courtenay line, said he knew "nothing definite."

"There are always a lot of things under study by the company, and this may be one of them," he said.

Any plan to give up passenger service is "not in the near future" at any rate, he said.

It was understood the company has surveyed its passenger trade and found only an average 26 people a day use the service.

This is insufficient even to operate the economical Budd car, a diesel-electric locomotive coach put in service in September 1955 and replaced with a smaller version about a year ago.

ONE TRIP

The line makes one round-trip daily between here and Courtenay, about half way up Vancouver Island, a distance of about 150 miles.

A branch line goes to Port Alberni, on which passenger service was relinquished about four years ago.

First reaction here to the possibilities of the cut was almost one of indifference.

MARCH OF PROGRESS

"Not that many people use it. It's the march of progress . . . ," said Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Aubrey Kent.

"But it's a pity such a long-established service should pass out of the picture," he added.

Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island will want to know the opinion of all its member chambers before making any statement, according to Eric Mallett, president, of Victoria.

"They will be contacted regarding their views, and we will be having an executive meeting in Nanaimo shortly," he said.

TEST BAN PACT TOSSED TO UN

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The United States and Britain today tossed to the UN General Assembly the issue of a treaty on banning tests of nuclear weapons.

Confronted by a deadlock in negotiations with the Soviet Union in Geneva, the two Western powers asked that the test ban issue be put on the agenda of the General Assembly opening Sept. 19.

They asked the assembly to consider "the urgent need for a treaty to ban nuclear weapons tests under effective international control."

Crew Rushed To New Fire

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Forestry officials in the vast Prince George forest district have rushed in 47 men to combat what appears to be a major fire 225 miles northwest of Prince George.

More crews are already on the way to the fire, some 100 miles north of Fort St. James. The fire is one of three reported burning in the Rocky Mountain Trench some 150 miles north of Prince Rupert.

CRIME DOES PAY— JUST ASK 'BIG JOE'

NEW YORK (AP)—Joseph McGowan has learned that people do care.

A lot of them came forward Friday to help the 53-year-old father, to befriend him and, perhaps most important of all, to show him understanding.

Things looked a lot darker Thursday for McGowan, who earns $70 a week as a mail clerk. Faced with a $285 tuition bill for his 19-year-old college student son, he held up a savings and loan association. He was caught only moments later.

It was, ironically, at McGowan's arraignment that his life began to brighten.

His wife, Catherine, from whom he has been estranged for two years, appeared to comfort him. Gerald was there too, standing by his father.

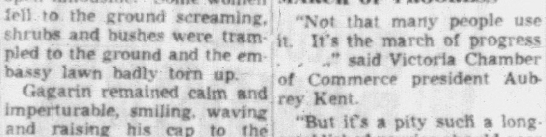
An assistant district attorney assured him the prosecution was sympathetic to his case.

A bail bondsman posted $2,500 bail and waived his fee.

His 40 fellow employees at the Blue Bell Clothing Manufacturing Company raised more than $300 to help "Big Joe" take care of his legal needs.

The firm's management assured him his job would be waiting for him, and the Blue Bell board of directors voted to furnish "substantial financial aid" to McGowan.

And the president of Iona College, which Gerald attends said the youth can register for the fall semester and forget about the tuition he owes.



Thet feller at Niagara had himself a ball.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — The stripper who married a neuro-surgeon called it quits and announced: "I hope I never have to look at another dustmop."

So it's back to the bumps and grinds for "Irma the Body" (40-20-40) after spending 18 months as the wife of Dr. James Taren, a staff neuro-surgeon at the University of Michigan here.

The five-foot, 10-inch blonde strip tease dancer won a divorce Friday on grounds of mental cruelty.

He maiden name was Mary Goodneighbor.

"I'm going to work up a whole new act," she said. "I'm going to be the biggest thing in show business."

The couple met at a Toledo, Ohio, race track. When they announced plans to marry, it made headlines. Although it did prove somewhat turbulent, Irma says she had little trouble adapting herself to the life of a small, conservative college town.

"I learned to play golf and bridge. I joined the faculty club and I worked as a volunteer at the hospital," she recalled, "but my heart was never in it. I'm not just the hausfrau type."

Irma says her real future is in burlesque ("night baseball will never replace sex") and she believes her divorce will improve her standing on the bump and grind circuit.

"I think some of my fans resented my marriage, but I'm glad to be going back. I love the adulation—and the money."

BASINGSTOKE, England — On stage at the Basingstoke carnival Friday night, illusionist Marjorie Waddell was in the midst of the act of sawing a woman in half. Then the stage collapsed.

A hundred people crowded on it went down through the floorboards. Four persons were taken to hospital, others were treated on the spot for cuts and shock.

The girl in the saw box was unharmed.

The illusionist cut her fingers on the saw.

ELIZABETH CROSBY
. . . waiting, waiting

Friday afternoon the pretty brunette, wearing a navy blue suit, a little flower wreath hat and a 4½-carat diamond engagement ring, arrived at city hall to meet H. Frank Jones, 30, a writer. They were to be married in a civil ceremony.

She waited with her mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Van Hook. The appointed hour of 3 p.m. arrived but Jones did not. She had called Jones at 2.30 p.m.

"He said that he was just through with his shower and that he would take a cab over," she said.

At 3.30 p.m. Miss Crosby calmly commented, "He's nervous, like all bridegrooms."

Time passed and the University of California journalism school graduate called H. Frank's flat. No answer. She called a few friends, too.

But no one was able to locate Jones.

Finally at 4.25 p.m. her stepfather suggested the wedding party leave city hall.

As they walked to the car Van Hook said to a reporter, "She's such a sweet, swell girl. What are you going to do with a guy like that?"

DAYTON, Ohio—Floyd E. Chapman, Sr., 39, who took out marriage licences with two women in two days, married No. 2 Friday.

Said No. 1: "Floyd and I changed our minds. We tore up our licence."

Thus was laid to rest a bit of concern around probate court. The flurry of worry came when Chapman, after getting a licence Wednesday to wed Imogene Mayfield, 31, obtained another on Thursday with Carolyn Jean Baum, 28.

Carl E. Beisel, chief deputy in probate court, said there is nothing illegal about taking out two licences—as long as only one is used.

CABINET MINISTER in Liberal governments from 1926 to 1935, Senator W. D. Euler of Kitchener, Ont., died in hospital Friday at the age of 86. He was stricken with chest pains a week ago.

STOP THAT TRUCK!

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Burnaby housewife chased a garbage truck for two blocks in her bare feet Friday to rescue her engagement ring.

Mrs. Margaret Evans removed the ring while preparing breakfast and inadvertently threw it in the garbage with the eggshells.

She realized what she's done only after the garbage truck pulled away.

BROWNLEE HEADED UNITED GRAIN GROWERS

Former Premier of Alberta Dead

CALGARY (CP) — J. E. Brownlee, a former premier of Alberta and until recently president and general manager of the United Grain Growers Limited, died early today at his Calgary home. He was 76.

Mr. Brownlee had been in failing health for several months. He tendered his resignation as UGG president in June.

He was called to the attorney-general's portfolio of the newly-elected United Farmers of Alberta government in 1921, and later the same year was returned by acclamation to the legislature for the constituency of Ponoka.

He became premier in 1925 and was re-elected at the general election of 1926.

He was born Aug. 27, 1884, at Port Ryerse, Ont., and was educated in Sarnia, Ont., and at the University of Toronto. He first become associated with the UGG as a general counsel in 1912.

He is survived by his wife Florence, two sons, John and Allan of Edmonton, and a sister, Mrs. C. A. Smith of Courtrite, Ont.

Funeral service will be held in Calgary Tuesday with interment in Edmonton the same day.

In 1934 Vivian MacMillan, a typist in the Alberta government service, launched a suit charging seduction. An Alberta Supreme Court jury awarded her $10,000 and her father $5,000 additional but Mr. Justice W. C. Ives, the presiding judge, refused to enter the judgment. His decision was upheld in 1935 by the Alberta Appeal Court.

Miss MacMillan, with $2,300 received from public subscriptions, appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada, which allowed her appeal and confirmed the $10,000 award. Her father, meantime, had dropped his action.

The case was carried to the judicial committee of the Privy Council, which in 1940 sustained the $10,000 award.

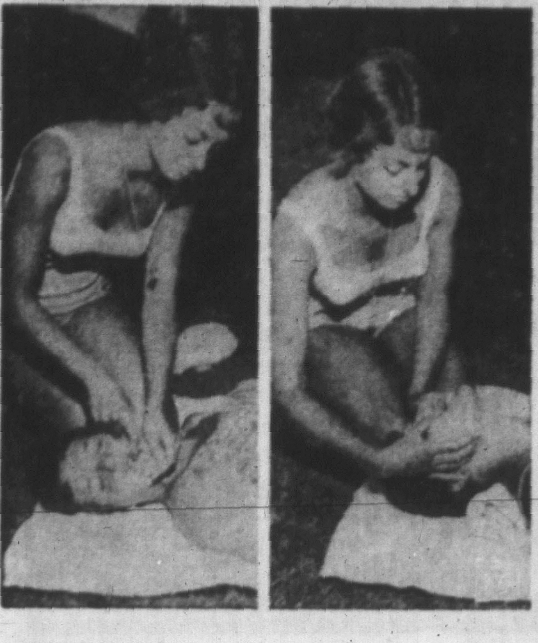
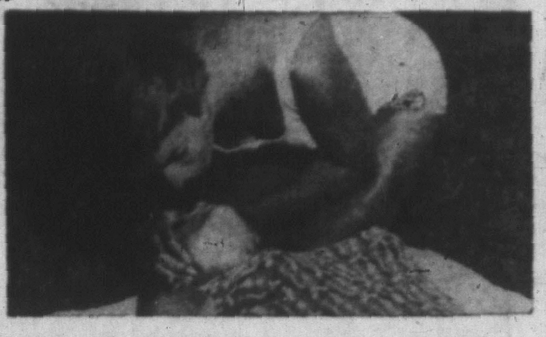
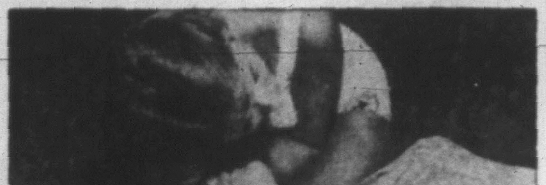
Read This: It Could Help You Save a Life



STEP-BY-STEP method of mouth-to-mouth resuscitation shown in this series of pictures costs nothing, requires no equipment, can be put to use instantly. Know-how could well prove to be the difference between life and death for someone, pending arrival of professional help. Study these pictures closely: 1—Rescuer probes with finger into mouth of victim for obstructions which could prevent flow of oxygen to lungs. 2—Towel is placed beneath victim's neck. Rescuer extends victim's chin upward, pinches nostrils shut. In this position, windpipe is fully extended for the air flow.



RESCUER KNEELS close to the left ear, placing her lips over those of victim, and breathes into the mouth. When chest expands she removes mouth, lets air escape. Repeat at rate of 12 to 20 per minute; forcibly in adults, gently in children.



BETWEEN BREATHS, rescuer listens for gurgling sounds indicating foreign matter. By turning her head, she can watch chest cavity fall as victim exhales; when victim exhales breath hits rescuer's cheek; another check on air exchange.

HAPPY ENDING—GOAL OF EVERY LIFESAVER—Red Cross-approved, mouth-to-mouth resuscitation is used by fire and police departments across the nation. While preliminary training is desirable, according to safety experts, the method has been used many times by those who never tried it before. Enactment, above, is by "rescuer" Jean Lally; "victim" Patricia Lott, of Cleveland Heights, Ohio.

Astronauts Set For Tuesday Ride

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Steak and baby food, medical checks, star gazing, make-believe space rides — that's what an astronaut's day is made of. MADE OF.

Virgil Grissom and John Glenn had these items on schedule today as they entered the final phase of preparation for America's second manned space flight, scheduled Tuesday morning.

Grissom, 35-year-old air force captain, is reliably reported to be the No. 1 choice for the flight, with Glenn, 39-year-old marine lieutenant-colonel, standing by as back-up pilot as he did on the Alan Shepard flight.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration will reveal the name of the chosen astronaut Monday, 24 hours before launching.

The flight will be a near-duplicate of Shepard's trip May 5. A Redstone rocket is to boost the manned capsule 115 miles high and 300 miles down range in a test designed to train another space pilot and build experience and confidence for future orbit missions.

EAT SPECIAL FOODS

Grissom and Glenn today began a low-residue, high-energy diet to reduce possibility of excretion and provide quick-burning reserve strength during flight. They were served in a special "ready room" at the Cape. An official outlined this typical one-day menu:

Breakfast: Orange juice, cream of wheat, bacon, two boiled eggs, toast, jelly and coffee. Lunch: Broiled chicken, baby-food-type peas, bread without crust, cottage cheese salad, ice tea and sugar cookies. Dinner: Broiled steak, boiled potato without skin, baby food vegetable, sherbet and coffee.

Both astronauts were to don space suits and run through practice missions while seated in the actual space capsule atop the Redstone. They also studied charts of the heavens and the earth beneath the planned capsule path so certain features will be recognizable.

Shepard is providing valuable advice to Glenn and Grissom as they enter the home stretch in their training. During the flight, Shepard will be at the vital capsule communicator post in the control centre—maintaining constant voice contact with the pilot.

The astronauts have picked the name Liberty Bell 7 for the spacecraft. Shepard's vehicle was Freedom 7. The number represents the total membership of the Mercury astronaut team.

MOUTH RESPIRATION METHOD APPROVED

Mouth-to-mouth form of artificial respiration is coming more and more to the fore as the most efficient of the many forms of revival, according to medical authorities.

It has the approval of the St. John Ambulance Association, which has produced a film demonstrating the method, but it has not yet been taught. First aid courses resume in the fall, and it may be considered for the syllabus.

"Although it has been proved, we advise people to apply the kind of artificial respiration they know best," said Mrs. E. V. Harwood, area superintendent for St. John Ambulance Brigade.

Navy firemen are teaching it regularly, and it has the sanction of city police officials. Victoria Squadron of Canadian Power Squadrons has given demonstrations in its application.

Tests have proved that the mouth-to-mouth method puts from two to three times as much oxyen into the lungs of a patient as any other type.

'Garden' Apartment James Bay Project

Low-cost apartments in a garden setting are planned for occupancy by next March in a James Bay development to cost at least $500,000.

The site is an L-shaped lot of about two acres between Menzies and Croft, touching Niagara.

Builder will be Westnor Construction Ltd., with financing by Northwestern Securities of Victoria Ltd., scheduled to start work Oct. 1.

5 BUILDINGS

There will be five buildings; one three storeys high, four two-storey, in which there will be about 24 bachelor suites, a dozen one-bedroom suites and about 44 two-bedroom apartments.

Proposed rental ranges from $60 for the bachelor suites to $75 for the single-bedroom suites and $85 for the large apartments.

COIN LAUNDRY

There will be off-street parking, a private swimming pool, play area for children and a private coin laundry.

Natural trees and brush will be incorporated as much as possible into the landscaping.

No Canadian Arms Shipped To Portugal

OTTAWA (CP)—It has become clear in the last two weeks that Canada has adopted a deliberate policy of refusing to ship armaments to Portugal, a NATO ally.

The reason is Portugal's policy in its West African colony of Angola, where thousands of natives have been killed in a revolt. Other thousands have fled to the neighboring Congo.

No formal announcement of the Canadian policy has been made. But it was reported reliably Friday that the purport of this policy was contained in Commons replies June 28 by External Affairs Minister Green to Paul Martin, Liberal MP for Essex East.

RECOGNITION

Mongolia Unsure About U.S. Goal

ULAN BATOR, Mongolia (Reuters) — Communist Mongolia knows the United States wants to establish an embassy here to watch "developments" in Soviet-Communist Chinese relations; a foreign ministry spokesman said here Friday.

He also said Mongolia is ready to establish diplomatic relations with the U.S., Britain, Japan and other Western countries.

Discussions on the subject of relations now are taking place with the U.S. in Moscow, the spokesman said.

"We know the United States government would like to establish diplomatic relations and set up an embassy here for the purpose of seeing developments in the relations between China and the Soviet Union from here," he told a reporter.

"This is not the Mongolian way of conducting affairs, and so far it is difficult to judge whether or not the United States government really wants friendship with Mongolia."

Mongolia is seeking recognition from more countries and campaigning for a seat in the United Nations.

'GET OUT' U.K. TOLD

BAGHDAD, Iraq (Reuters) — Premier Jabde Karim Kassem has once again staked his claim to the neighboring oil-rich sheikdom of Kuwait by warning Britain to "get out of our land—out of Kuwait."

The renewed claim to the sheikdom, which has called in British troops to prevent possible Iraqi annexation, was made Friday night during celebrations marking the third anniversary of Iraq's military revolution.

The premier angrily said Iraq would declare a "war of attrition" on Britain if it did not end its "aggression" against Kuwait.

Kassem spoke twice—at a graduation ceremony at Baghdad Military Academy to commemorate the anniversary of the revolt which brought him to power three years ago and again at the dedication of a revolution monument in Baghdad's Liberation Square.

REITERATES CLAIM

He reiterated his claim that Kuwait is part of Iraq. He said: "Imperialist treacherous" Britain has "transgressed upon our country and last month signed an agreement with Kuwait giving her a bridge to attack Iraq."

This was a reference to close ties adopted by Britain and Kuwait after the sheikdom became independent following 62 years as a British Protectorate.

He insisted Iraq's policy is one of peace and neutrality, but "we will continue to declare our rights by all peaceful means, despite provocations by the imperialists, their stooges and officials."

Kassem said Iraq could have used force to "liberate" Kuwait but was seeking its rights "through every legitimate means."

Imperialist-dominated areas in the Persian Gulf, such as Bahrain, Sharjah, Oman, "and elsewhere" will be liberated, he said.

$130,000 —Thanks To Castro

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A Miami advertising man who has been a thorn in the side of Fidel Castro made himself another $130,000 Friday on Cuban-owned lard.

Erwin Harris sold 32 railroad cars of lard for $130,000. The cars were bound for Cuba until he seized them under a court order Monday.

The lard was sold to the Marco Chemical Company of Texas, which agreed that the lard would not be resold to the Cuban government.

Harris claims Castro refused to pay him almost $500,000 for advertising and public relations services. Harris got a court judgement against the Cuban revolutionary leader.

Ever since then, he has been seizing Cuban-owned property wherever he finds it. In selling, Harris always makes sure that the property will not make its way to Cuba.

How Much Devaluation?

APART FROM ITS QUARREL with Mr. Coyne, what is the Canadian government actually doing about the devaluation of the dollar? So far the dollar has dropped a few points on the international exchanges but not much, certainly not enough to make good the government's plan to discourage imports and encourage exports on a large scale. What are the long-term prospects? How far can and should the dollar be driven down? How much will the process cost and how permanent will it be?

An answer to these questions is offered by Mr. D. B. Marsh, assistant general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, in The Financial Post. As an expert long trained in international money movements, Mr. Marsh doubts that the artificial devaluation of the Canadian dollar, by the government's purchases of American dollars, can be achieved and maintained for long against the natural pressure of the money market.

"It is argued," Mr. Marsh says, "that, at very little cost, we can fix the Canadian dollar at some rate below the market with untold, and unexamined benefits to our export trade and domestic employment. The exchange fund account would merely use Canadian dollars, acquired at current Canadian short-term rates of interest, and invest them in U.S. treasury bills. The cost, therefore, would be approximately equal to the current spread between Canadian and U.S. short (interest) rates, but unfortunately that will become an increasing cost over time.

"With luck, good management and complete assurance of the intentions of our monetary and fiscal authorities regarding the degree of deliberate undervaluation intended, this operation could require perhaps $200 millions per point just to get the Canadian dollar down to this pre-determined parity."

But it will be another matter, Mr. Marsh adds, to hold the dollar at this point. For that purpose the government would have to borrow heavily from the Canadian people to provide the Canadian dollars which it would use to purchase American dollars. Such heavy borrowings would tend to drive up the general Canadian interest rate. And higher interest rates, in turn, would attract American investment, the very thing which the government wishes to avoid because it tends to drive up the value of the Canadian dollar.

This, in Mr. Marsh's judgment, is the "vicious circle" released by the government's devaluation policy. However, it can be broken, if the government is prepared to take a final risk.

The money needed to buy American dollars need not be borrowed from the Canadian people, on top of the government's other borrowings of about a billion dollars this year. Instead, it could be created by the Bank of Canada by more monetary inflation.

Here is the easy way out for the government but a very dangerous way. For as Mr. Marsh says, the necessary increase in the money supply would be "wholly out of proportion in size and duration to any near-term needs and hence violently inflationary over time." Its cost would be paid later on in rising domestic prices.

Besides, says Mr. Marsh, "to increase the money supply in response not to current domestic needs but to a commitment to maintain a pre-determined parity for our dollar . . . would mean the complete renunciation of any independence in monetary policy; the active element determining the Canadian money supply under these conditions would be the inflow (or outflow) of hot money."

These risks were realized by Mr. Fleming in his 1960 budget when he called the devaluation of the dollar "a gigantic financial speculation with no assurance of success." He has reversed his view since that time and is undertaking the gigantic financial speculation but he does not tell us how far he is prepared to go and he cannot tell how much the experiment will cost directly in money, indirectly in future prices.

The Athletes of Canada

FIVE CANADIAN RUNNERS, among them British Columbia's Harry Jerome, are making a six-week tour of Europe at the invitation of a European amateur sports organization. Watching them, European spectators will make their own judgments about Canada's talents on the track—talents too often disregarded and little encouraged at home.

The expenses of our athletes on this tour were paid by collections from the public at the recent Police Sports in Vancouver. The contributors deserve praise for their generosity. But, as The Vancouver Sun remarks, this incident reminds Canadians rather wryly of the Speech from the Throne at Ottawa last November. Outlining the government's policies, it said to Parliament: "You will also be asked to consider means of encouraging the youth of Canada in amateur athletics."

If anything has been done to carry out that plan we haven't heard of it. The government, understandably, has been immersed in more pressing business. Yet the encouragement of amateur athletics is important, too, especially in track events.

Some forms of athletics seem pretty well able to finance themselves but track sports are a kind of orphan, kept alive in Canada only by the devotion of a few public-spirited men.

The inevitable result of this neglect is Canada's unhappy showing at recent Olympic Games. We failed there simply because we had not sufficiently encouraged and trained our athletes. This nation spends untold millions to watch professional sports like football and hockey. It can hardly find a dollar to lay out a track or buy a pair of running shoes for some poor boy who, with a little help, might be a world champion.

But it is not champions that we need most. We need to improve the bodies, the minds and characters of our boys and girls by active participation in sport, and this we certainly are not doing so far as track is concerned.

No Time For Let-Down

IN THE LAST TWO DAYS, thousands of Victorians have seen what fire can do to a lumberyard. Others have seen the results of recent house fires.

By good luck and good management, few have seen so far this season what fire does in the woods. With the exception of a blaze on the Alberni Canal, no very serious outbreaks have occurred during the recent hot spell on the Island.

A drop in temperature, with a higher recovery of humidity in the forests during the night, has reduced somewhat the hazard which existed in the woods earlier this week. If showers fall on Sunday, the explosive threat will be lowered still further.

But if there has been a slight improvement, there has not been enough to permit any individual to relax extreme caution with matches, cigaret stubs or live pipe embers close to the forests. These could still touch off the tinder which starts a forest fire.

So far this year, our people have been careful. That care has paid dividends. It should be continued for even greater returns throughout the rest of the fire season. We in British Columbia are in no position to risk the resource on which we depend for almost half the wealth produced in this province.

The Blonde Is Safe

THE WORLD HAS HEARD SO much bad news lately that it overlooks what the United States Supreme Court has called a clear and present danger to human happiness. The Court, we hasten to add, was speaking of a different matter but the latest announcement of the International Committee for Demographic Studies deserves the highest consideration just the same.

According to this august institution, the blonde is disappearing. Within half a century, we are told, there will be practically no blondes anywhere on earth. The breed is dying out because blondes are less durable than brunettes. That old Darwinian law, the survival of the fittest, is robbing mankind of a precious ornament. It is destroying the classic doctrine that Gentlemen Prefer Blondes.

Frankly, we suspect that the International Committee for Demographic Studies is underestimating modern science. Soon no blondes may be born but science will still make them, as it is making them today with an inexpensive purchase at the nearest drug store. So long as science serves us we can safely transfer our worry from blondes to Berlin.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

FOR a shady lane ramble go along the old B.C. Electric right of way off Beaver Lake Road.

As you follow the path you will find that the shrubs have grown overhead until they form a beautiful green arch through which shafts of sunlight break, casting fascinating patterns.

You will find willow, western osier, dogwood and the cascara intermingled as if each depended upon the other for support.

In places you come across spots where the rock had been blasted to make the road. There you can see the lichens and mosses still fresh and green.

As you come to the margin of the lake you will find some of the old timber, large cedars and Douglas fir, under which the sword fern is growing in profusion.

Glimpses of the lake shimmering in the hot sun can give you the urge to take a swim. There is one spot along the shoreline where you can see a small patch of white water lilies growing among the light green of the duckweed.

The mock orange or syringea grows along this lane and now the petals are falling they look like large, beautiful snowflakes.

Clouds Gather Over Mr. Diefenbaker

THERE are times when men in public life lose control and are swept along in the running course of events.

Gould

This is such a time for Prime Minister John Diefenbaker.

Only a few weeks ago he appeared to be in complete command. There was a new mood of confidence in the country. Grain deals with Red China made the Western farmers happy. Conservative fortunes were rising in Quebec. He won three out of four byelections, and men were going back to work.

Everything looked very rosy for the Tories, and the Liberals were again muttering unhappily.

Now political fortunes have been sharply reversed. Finance Minister Donald Fleming, widely-considered the strong man of the Diefenbaker cabinet, has been all but destroyed. The nation is in a state of political confusion, and confidence in the government's ability to provide sound administration has been largely shattered.

Even the Senate doesn't take Mr. Diefenbaker seriously any longer, as the Liberals in the Upper House illustrated when they ignored his election threat and stuck to their amendment to the government's class or kind tariff legislation.

The most serious blow to the government was the downfall of Mr. Fleming, a pugnacious man with an innate sense of his own righteousness. If Donald Fleming has ever admitted to being wrong, it must have been a long time ago.

Over the past four years, he has radiated omnipotence. He bulldozed his way through debate, his ringing cries of "Nonsense!" spattering the pages of Hansard.

Now, through the agency of Mr. Coyne, Mr. Fleming has been exposed. It was a little tragic to see him making explanations in the Commons, trying to rationalize what he had said in the face of some very convincing evidence. All the bluster and bombast faded a bit when Coyne started releasing letters to prove his assertions.

Mr. Fleming, in his budget, abandoned all that he stood for one year ago, and yet pretends there has been no change in his policies.

Whatever happens to the Conservative government, Mr. Fleming's usefulness is very nearly at an end. Business papers on the continent and in the U.K. have been critical of him, and of his policies, and once a finance minister has lost the whole-hearted confidence of the international financial and business community he is no longer an asset to the government.

His loud voice is sounding very hollow.

Mr. Diefenbaker, as is well known, has never had a head for facts and figures. He left the economic problems of the nation entirely in the hands of Mr. Fleming, and now he is leaving Mr. Fleming largely to his own devices.

Last weekend, for example, at the height of the Coyne crisis, the PM was gaily playing politics out in Manitoba, apparently oblivious of the fact his happy little world was crumbling about his ears.

It seemed possible for a while that, in his anger and dismay, he might call a general election, in an attempt to prove to his supporters that he is still king of the hustings, still the champion speechmaker in the nation, still able to sway the millions.

But the downfall of Donald Fleming must have given him pause. And many of his more level-headed counsellors must have advised him against a political adventure at this juncture in his term.

AMAZING WHAT ARRIVES ON THE TIDE

By TONY EMERY

'Good Morning, Pilot—Know the District at all?'

I HAVE known him off and on for 16 years. He was, when I first met him one grey summer morning in King George the Fifth Dock, Glasgow, the chief officer on an old P. and O. liner turned troopship. I was, of all laughable things, the ship's adjutant, so I had a great deal to do with him, both on and off duty.

Emery

He looks like the man who used to be depicted leaping energetically over a wall in the advertisements for Kruschens' Salts, though I never saw him taking any exercise more violent than ship's rounds in the morning. He has a breezy, chatty manner with a flow of anecdotes that would do credit to his literary near-namesake, and a marked tendency towards hyperbole.

Great Gambler

He was a great gambler, who would make book on anything you liked. Our passage over the face of the waters was a little like that of the wily Odysseus, for we travelled hopefully for one port, only to be diverted into some totally unexpected place. The Chief's book on the next port of call opened the moment we had cleared harbor, and it became traditional for a few of us to drop into his cabin before lunch to examine the odds. While we were placing our bets we would partake of a potent anti-scorbutic specially made for the P. and O. by Messrs. Burne, Turner of London Town. I drank gallons of it in the year I was at sea, and I never had scurvy once.

But I was talking about the odds. The alleged destination, once we got past Suez, was never much better than even money, and from there on the odds would lengthen: 2-1 Port Sudan, 3-1 Massawa, 10-1 Hodeida, 50-1 the Kuria Muria Islands, and so on. I always thought he gave himself the best of the odds, and he hasn't changed with the passing of the years. When we were east of Colombo I always used to have a small saver on Tjilatjap, a port on the south coast of Java every bit as big as French Creek—the old tub had once been diverted in there, to everyone's amazement—and I always felt aggrieved that he would never offer better than 50-1 about this longshot.

Constant Greeting

When he was a cadet he was on watch during the long passage up some interminable Chinese river so studded with hazards that two pilots were carried, and witnessed (so he says) the relief in the early hours of the morning. "Where are we?" says the pilot coming on watch. "Kiangling" says the pilot at the wheel, and adds: "Do you know the district at all?" This wonderful remark entered the mythology that surrounded the Chief, and it was his constant greeting to pilots when they came aboard, somewhat to their mortification. I was once called upon to translate it into bad Italian for the benefit of the gentleman who had undertaken to guide us safely into port at Taranto.

I remember one evening we were steaming down the Red Sea after several days of cruel heat. Suddenly a delightful breeze sprang up, and we all looked at each other as if we had come into a fortune. A lady war-correspondent who looked like a model for Helen Hokinson came fussing up to try to make a meteorological scoop. "Where is this breeze coming from Chief?" she chirrupped. He cast a shrewd mariner's eye across the water to the bleak bluffs on the Arabian side, glanced at the smoke from the unquenchable blaze at Ras Gharib on the African shore, and cocked a knowing eye aloft at the P. and O. house flag fluttering weakly for the first time in days. He turned to the lady, who was by this time agog with anticipation. "Sevenoaks, Madam," he said.

We played a small part in what would have been the invasion of Malaya if the Japanese had not, to my enormous relief, packed it in before our arrival. The commanding officer of one of the battalions on board was called Pine-Coffin. I happened to mention to the Chief, as we both stood at the head of the ladder down which we were disembarking this lot (or "shower," to use the correct military terminology) that Pine-Coffin was an odd name. At that moment the brackets holding the accommodation ladder broke, and we spun slowly round at the end of the rope with which some far-sighted matlow had underslung the whole affair.

Pine-Coffin Affair

The troops at the bottom were plunged into the sea between the lighter and the ship's side; the air was filled with the derision of the men waiting to disembark, who found this entertainment vastly diverting; the soldiery on the ladder, encumbered with kitbags and full marching order, gave vent to oaths of a wildly imaginative nature. The Chief lit a cigarette and said: "Pine-Coffin? I don't see anything wrong in that. In fact, come to think of it, I don't know many people who aren't called Pine-Coffin." He urged me to ask the name of the nearest soldier, a ferocious-looking parachutist whose green drill bush jacket was slowly turning black with perspiration. "I'll bet you anything you like it's Pine-Coffin," he said with conviction.

Tips to Avoid

We went to the races in Bombay together. I had some inside information via the Purser's Goanese servant, Matthew Pereira, who had been a jockey until his weight made it necessary for him to diet to such an extent that he hadn't the strength to pull his mounts to order, and he won when he was meant to lose. But the Chief insisted that I back his fancy, a stylish Arab mare, a grey called (can I forget her?) Queen Hamiyeh. She led by a dozen lengths at the mile post, and then was no more seen, for the mile, it turned out, was her distance, and the race was a mile-and-a-quarter. After that I listened to the Chief's tips, but I backed Matthew's selections, and I did well, a fact for which the Chief, typically, took all the credit.

I last saw him on the Arcadia when she came this way. I was waiting in his cabin when he came down off the bridge and I said to him: "Whot price Tjilatjap, James?" And he said, the old skinflint, "I'll give you eight to one." His name is Geoffrey Alan Wild, and everyone calls him Jimmy or James. When the Canberra picks up the pilot on Monday, I'll bet you anything you like that Captain Wild says to the pilot: "Good morning, pilot—do you know the district at all?"

FACING ANOTHER CRISIS

By ALAN DAY

Britain Waits Selwyn Lloyd Statement on Taxes

THE Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Selwyn Lloyd, is expected to make a major statement within the next two weeks on how he proposes to deal with Britain's latest economic crisis. Already the stock market has the jitters—equities have lost almost all their gains of nearly 20 per cent in the earlier part of the year—and the newspapers are demanding that something fundamental and new must be done to put things right—without any very clear specification of what new policies do in fact lie open to the Chancellor.

Short-Run Measures

There are already a few indicators of what the Chancellor will do in the short run to deal with the ebbing confidence in sterling. Domestically, he will soon have the increased powers, under the Finance Bill to change indirect taxes (such as purchase taxes and the duties on beer and tobacco) by up to 10 per cent of their existing levels, without new legislation; he will also have the power to increase the employers' national insurance contribution which, in effect, allows him to impose a payroll tax.

The payroll tax idea has come in for bitter attacks, largely because it was a proposal falling between too many stools—and the Chancellor's recent statements suggest that he will be unwilling to use this new power. He is more likely to increase indirect taxes and so take money out of the hands of consumers—but at the same time giving another sharp upward push to the cost of living. No one seems very happy about this prospect, but the general view is that it is inevitable; if the payments position is to be improved at all and if sterling is to make an adequate show of respectability to Britain's creditors, it is felt that there must be some restraint on domestic spending. The pity is that this restraint should come at a time when output has apparently risen very little for a long time and when the industries which will be most hit (such as cars and consumer durables) are already working well below capacity.

The alternative restraint on spending might be to hold back investment. He has already considered reimposing direct controls over building and apparently rejected the idea.

He might still take fiscal action to reduce investment—perhaps by reducing the generous rate of depreciation allowed for tax purposes in the first year of the life of a new asset—but on balance this seems unlikely, because it is generally agreed that the worst policy of all would be one which reduced the future economic strength of the country.

Modest Changes

The short-term measures for the domestic economy are therefore likely to be modest, and their main effect on output will be to restrain growth.

Equally, the external short-term measures are likely to be modest in their total effect. There are ominous signs that the Government intends to reduce its aid to overseas countries—hardly a justifiable policy for a country as rich as Britain, and one which is largely self-defeating since it tends to reduce exports. Once again attempts are likely to be made to cut overseas military expenditure—notably in Germany.

There may well be an announcement of a British drawing on the International Monetary Fund, to restore some of the gold losses of recent months and to repay some of the large sums made available to Britain by the German and Swiss central banks under the Basle Agreement of last March. But in total, it seems that everything the Chancellor will do on the external front will simply amount to a holding operation.

Real Questions

The real questions, therefore, are whether he will announce any new policies to strengthen the long-term economic situation; if he can, the short-term holding operations will be worth while. If he cannot, they simply delay further trouble. The most widely held views are that he must strengthen the domestic economy so that it will in time be better able to stand up to foreign competition. Within this general diagnosis, there are broadly three schools of thought.

The first considers that there must be a wages policy to contain cost inflation. The second considers that there must be more competition, to stimulate the efficient firms and to drive the others out of business. The third considers that there should be more economic planning, to ensure more rapid growth.

The likelihood is that the Chancellor will create a fair degree of sound and fury about the first—a wages policy—but that it will signify very little; that he will continue to move cautiously in the second direction, of increased competition; and that he will steer away from greater economic planning like a frightened mare.

The trouble both with a wages policy and increased economic planning is that they are inconsistent with the free-for-all economy which has brought reasonably good returns to the post-war Conservative Governments, and which is still the dominant philosophy of the Treasury officials who advise the Chancellor.

Nor do the trade unions want a wages policy, because they fear that it would curb the incomes of their members while salary-earners and property-owners continued to shoot ahead. On the other hand, there is increasing belief outside the Government that there should be more economic planning; where industrialists and civil servants get together and plan an agreed rate of growth of the output of their industries and of the economy as a whole. In a year or two's time, this fashion will probably catch on in Whitehall—but this year it is still too early.

Increase Competition

This leaves the main likely element as an attempt to increase competition—both domestically, by attacking restrictive agreements between traders, and internationally by reducing tariffs, mainly by joining the Common Market. This sort of policy can produce results, but they are not dramatic or immediate—otherwise the British economy would already have been transformed by the increased competition of recent years, arising from anti-monopoly legislation and the removal of import restrictions.

What is likely, in fact, is that short-term measures will save the country from immediate crisis; that things will then take a temporary swing for the better and that everyone will start to forget the underlying troubles. Which, in turn, lays the seed for the next crisis.

SILENUS

ONE of the things about women which baffles even this wise and worldly column is their utter certainty that, without feminine help and assistance, men just naturally lead lives of squalor and discomfort.

After a stint of sumber bachelorhood, during which time this column has managed to maintain a high degree of comfort and nutrition, as an old soldier should, it can now look on the past few weeks as characterized by daily inquiries as to its health and wellbeing from curious female friends and relations.

"What did you have for dinner last night?" they ask, in the tone of voice which expects one to reply "Dogfood." When informed that it supped off cold broiled tenderloin, a green salad, Port Salut cheese and a bottle of Volney, the good ladies greet it either with incredulous cries or a shocked silence. Someone is letting the side down. You can hear, even over the telephone, the thought taking shape.

* * *

It is all part of curious myth which prevails across this curious continent. North American folklore is founded on, and built of the most extraordinary collection of lies and information that ever was seen by mortal man. One of the great effors which we have permitted to become a part of our natural heritage is the error that women and only women can cook and keep house.

It is true that they are capable of a sort of household management; and the occasional woman, after years of training, does become a passable cook. Provided, of course, that she was born with a flair for it, and most of them are not.

This, of course is heresy and the most condign revenge can be expected. It is quite possible that this column will be hanged in effigy outside the stately portals of the Business and Professional Women's Club.

Effigy it will have to be, for by the time this hits the street, this column will be heading, as fast as jet can head it, toward wife and family and female cookery and all that jazz.

And it can hardly wait.

. . . REPORTING

OTTAWA—In the sometimes tense, sometimes tedious drama of the Senate committee this week, Governor James E. Coyne of the Bank of Canada established his innocence of dipping his hand into the till.

He explained in great detail and with much weighty supporting evidence why the bank's board of directors voted unanimously to raise the special retirement pension for the office of governor from $11,900 to $25,000 a year. In consequence, it must now be apparent to any reasonable, intelligent and well-informed person that the Diefenbaker-Fleming charges against Coyne on this count are baseless.

But the Senate committee is not a court of law. It cannot adjudge Coyne innocent, however much the evidence of his innocence stands out in the pages of the committee record. Consequently there is no onus on Coyne's accusers to accept his explanation or retract their charges.

The fact remains that Coyne did not demur when his board increased the pension. As we now know from Coyne's testimony, this is such an incomplete statement of the circumstances as to create a wholly false impression and to malign Coyne's honor. So the pension remains an election issue for the government: fairness and reasonableness are not the predominant factors in an election campaign.

* * *

However, the case that Coyne made before the Senate committee will bridle Tory tongues on the hustings. What the PM and his ministers and MPs said about Coyne in the Commons is privileged. They cannot be sued thereon for slander. But speaking from public platforms they cannot say with impunity those things they said in Parliament with impunity.

While Coyne's stature rose as he coolly and calmly presented his case to the Senate, that of Finance Minister Fleming suffered. Obviously one of the two men has lied—not once in their controversy, but repeatedly. Fleming's reluctance to testify, to submit himself to questioning, has not created confidence that it is not he.

The Liberals genuinely want a general election in spite of the Tories' obvious intention to make the utmost political use of their fight with Coyne. The Grits hope to persuade the voters that the government manufactured the charges against Coyne to get control of the bank for its own purpose, to make Coyne the scapegoat for its failures, and to create an issue for a snap general election.

On the pension matter, the Liberals do not support the action of the bank's board of directors—but they point out that this action was taken by a board of which two-thirds of the members were appointed by the Tory government. "A Tory pension," they'll cry.

As a Tory issue Coyne could fade, or even turn sour, and bring to the fore what the Liberals call the "real issues": unemployment, the deficit, no tax relief, and living costs that rise as the government forces the value of the dollar down.

Stacking his "Senate reform" and firing Coyne issues against the Grit talking points, the PM apparently has decided to implement his "sooner or later" election ultimatum to the Senate rather later than sooner.

TRUJILLO JR.

Dominican Republic Castro-Proof

CIUDAD TRUJILLO (AP)—Gen. Rafael L. Trujillo Jr., who took control of the armed forces after the assassination of his dictator father, says he believes the Dominican Republic is safe from pro-Castro forces.

"It would be a serious problem if partisans of the Cuban prime minister try to take over by force or win in free elections," said the 31-year-old commander-in-chief, "but I do not think it will happen."

Trujillo expressed confidence that the dominant Dominican party, founded by his father, will win in the presidential elections May 16, 1962, if it "modernizes its methods."

He did not elaborate in an interview but added that certain social reforms must be made.

He also disclosed that former defence minister Jose Rene Roman had been sentenced to 30 years in prison for complicity in the assassination of his father May 30.

ANOTHER FISCAL MEET URGED

Quebec Premier Condemns New Tax-Sharing Program

LESAGE
. . . writes Dief

MONTREAL (CP)—Premier Lesage has made a strong-worded demand on Prime Minister Diefenbaker to hold another federal-provincial fiscal conference.

The Quebec premier told Mr. Diefenbaker the fiscal conference to study tax-sharing agreements should be called to "correct anomalies and misunderstandings."

Mr. Lesage Friday night released a French text of a letter dated July 13 and addressed to Mr. Diefenbaker. The prime minister had written all 10 provincial premiers June 16.

The Quebec government leader said he and his cabinet colleagues had experienced a "cruel disappointment" when they read Mr. Diefenbaker's letter.

At federal-provincial conferences last October and February Mr. Diefenbaker set out the new federal tax plan for provinces ending the old-tax-rental plan and requiring the provinces to levy their own personal and corporation income taxes if they want the revenues from those fields.

In his letter to the prime minister Mr. Lesage said he had "no intention of proposing to the legislature that collection of these (corporation and personal income) taxes be done by the department of national revenue.

Quebec already has personal and corporation income taxes.

"For this reason," Mr. Lesage added, "I abstain from making any comment on proposed tax agreements."

The Quebec premier said the "progressive enlargement of the personal income tax field reserved to provinces . . . for all purposes is illusory for us because what is given us in one hand is taken out of the other by a decrease in equalization payments."

The federal government's plan calls for a reduction by 16 per cent in the personal income tax field levy. This is to be progressively increased to 20 per cent during the next five years, leaving the provinces free to occupy the tax field vacated by Ottawa.

Similarly, the federal corporation income tax rate is to be reduced by nine percentage points, allowing the provinces to levy a 9 per cent tax on corporation profits without increasing the over-all levy.

BOTH SIDES SATISFIED WITH PAKISTAN-U.S. TALKS

By SPENCER DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials said today President Kennedy made it clear to Pakistan President Mohammad Ayub Khan that the United States will not use its economic aid to India as a lever in bringing about a new India-Pakistan conference on disputed Kashmir.

Authoritative sources said the United States also registered disapproval of any move to take the Kashmir issue to the United Nations General Assembly at this time. It was felt that the proposal would run into a hornets' nest of controversy in that body, benefiting no one but Communists.

On the whole, officials said, the three-day consultations between Ayub Khan and Kennedy had met the objectives of both sides.

Ayub Khan came here to get reassurances that the new Kennedy administration would not be partial to India at Pakistan's expense.

WON'T NEGLECT KHAN

On the U.S. side, the objective was to reassure him that the United States will not neglect a firm ally.

From every indication, Ayub Khan, who arrived here with considerable scepticism, went away feeling that the Kennedy administration has both the capacity and the will to get ahead with world problems.

Observers felt that Ayub Khan had not only scored a personal success in Washington but had bolstered his own position at home by meeting headlong the problems that had aroused excessive complaints at home over Pakistan's ties with the United States.

The soldier-president established a record for frankness in both his public and private talks here that could easily become legendary.

WILL HONOR PLEDGE

As far as Kennedy's pledge to help bring Prime Minister Nehru into a conference with Ayub Khan on the Kashmir question, there is no question that the pledge will be fulfilled. The timing, however, is another matter.

The climate for such talks was not improved by the exchange of verbal blows between Ayub Khan and Nehru on the subject of U.S. military aid to India. Nehru said Ayub Khan had deliberately misrepresented India-U.S. relations and denied that India was seeking U.S. military assistance.

It is felt here that fruitful negotiations on Kashmir could not take place before India's general elections which will be completed next February, although preliminary talks could take place.

Fleming a Casualty? —'Just Can't Happen'

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament Hill, with Senate and Commons in summer recess, turned today to a busy round of speculation about finance Minister Fleming.

The main theme, given no credence in high government circles, is that the Finance Minister will resign as an aftermath of the Coyne case in which he was the main government spokesman.

Two appointments were suggested—to the Supreme Court Bench or as Canadian ambassador to the United States, succeeding A. D. P. Heeney who leaves the Washington post in a few weeks.

Well-informed sources threw cold water on the idea that Mr. Fleming might become a casualty of the Coyne battle.

A cabinet colleague said: "It just can't happen. Mr. Fleming still is a highly-esteemed and respected member of the cabinet."

Another Conservative remarked that his party holds that it was right in seeking to remove Mr. Coyne from office. Because of that belief, Mr. Fleming would have to stay in the cabinet. Resignation might be interpreted as an admission of error.

It is known that Prime Minister Diefenbaker has a high regard for Mr. Fleming's parliamentary and administrative capabilities. They are seatmates in the Commons and the prime minister is understood to rely more on the finance minister than on any other cabinet member with the possible exception of External Affairs Minister Green.

Some Conservatives, including highly-placed ones, aren't too happy with handling of the Coyne bill.

They say now it should have been given committee study in the Commons so Mr. Coyne would have been faced with the most formidable of the Conservative committee-room lawyers.

Instead, the government refused Commons committee time to study and the bill went to a Senate committee where the Liberals had the edge in numbers and in questioning skill.

Japan Boosts Defence

TOKYO (AP) — Japan has decided on a 75-per-cent increase in defence spending in the next five years, with emphasis on supersonic jets, missiles and modernization. A buildup plan costing $3,238,800,000 won cabinet approval Friday, meaning the appropriate amounts will be earmarked for defence in annual government budgets. The total is 75 per cent over defence spending for 1957-61.

The National Association of Norwegian Architects marked its 50th anniversary in 1961 with total membership of 1,100.

Suits to Cost More
* * *
Colonist Business Editor

The price of men's clothing is expected to go up from $2.50 to $5.00 a suit this fall, says Tom Aplin, executive director of the Men's Clothing Manufacturers' Association of Ontario.

Blame for the rise is divided between the devaluation of the Canadian dollar and a 5 per cent wage increase in the clothing industry which came into effect July 1.

Mr. Apley says the increased dollar value of the pound sterling following the recent budget will result in a substantial increase in the cost of imported fabrics to Canadian manufacturers, while even the Canadian spinning mills will have to increase domestic fabric prices because of higher cost of English yard prices.

A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

During a recent spell of hot weather I made yet another try to interest myself in crime fiction. It was no good; I am temperamentally unsuited to this sort of diversion.

I do not glory in my loneliness. I wish I liked detective stories. I know dozens of people who find immense pleasure in them, and recommend their favorites to me with the assurance that here, at last, is a mystery I shall be unable to resist.

And I try to play the game. I certainly do not resist the mysteries.

I open them with anticipation; for the first 50 pages I may be enchanted; but then I lose interest, and if I finish the book it is from a sense of duty and not from any desire to know how it turns out.

There are critics who detest mystery stories. Probably the most furious, devastating onslaught ever made on them was by Edmund Wilson, who called it "Who Cares Who Murdered Roger Achroyd?"

Fare To Be Gobbled In One Gulp

Of course it had no effect, because the people who read mysteries rarely read highbrow critics like Edmund Wilson, and if they do so, they have enough resolution to disregard his opinion.

It is very likely that they enjoy both his condemnation and the stories themselves; this is an ambivalence of mind very common among readers, and mystifying to the more solemn sort of critic.

Very probably the reason I do not like mystery stories is that I am a slow reader. This is a disadvantage when one approaches fiction that depends on exciting incident for its effect; it is a very great advantage when one is reading a book that relies heavily on the depiction of character, or on psychological development.

A murder mystery ought to be read as fast as possible—in an evening, if it can be managed. I doubt if I could read "The Bobsey Twins at the Seaside" in an evening.

Furthermore, I dislike puzzles, and that is what a great many murder-mysteries are. The reader is given all the facts that are available to the Great Detective, and is then invited to pit his skill against the GD. This is hopeless, so far as I am concerned.

I have known a few detectives in my time—hard-working men, capable in running down a lost bicycle if it has not gone too far, and occasionally trapping a bootlegger—and there were never any orchid-fanciers, dope-takers or easy quoters of Latin classics among them.

I simply do not believe in the Great Detective; all too often I conceive a dislike for him, and hope he will fail to solve the case.

Unknown Victims, Smarty Detectives

The only detective in fiction I have ever truly liked was Mickey Spillane's Mike Hammer; he was an interesting character, and something of a crook himself. Furthermore, he was always getting into trouble over girls, which was refreshingly human for a GD.

It is not only the detectives who displease me in this class of fiction; it is the corpses. I really do not care for corpses, simply for their own sweet sakes. Unless I have grown to know the character who is killed, I am indifferent to his fate.

Understandably the writer of a murder mystery has little time to introduce his corpse; traditionally these books are shorter than ordinary novels, and the killing must come at the start.

I have read only one mystery in which the corpse maintains his interest, and that is "More Work for the Undertaker," by Margery Allingham; her detective, Albert Campion, is the usual smart-alec, but her characters have more life than is common in this sort of work.

Would it not be delightful if someone wrote a murder mystery in which it was the Great Detective himself who was killed? It would leave the rest of the characters to fight the criminals on reasonably fair terms.

I have had it in for Great Detectives since boyhood, when I read Sherlock Holmes, and failed utterly to fall under his spell.

Perhaps it was because I tried to practise his special method of deduction from observation, and found that there are usually five or six different, equally valid conclusions to be drawn from every set of facts.

Holmes, I decided, always played with loaded dice. Holmes is a pompous fraud.

Whatever the reasons, the pleasures of murder mysteries are not for me. The fault, as you see, lies in my lawless and sceptical temperament.

Ghost stories, now, are quite a different thing. I delight in them, and rather fancy myself as a connoisseur in this realm. I shall have more to say about them at another time.

ART IN REVIEW By ARTHUR CORRY

Point Group Advances; Kiwanis Promote Art

An exhibition of the Point Group at Victoria Art Gallery is one of the best this group has produced, and after it's closing on July 23rd will go on tour of Western galleries. Artistic quality in nearly all the artists has advanced amazingly since this group was formed a year ago.

Corry

Internationalism can be seen in the work of several painters, particularly that of Margaret Peterson, which by bold force and strong color makes an outstanding exhibit in itself.

I fear the average gallery goer will fail to appreciate "Gods of the Sun Dogs," radiant in shades of red and yellow, and "The Unborn III," with its very strong design, until time can be spent on study, or at least more than one quick trip through the gallery can be made.

PRIZEWINNER

Work that particularly appealed to me was Elza Mayhew's "Apostles," a small cast iron plaque, which would make an ideal model for a wall-sized sculpture composition. Virginia Lewis, with good color and composition has created "Ripe Growth" and "Still Life with Pineapple."

Employing heavy, rich color Michael Morris has painted "Arrival"; displaying his particular artistic skill in the use of casein. Richard Ciccimarra, winner of the 11th Annual Jury prize, enters his prize winner and a second composition of figures, which I believe superior to the former.

Sylvia Sutton's "Untitled" still life in grey and yellow, was a pleasant surprize. Using an interesting composition of houses around a green bay, Molly Privett painted an excellent "Roof Tops."

The most outstanding advance has been made by Nita Forest. Her "Man In Space" and "Young Girl," reveal her new phase and unfold her talent in the use of color. "Seated Woman," a dry brush sketch, is one of the finest I have ever seen.

Herbert Siebner has again outdone himself in creating "Zwei Reiter," an inspiring and powerful composition, certainly the finest piece he has completed in recent months.

"Three Men in the Snow," no doubt painted on a winter holiday, by Flemming Jorgensen, points to the direction in which this artist is progressing. His "Ancient Village" and "Fertile Land", are both very fine in color and composition.

* * *

A new and promising addition to Victoria's art scene has come into being this week, an Art Gallery sponsored by the Victoria Kiwanis Club. The purpose is to encourage local artists by offering exhibition facilities for the sale of original work, and to offer a further tourist attraction for this area.

VOLUNTEERS

A commission will be charged on all sales, and the profit, if any, will go for Kiwanis charities. Premises at 1676 Douglas Street were generously donated by Mallek's, and all members of the gallery staff are volunteer, with the collecting and hanging by Mr. Terry Borsman.

A standard of high artistic quality is to be maintained by having a jury or committee of three, Prof. Tony Emery, Mrs. Ina Uhthoff, and myself, to approve or reject all paintings and sketches, with no favoritism for any particular style.

The Gallery is to be opened from noon to 5.30 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and although the promoters have an eye for the tourist trade, I am sure a great many Victorians will support the Kiwanis and local artists by at least one visit, even if not to buy a painting.

Wilderness Travel Brings Fulfilment

The Lonely Land (McClelland & Stewart) is a report of a holiday from civilization.

The author, Siguord Olson, of Ely, Minn., is a former college professor who became a wilderness expert. In this book he describes a canoe trip with five widely travelled, internationally known companions across northern Saskatchewan.

His companions were Dr. Anthony Lovink, former Netherlands ambassador to Canada; Maj.-Gen. Elliot Rodger, of the Canadian Army; Eric Morse, executive director of the Associated Clubs of Canada; Dr. O. M. Solandt, chairman of the Defence Research Board, and Denis Coolican, president of the Canadian Bank Note Company.

Their journey, in three 16-foot Peterborough canoes, began at Ile a la Crosse, near the headwaters of the Churchill River, and ended 500 miles later at Cumberland House, on the Saskatchewan River, the oldest Hudson's Bay Company post.

This route was a favorite of the voyageurs returning from fur-trading expeditions.

The expedition was splendidly equipped by voyageur standards, with air mattresses, sleeping bags, insect repellents, dehydrated foods and excellent maps. But the travellers emulated the voyageurs in making their own camps, preparing their own food, shooting rapids or portaging around them and paddling their own canoes.

A report on such a trip could easily become a mere diary but Olson doesn't fall into this error. He aims to "give the reader some of the feel of this land as we saw it and to share with him some of its rewards and the sense of fulfilment that comes to men travelling in the bush together."

His aim has been largely fulfilled.

BUT SOME THINGS WELL DONE

Under-Done Characters Weaken Second Novel

A MAN POSSESSED, by Sidney Bigman. British Book Service (Secker & Warburg Ltd., London). $3.75.

Reviewed By W. Benzie

The title of this novel makes it clear at once with what sort of subject the writer is dealing. The lost soul, or the "mixed-up kid," is a topic which is indeed pertinent in our time, but is one which, unfortunately for Mr. Bigman, has many times been treated more competently than it is here.

The chief character is a young farmer, Charles-Henri Laplante, who, despite the prospect of a comfortable future on the land, is bedevilled by masochistic and sadistic impulses he finds impossible to control.

The hero, if he can be called that, spends much of his time in Quebec saloons with drunks and playboys as his companions, and from time to time turns his attention to a nymphomaniac or a homosexual.

PUT TO TEST

When he meets and falls in love with Denise who is a different girl, the novel approaches its natural climax because, of course, Charles-Henri is then put to the test, or rather his normality is.

The only relief the reader gets from the sordidness of this main character's city life is when the story moves to his home where we find his father and his sister, Clothilde, associated closely with the clean, healthy and earthy life of a Quebec province farm.

Incidentally, this contrast is handled very skilfully by Mr. Bigman.

Perhaps the most disturbing feature of this novel is the lack of authenticity in the character of Charles-Henri; this is unfortunate since the entire plot hinges on his abnormal desires to inflict pain on himself and others. His character does not grow on the reader as the story proceeds.

Also, the hero's closest friend, Jacques, who is his complete opposite and thus serves as a foil, is never fully developed as such and remains almost at the level of a casual acquaintance.

Charles-Henri, of course, is not outgoing by nature, and it is possible that the author was too anxious to depict this introversion or passivity of character, and as a result fails to be convincing.

Strangely enough the most expertly drawn character in the novel is Yolande, the 17-year-old nymphomaniac. There is, in this character, a pathos and an intensity seldom even approached in the rest of the book.

The novel is set in the province and city of Quebec, and the writer manages with apparent ease to recreate the mood of this rather strange idiosyncratic French Canadian society which is steeped in old customs.

Though lacking the tension, the insight and the elan of his first novel (Within These Boundaries), this new book by Sidney Bigman is, once again, reasonably well written, is well organized and, perhaps most important of all, is interesting enough to hold your attention through its 200 odd pages.

Fanaticism, Shyness Empress' Fatal Flaws

A Review by David Shapiro

Sad stories of the death of kings are the traditional stuff of tragedy. The fate of the last Empress of Russia unites two essential elements, the greatness of her fall and the fatal flaws of character that, while preparing the end, yet enabled her to meet it with a nobility that has redeemed her in much that has since been written.

This in outline is the moral of her latest biographer, Miss E. M. Almedingen, in The Empress Alexandra, 1872-1918 (Hutchinson), and the great merit of the book is that this case is put with sympathy but without concealing the need for argument. For Alexandra has not had a universally good press; while few would claim that she received her deserts, many have blamed her for the course that the Revolution took.

The scene of the early years is well set: the shy little girl born into the Hesse Darmstadt family, granddaughter of Queen Victoria, and a member of the international tribe of European royalty (abounding in horrid nicknames and inter-marriages that a genealogical tree would have helped to keep in mind); the sense of duty and the intense religious faith that for four years kept Alexandra, brought up as a Lutheran, from accepting Nicholas' proposal.

Her marriage in 1894 did nothing to change her shyness; her religious belief was merely transferred to another faith. This was poor equipment with which to help Nicholas face the problems of reigning in a rapidly industrializing autocracy.

We catch a glimpse of the isolation which Alexandra created by her gaucheness in her dealings with society and with the rest of the Romanov family, before Miss Almedingen hurries us on to the heart of the story, the haemophilic Tsarevich Alexis and the influence of Rasputin.

At this point the biographer has become a defender, concerned first to refute the accusations based on her personal relations, clearly quite innocent, with Rasputin. That refutation all can accept.

But what is one to make of the suggestion that "such an infamous accusation virtually cancels out what mistakes were made by Alexandra"? What evidence has been offered to show that in Rasputin we, too, should see in part "the workings of absolutely real virtue"?

NOT SO PETTY

It is hard to see in his healing of the Tsarevich, even if that be accepted as a fact, a necessary sign of virtue.

And these mistakes were not so petty as the scale of the biography might suggest; for they amounted to much pressure before the war, to prevent the creation of a more responsible government and, in the war, to considerable obstruction, both directly to the civilian effort, and to measures likely to maintain the initial popular enthusiasm.

Greater emphasis in this biography on the society in which Alexandra reigned, and which in her latter years she helped to govern, would not have reduced her stature or her interest.

Miss Almedingen would leave us with a story of personal tragedy, a belief in the virtue of atonement, but in doing so poses an essential question:

"They censured her for her obduracy in clinging to obsolete autocratic ideas, but where precisely is the difference between old autocracy and modern dictatorship, and has an agricultural worker of a collective Kolkhoz any more liberty than a mouzhik of, say, 1913?"

There is just enough evidence in this book, and much more elsewhere, to suggest that the real tragedy of Alexandra was that her conduct did much to narrow the choice for Russia to those two dismal alternatives.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

The supply of 19th Century stamps in choice condition has never been equal to the demand, especially from such popular countries as Canada and the U.S.A. Most of the superb copies are already in the big collections, and have long pedigrees.

When they come up at auction they can be traced, and usually are noted in the catalogues as "ex Ferrari" or "ex Lichtenstein collection" etc.

New finds of original material are now so rare that they have no effect on the market.

But there are still plenty of second-rate specimens floating around, and many of these can be patched up and skillfully doctored so as to be passed off on the unwary as Grade A copies.

Most of the repair experts have their headquarters in Europe, where they advertise openly in the trade magazines.

LIKE REAL McCOY

Their skill is amazing. Stamps with thin spots on the back are thinned down evenly all over, and re-backed.

A stamp, which originally had its margins trimmed off by the person mailing the letter, thus reducing its value by perhaps 90 per cent, undergoes the same treatment, and reappears with four beautiful large margins.

A stamp, which may be common on ordinary wove paper, but a rarity when printed on laid paper (i.e. a paper showing translucent parallel lines when held up to the light) can be thinned down and transferred to a new backing of laid paper.

Some of the less reputable dealers offer these spurious items as the "real McCoy" at bargain rates. If their wares were as good as they look there would be no need to sell them cheaply.

So watch your step if a stamp looks too good to be true—it probably is!

'ASK HENRY,' TO BECOME A BOOK

Eleven-year-old Henry Makow, who writes the "Ask Henry" column every Saturday in The Times, has been signed to a contract to write a book of his advice to parents.

The book will be published next year by Prentice-Hall Publishing Co. of New Jersey.

Meanwhile, the Ottawa boy whose bright idea brought him international fame, will be the subject of articles in forthcoming issues of Maclean's and Newsweek magazines.

Henry also has been invited to appear on another New York network television program, "To Tell the Truth."

Henry's column now appears in 35 newspapers in Canada and the United States.

MUSIC OF OLD MEXICO and up to date Latin melodies will help lend a Spanish theme to Victoria's 100th birthday celebrations next year — thanks to Hollywood's Don Diego and the mariachi singers. The troupe is well known in San Diego-Del Mar-Los Angeles area, where Tomas Hernandez, TV and movie actor, is the "Don Diego" of the Southern California Exposition. Hernandez is a true Spanish don, a descendant of the first king of the Canary Islands. He stands with his right arm around Sally Vining, "Fairest of the Fair" at San Diego, and her closest rival in the beauty pageant.

Hiring of U.S. Talent 'Commercial Necessity'

Decision to use mainly American "name" stars as entertainment attractions for Victoria's Centennial Year celebration was stoutly defended Friday by William Dow, co-ordinating secretary of the centennial committee.

Mr. Dow told a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce tourist industry group that the over-riding consideration in selecting talent was that it must be "commercial."

"We could invite all sort of top British show people," he said, "but the trouble is that almost nobody here has ever heard of them. They wouldn't attract the crowds."

Besides, he said, he couldn't see the reasoning in the point of view that it was alright to take U.S. tourists' money but not to hire American entertainers.

Noting that one of his critics, a columnist on the morning paper, was a New Zealander, Mr. Dow said: "I suppose he would like us to hire a troupe of Maori dancers. Well, we'll do that too, if the paper will guarantee to make up the loss such an attraction would run."

Among the possible entertainment attractions for the centennial, Mr. Dow said, was an Arthur Godfrey Talent Scouts TV show originating from Victoria.

He had lunched with Godfrey, Mr. Dow said, during a recent Hollywood trip and had found the TV star enthusiastic about paying a return visit to Victoria where he had stopped off briefly in the summer of 1958. Godfrey told him, he said, that "the gentility of the people" of Victoria had impressed him greatly.

Tentative arrangements had also been made, Mr. Dow said, with Walt Disney for a Disney show in the Arena next summer and participation in the Victoria Day parade by a selection of Disney characters.

"I hope we don't have to close the doors to these people just because they carry American passports," Mr. Dow declared.

Auditions To Be Held For Unique Play

Local actors and actresses interested in auditioning for Gore Vidal's fascinating comedy, "Visit to a Small Planet," will have an opportunity to read the play before attending Victoria Theatre Guild try-outs which will be held Aug. 5, 6 and 7 at a place and time to be announced later.

This play will open the Theatre Guild's 1961-62 season at Langham Court Theatre.

Copies are now available and will be up to Aug. 2, at the Theatrical Costume Studio, 1052-A Fort Street. Interested persons may take them out on a three-day loan during that time.

Upon returning the copies, actors may sign for the parts which interest them and an extract of the scenes to be used for auditions will be mailed to them together with the place and time of the audition.

Those interested in technical work should submit their names on returning their play copy.

The play, which will be directed by Margaret Hall, offers, on the production side, a challenge to imaginative and inventive technicians in all departments.

A fantastic story concerning the landing of a space ship on the lawn of a fine old Virginia home, it evolves as a delightful satirical comedy with almost vaudevillian touches.

Rehearsals are scheduled to start Aug. 14 and production dates are Sept. 29 to Oct. 7.

JANE'S PROBLEM

Famous Father Can Be Drawback

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jane Fonda, whose father Henry is a veteran star, says they get along well on every subject but acting.

"I'm a method actress," says the pretty Vassar-schooled performer. "My father can't see the method.

"I'm unhappy when I'm acting. He can't understand that, but then I suspect that calm exterior of his may hide some turmoil."

Jane, who bears a remarkable resemblance to her father, said she never realized that until she saw her first screen test.

"I was a little upset because he has great features — for a man."

But Jane only resembles Henry Fonda like many beautiful daughters resemble handsome fathers. She's all woman, even at 23.

Her father, she says, never has coached her or helped her get movie or Broadway jobs.

"I know he is proud of me and wants me to make it on my own," she says.

She adds, however, that she feels in competition with his fame at times.

"If I'm doing well, I don't feel I'm in competition. If I'm doing unwell, then I feel that I'm only here because I'm Henry Fonda's daughter."

She says her father and some of his friends, even those in the business, can't seem to separate the daughter and the actress.

"It wasn't so bad in my first picture, 'Tall Story,' where I played a wacky co-ed, but in my current one, 'Walk on the Wild Side,' I play a prostitute.

"I keep getting these remarks: 'Henry Fonda's daughter a prostitute!' They all think of me as the girl who was sent to the best schools—the girl next door in Brentwood. I'm an actress who wants to play anything."

WATFORD, England (AP) — Barbara Woodhouse, who has lectured, written books and made films on road safety for the last 13 years, was fined £2 Thursday for driving through a school crossing after being ordered to stop. It was her second conviction within a month, the court was told. June 19 she was fined £3 for speeding.

'AKIN TO MUSIC'

British Journal Pays Tribute To Players

LONDON (CP) — A Canadian journalist writing in The Guardian of Manchester deals out honors all round to the players in Canada's Shakespeare Festival at Stratford, Ont.

Top accolade from critic Christopher Dafoe goes to Douglas Rain, "probably Canada's best actor—of Shakespeare or any other playwright."

Referring to his role in Henry VIII, Dafoe says "Rain . . . gave us a Cardinal Wolsey that burned like a torch. His greatest speech — Farewell, a long farewell to all my greatness—was akin to music."

Of Kate Reid, playing Katharine of Arragon, Dafoe says, "if there is a better actress in Canada I have never seen her."

Douglas Campbell, who returned to Canada last April after a successful season with London's Old Vic company, gave a "well-thought-out and well-portrayed" interpretation of King Henry.

VIF: NOTE AND COMMENT

Two Important Plays To Get Festival Premiere

Speaking on the forthcoming presentation in the Vancouver International Festival of the three dramas—two new plays and Gelinas' "Bousille and the Just," the festival's artistic director, Nicholas Goldschmidt, said "our aim has always been to put drama on the same level as the other arts. This year we have taken another important step towards achieving this goal with three plays, the services of a first-class director like Herbert Berghof, and above all the opportunity for our resident actors to play an important part in our plan."

DIANA RICARDO
. . . former Victorian

Fourteen resident actors will join Uta Hagen and Fritz Weaver in the Festival's production of "Men, Women and Angels" in August. Director Berghof, who was in Vancouver to audition actors in June, has cast, amongst others, Harry Bailey, Ivor Harries, Derek Ralston and Diana Ricardo.

Mr. Berghof also chose another Canadian actor, Grant Reddick, to appear in this Giraudoux play, and Olga Bellin and Paul Roebling from New York complete the cast.

MANY MADMEN

This is the first of two North American premiers to be presented this year under the long-term plan for Festival drama in Vancouver. The other, "Do You Know the Milky Way?" will open at the International Theatre on August 18th and run till September 2nd.

The part of the psychiarist in "Do You Know The Milky Way?" will be taken by George Voskovec, who said in New York today that he has played many psychiatrists and madmen in the past.

Mr. Voskovec will replace Walter Slezak, originally cast in the production of "Do You Know The Milky Way?". Mr. Slezak is unable to fulfill the engagement due to a change in film scheduling.

George Voskovec's last performance as psychiatrist was in "Butterfield 8", the film which gave Elizabeth Taylor her Academy Award. In Vancouver Voskovec will also take the part of 12 characters who have influenced his patient's life in the past. The patient will be played by Hal Holbrook, famed for his "Mark Twain Tonight" show.

Mr. Voskovec has starred in many Broadway productions, television plays and movies. On Broadway, he appeared with Rex Harrison and Lily Palmer in "The Love of Four Colonels", and he played the part of the father in the London production of "The Diary of Anne Frank". Other Broadway appearances include "The Tenth Man", "His and Hers", "Big Fish", Little Fish", and "Uncle Vanya".

Sets for the two productions will be built in Vancouver by Gail McCance, who will also build the set for Britten's opera "A Midsummer Night's Dream". William Roberts will design the set and costumes for "Men, Women and Angels", Collin Low will design the set for "Do You Know the Milky Way?", and New Yorker, Lee Watson, will light both these plays and the opera, "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

* * *

At the moment, and up to July 22, Vancouver has become a centre for films, filmmakers and film-fans of all ages and nationalities during the fourth International Film Festival.

Special fringe events and children's showings have widened the scope this year beyond the normal showing of features and short subjects from over 30 countries.

Films for the younger set include a four part serial from Britain called "Ali and the Camel", the story of a young Libyan boy, his talking camel and the adventures they have searching for stolen jewels. Accompanying each episode of the serial will be short subjects from the United States, Poland, Rumania, Japan, Canada, Hungary and Great Britain.

Festival awards will be presented Thursday, July 20th, in the form of wood-carved plaques with a West-Indian motive designed by Canadian Artist, Bill Reid.

GREAT LOVER of the screen's silent era, Rudolph Valentino, is to be immortalized in a larger-than-life-size statue of the actor in his most memorable role, "Son of the Sheik," which will be erected in Castellaneta, his birthplace in southern Italy. Sculptor Luigi Gheno works on a clay model in his workshop in Rome.

'Save the Met' Campaign Starts

NEW YORK (CP)—Plans to tear down the venerable old Metropolitan Opera House at Broadway and 40th Street have given birth to a "Save the Met" movement among New York's opera lovers.

The six-storey brick building, scene of many a glittering opening night, is scheduled to fade from the New York society world when opera moves to the Lincoln Centre for the Performing Arts, now being built.

The Metropolitan Opera Association announced this spring that the 78-year-old operatic landmark is to be torn down in the winter of 1964-65 and replaced by a commercial building.

As far back as 1946 the association was talking of plans for a new building, saying the present one was inadequate in size, stage design and equipment. The 3,600-seat house was built in 1883 and rebuilt after a fire in 1892.

DIFFICULT DECISION

Association president Anthony A. Bliss says the directors had a difficult time making the decision to tear down the building because of "sentimental reasons" but that it was economically impractical to keep it alive.

But opera lovers are not taking the decision lying down.

Roy Anderson, music editor and writer from Mount Vernon, N.Y., has announced plans for a "Save the Met" foundation to keep the old company in operation—along with the new one.

"Thirty - four Metropolitan Opera directors should not be the ones to decide its future," he says. "This is a decision that 150,000,000 people should make — the audience of the Met's radio broadcasts."

Anderson placed ads in Sunday papers asking interested people to get in touch with him. He has received more than 200 replies.

BACKED BY SENATOR

New York State Senator MacNeill Mitchell, who played a leading part in the battle to save Carnegie Hall from destruction, is another backer of the move to save the Met. He said recently that the old opera house should be saved as an historic monument to culture.

Carnegie Hall, which is also to move its operations to Lincoln Centre, was to be torn down until a public drive led by Mitchell resulted in state legislation empowering New York City to buy the building and refurbish it.

Actor Makes Stiff Fight Against Type-Casting

TORONTO (CP) — After 15 years on the stage, Donald Harron is still preoccupied with trying to prove to himself that he's "the kind of actor I wanted to be."

At 36, the Toronto-born actor has had starring roles on Broadway and in London's West End, a movie contract and a succession of television parts in the United States and Canada.

His problem is type-casting. For years, a youthful, unlined face condemned him to a steady diet of juvenile leads, the handsome, boyish heroes whose main theatrical purpose is to get the girl before the last act ends.

Then he took the part of a neurotic Jewish boy in The Tenth Man and producers beat a path to his door with offers of similar roles.

"They've thrown the whole book of Freud at me," Harron complained as he came to Toronto to play a sensitive young school teacher on CBC television. "They don't see me any other way now."

TYPED AGAIN

He made "The Best of Everything" in Hollywood and hasn't even bothered to see the picture. The studio, he found, regarded him as half Leslie Howard, half Montgomery Clift.

"I don't want to be half one type and half another," he said. "I want to be a whole Harron. It's as simple as that."

In pursuit of the whole Harron he haggled when he was invited to play at the Shakespeare Festival in Stratford, Conn., this summer.

The original offer was Malcolm, the youthful prince in "Macbeth". Harron held out until they gave him the more mature role of Banquo, then settled for Orlando, the juvenilet lead in "As You Like It".

TAKEN TO TASK

Harron admits that his appearance, casual manner and limited range of expression have something to do with a producer's tendency to foist juvenile parts on him.

He tells a story on himself of an acid comment passed by Sir Tyrone Guthrie, under whom he worked in the Stratford, Ont., festival:

"I'm amazed, Harron, how far you've come with such a paucity of gesture."

Harron's stage career had a varied beginning. He started by writing for television, radio, "Spring Thaw" and school broadcasts, TV acting, acting in 50 New Play Society productions, National Film Board narration and revue production (his own).

Later he went to the Bristol Old Vic in England, voluntarily cutting his salary from $2,000 a month to $28 a week. Two seasons at Stratford, Ont., followed and then three plays in the West End and a succession of roles in New York, where he now lives.

Niven, Loren Teamed Up

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Sophia Loren and David Niven have been signed by Columbia Pictures to star in "Shocking," an original story by Carlo Ponti, who is producing the film.

The comedy is based on a travel agent who hates to travel, played by Niven. Miss Loren plays a voluptuous Italian who makes his household interesting. The picture will be produced in Britain this summer.

Brothers Battling For Canadian Title

WINNIPEG (CP) — The $30,000 Canadian Open golf championship will be won and lost today, with a pair of brothers from Texas standing an excellent chance of finishing one-two after an amazing display of par-shattering play in Friday's rain-soaked third round.

Jacky Cupit, 23-year-old rookie sensation of the pro tournament circuit from Longview, Texas, shot a six-under-par 64 for a leading 54-hole total of 199, while his big brother, 34-year-old Buster, who now plays out of Fort Smith, Ark., was seven under with a blistering 63 over the Niakwa Country Club course.

George Knudson, a product of St. James, Man., now playing out of Toronto Oakdale, added to the lustre of the day's play with a five-under 65 to remain in the chase with a three-round total of 205. He holds third place in the overall standings and has a strong chance to take low-Canadian honors and the big slice of a special $1,000 Canadian prize.

CASPER CARDS 64

Another red hot round was recorded Friday, with veteran Billy Casper, carding a 64—his best round of the tournament to date after an opening round 71 and a 73 Thursday—good enough to lift him into a tie for eighth with two-under 208.

After Friday's round, the final field was cut to 61 professionals and the four amateurs that qualified after 36 holes. Eleven of the pros are Canadians.

The raincoat-clad, umbrella-carrying galleries were thrilled by the uncanny accuracy of the Cupit brothers' iron play and putting.

Buster required 27 putts for his 33-30 round, sinking one from 30 feet and another from 40 among his seven birdies. On the par-five 12th, he chipped from 40 feet and saw the ball bounce twice and drop for an eagle-three.

Jacky, who used to caddy for Buster, had his irons working with uncanny accuracy and hit all but one green in regulation figures.

He birdied seven holes, one with a 25-foot putt from the edge of the green and another on a 12-footer.

Jacky, rated one of the brightest prospects to enter pro golf in years, and a money winner in 14 of his first 17 tournaments, said he and Buster have never been this close in a major tournament before.

COURTENAY—O'Bradovich!

Now there's a name for you.

The moniker intrigues me because it sounds as if its owner really belongs in a football training camp. It must be close to the ultimate in "Fighting Irish" names and strange would be the grid coach that wouldn't want to have a good look at a guy by the name of O'Bradovich.

If the name wasn't enough, the physical part of the young man called Ed O'Bradovich would certainly do the trick and coach Wayne Robinson has been staring hard and often at the import rookie cavorting through drills in the B.C. Lions' training camp, especially since O'Bradovich happens to be working in what threatens to be one of the Leos' trouble spots.

Fresh from the University of Illinois, the 21-year-old O'Bradovich steps into gridiron gear at 6-3 and—after sweating off some weight in the steam-cabinet weather of the past week—a mere 236 pounds. And big Ed is far from a slow-moving monster. One of the fastest linemen you'll find in Canadian football, he's surprisingly mobile and looks capable of tearing halfbacks into small pieces.

* * *

Working mostly in a defensive end position during training, O'Bradovich has proved tough to push out of the way, bowling over would-be blockers with mere flips of his powerful arms. The tousled-haired giant, O'Bradovich, who played fullback and halfback at college before winding up as an end, is also a good pass receiver and could fit into some of Robinson's offensive plans.

* * *

But right now the dead-serious young man, who has been taken in tow and dubbed "animal" by veteran halfback Sonny Homer, must loom largest in the defensive picture. Somewhat weak in the line in past seasons, the Lions appear to have plugged up most of the gaps in the forward wall. Quarterbacks who like to roll out and run are currently the vogue in the Canadian game and if the signal callers can't pick up yards through the middle against the Leos, they'll sure as shootin' be looking for room to run on the outside.

It is no secret that the Lions, with probably the strongest club in their history, are very conscious of potential trouble at their end positions. They lost three good ones through injuries last year. If O'Bradovich turns into a tiger on defence, it could make a big difference.

It was some sharp recruiting by the Lions that landed husky Ed in this Courtenay training camp. O'Bradovich, tossed for a loss by studies, flunked out after his junior year at University of Illinois and rules prevented American professional teams from signing him until his class graduated.

* * *

Two National Football League clubs were reported to be ready to pay him to sit out a year in order to sign him legally next season. But the Lions, unhampered by the same regulations, stepped in and Ed, electing to play rather than stay idle for a year, headed for Canada.

* * *

It was a similar coup that landed Willie Fleming, probably the best halfback in Canada, with the Leos and right now the signing of O'Bradovich looks like the best deal of the year in Canadian football.

The big end may take time to settle into a full-time spot. He missed his fourth year in college, which is the scholastic season gridders get the most intensive training and absorb the finer points that make it easier to step into pro ranks. He may not be an all-star this season but he's about as close to a sure thing for future greatness as you can find among pigskin rookies.

O'Bradovich is more than a name that sounds like football. It's also a name to remember.

MEN BEHIND THE DERBY

Solarium Corner

George Crombie has been working with and for youngsters a long time in his position as a shoe clerk in a Victoria children's shoe store. It's only natural, therefore, that he is interested in the children at the Queen Alexander Solarium.

GEORGE CROMBIE

And it didn't take him too long to become interested in the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Angler's Association, although he didn't join until this year.

Children and the VSIAA go hand-in-hand at this time of year when the VSIAA and Times stage the Solarium Derby, which will be held July 23.

George found out early that the derby has been a tremendous help in providing for the crippled youngsters at the solarium.

This year he's really gone to work to help the derby be a success, by selling tickets to Vancouver Island's biggest one-day fishing competition.

He will be happy to arrange to sell you a ticket if you phone him at GR 4-1994.

This Golfing Father Seems to Know Best

SEATTLE (AP)—He had to come from behind to do it but Ken Storey showed his son, Tom, that father knows best. He ousted Tom from the Pacific Northwest Golf Association tournament Friday.

Tom, 19, had a two-up lead at the halfway point in the 36-hole match, but his 50-year-old father put on a driving finish that found him winning one up at the finish.

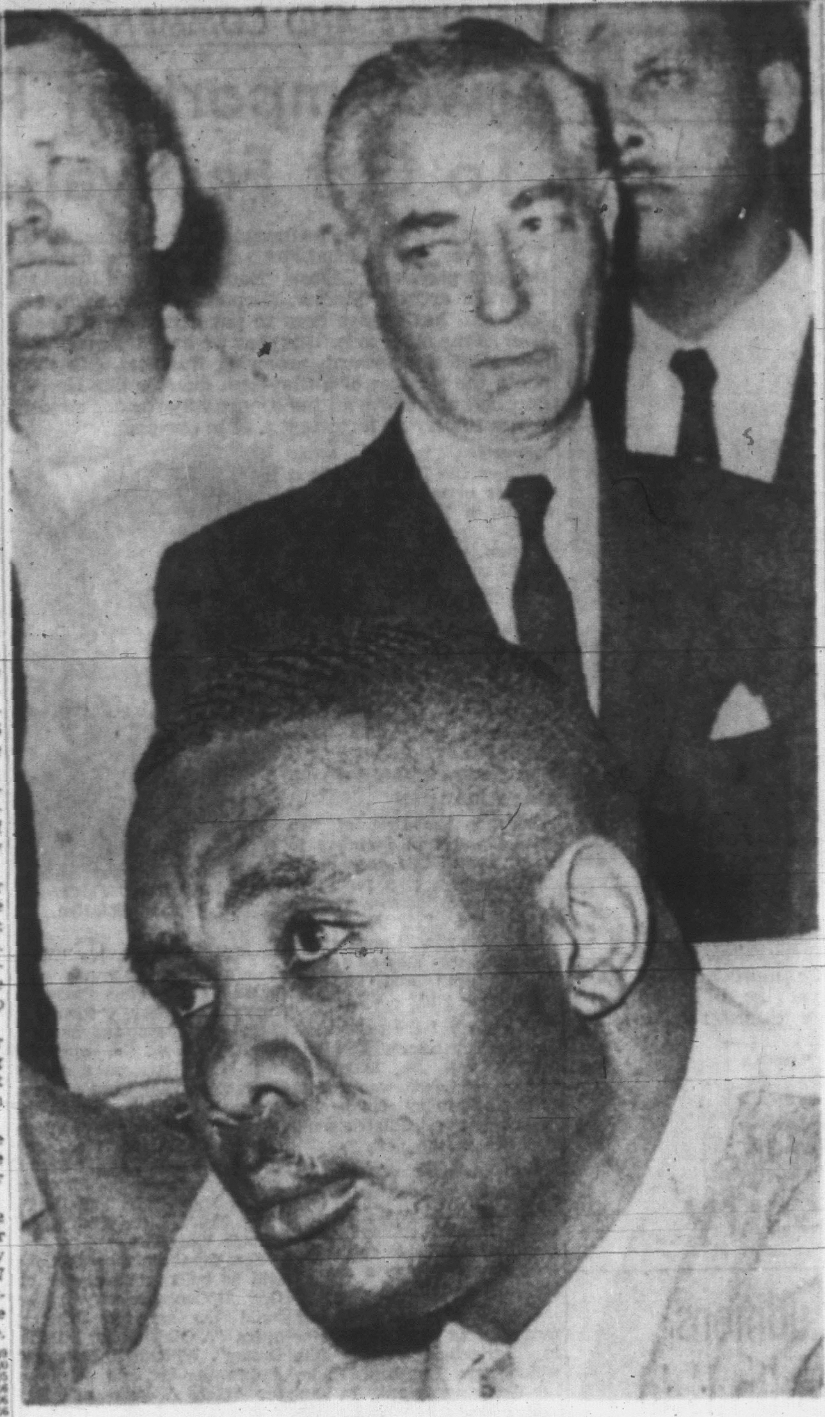
Today's championship round was to be an all-Seattle affair with Storey meeting Harry Givan, another 50-year-old who has won the tourney four times. Givan defeated Dick Price of Longview 5 and 4 in their semi-final match.

Peggy Conley, medalist in the junior girl's division, won the crown Friday. The Spokane Miss defeated defending champion Joan Edwards of Portland, 3 and 1.

The women's final today will pit Pat Lesser Harbottle, Tacoma, and 18-year-old Marianne Gable, Arcadia, Calif.

Mrs. Harbottle had to go to the last hole before she could dispose of Janet MacWha, Vancouver school teacher, one up in one of Friday's semi-finals.

In the other semi-final, Miss Gable scored a 5 and 4 victory over Claudia Lindor of Anacortes.



IN HOT WATER

Displaying no emotion, heavyweight Sonny Liston hears Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission suspend him indefinitely, but his manager, George Katz (directly behind him), compresses lips while he looks at commission members. See story below.—(AP Wirephoto.)

LISTON SUSPENSION . . . CAUSES REACTION

Sonny's Outlook Gloomy

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Charles (Sonny) Liston's Pennsylvania suspension caused a chain reaction today which left the top heavyweight contender without a ring in which to fight in the United States.

Liston's employment problem began Friday when the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission sidelined him "indefinitely" because of his two recent difficulties with the law.

The National Boxing Association, covering 47 states, quickly backed up the action of its Pennsylvania member. The 26-year-old Liston cannot get a license in NBA territory while the ban is in force.

The picture also was gloomy for Big Sonny in California, New York, and Massachusetts, which are not members of the NBA.

George Katz, Liston's newly-installed "clean" manager, could shed no light on plans or negotiations to keep his fighter sharp in non-title action. Katz was under orders from Liston's attorney, Morton Witkin, to keep his lip buttoned.

Pennsylvania officials declined to say how long Liston's "indefinite" suspension would last. The boxer was told, however, that it would be lifted "when you have rehabilitated yourself and shown you have respect for the law."

Palmer Takes Over Lead; Illness Sidelines Player

BIRKDALE, England (AP)—Arnold Palmer, former United States Open champion, fired a 69 over the par 36-36—72 Birkdale golf course today and took over the lead in the British Open by a single stroke with this afternoon's 18-hole final round remaining.

His 54-hole total was 212.

Palmer started the day in a tie for second place at 143 with Kel Nagle, the defending champion from Australia, but surged to the front on the out nine with a birdie-studded 32. He held a three-stroke lead after 45 holes.

His 212 total topped Dai Rees' 213 by a single stroke. The Welshman, who shared the lead with Harold Henning of South Africa after a first 36 holes at 142, had a 71 this morning. Henning zoomed to 75 and landed at 217, one stroke in front of Nagle.

The Birkdale course was playing beautifully despite the heavy rains of Friday which forced a postponement of the final two rounds until today. However, workmen with buckets and blankets, the latter used as blotters on the greens, were stationed at every hole.

Gary Player, the South African who bested Palmer in the Masters this spring, had to withdraw after five holes because of illness.

Christy O'Connor of Ireland failed to equal the course record of 66 when he missed the 17th green with his tee shot. His 67 gave him 215.

Friday's play was washed out in a torrential downpour that flooded fairways and greens and the organizing committee announced that unless final rounds could be completed today the championship would be declared void.

Campbell New Ruler Of Junior Shotsmiths

VANCOUVER (CP) — Terry Campbell of Vancouver won the British Columbia junior golf championship here Friday with an even-par 71 and a 54-hole total of 215.

The 18-year-old Campbell's three-over-par total in the four-day tournament was 13 strokes better than that of Gordie Robinson, also of Vancouver.

Robinson, defending champion, finished with rounds of 77-77-74 for 228.

Seventeen-year-old Earl Francis of Victoria was a surprise fourth. An eight handicapper, he had rounds of 76-76-78 for a 230 total.

Final scores of Island golfers:

Earl Francis, Victoria	76-76-78—230
Gar Smith, Victoria	78-85-81—244
Vic Derman, Victoria	80-85-83—245
Harry Hutchinson, Nanaimo	81-81-86—248
Mike Evans, Cowichan	81-86-82—249
Rick Kent, Victoria	74-92-88—254
Barry Wilson, Cowichan	83-81-90—254
Keith Swetman, Victoria	82-92-84—258
Rodger Bishop, Victoria	90-90-86—266
Ron Hungle, Nanaimo	92-88—No card
Gordon Koster, Nanaimo	101-104—No card
Jerry Koster, Nanaimo	92-94—No card

Fraser Beaten In Semifinals

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bill Picken defeated John Fraser of Victoria Friday in the semi-finals of the men's singles to make today's finals of the Vancouver Tennis Championships an all-Vancouver affair. Picken won 7-5, 6-3.

IN SOFTBALL RANKS

A Walking Story

It looks like a humdinger of a softball game coming up, which is probably just as well because Senior "B" League fans need something to make them forget Friday's contest.

Chinese Students, who made it into first place only this week, will attempt to hold off the former leaders, Maycock Optical, when the two teams clash at 6.45 p.m. Sunday. The brand of ball is expected to be considerably superior to that displayed Friday, when Half Way House walked to a 9-5 decision over Gorge Hotel.

The game lasted only five innings, but in that time a total of 21 walks were given up.

Lions Enjoy Brief Relief From Heat

By DOUG PEDEN

COURTENAY — The heat was off in more ways than one today in the training camp of the B.C. Lions.

Not only did temperatures drop back Friday into a reasonable range for a football camp, but coach Wayne Robinson, who had been making his muscular charges pant and perspire through twice-daily workouts, again skipped scrimmaging and let them escape with an afternoon drill session.

The same procedure was scheduled for this afternoon, which suggested that Robinson, without any scrimmages to help him make up his mind, wouldn't be trying to decide on any additional player cuts tonight.

CUTS COMING

But the heat will be turned on full blast here Sunday when the Lions line up for their annual inter-squad game. The word-hoarding coach has to start lopping some bodies off the Lions' roster, which this morning stood at 48. And he must decide quickly which players he will be taking to Toronto for next Thursday's pre-season clash with the Argonauts.

More than a few jobs with the Western Football Conference club are going to be at stake in Sunday's tussle.

Robinson, who hands out individual compliments about as often as a miser buys two-bit cigars, still isn't taking the bait when urged to name some leading candidates for steady employment.

TRIP TO TORONTO

"It's still a closely-bunched pack," he said, "and it is impossible to contemplate any units. Sunday's squad game will be important to the boys."

One reason why Robinson has been delaying action on slicing the roster—which must be down to 29 by early September, with a maximum of 15 imports—is that he's been playing checkers with muscular athletes and shopping for bargains.

Robbie, looking for men who can do a job and a half for one man's pay, has had some players, particularly linemen, working in two, three and even four positions. From the shuffling he may decide, for example, that rookie whiz Tom Brown can do a full shift at offensive guard and a half-time chore on defence at middle guard, that way he can get three jobs out of two men.

FIGHT FOR JOBS

For the fans, the most interesting of Sunday's battles for positions should be the quarterbacking duel between holdover Jim Walden and rookie Bob Schloredt, the University of Washington wonder.

Originally it had been expected that Schloredt would need at least a season to become an accomplished pro and that he would get the No. 2 signal-calling spot behind Walden and possibly nail down a regular defensive halfback spot.

Things may have changed on the testing ground of training camp. Walden injured his arm and Friday was still throwing only soft passes. Schloredt, a six-foot, 190-pounder who is a bruising runner, has been more accurate than expected with his tosses and has proved himself a polished "take charge" guy. He didn't spend any time on defence Friday and looked as if he could become the Lions' No. 1 quarterback by mid-season.

GEORGE AGAR

Agar Takes Job

The Los Angeles Blades hockey club today announced appointment of George Agar as head coach for the 1961-62 season.

Agar, 42, coached the Victoria Cougars of the Western League last season. The Victoria franchise was transferred to Los Angeles this year.

Agar, now holidaying in the Okanagan, was also reported in line for the post of director of all minor hockey in Saskatoon.

Both jobs were offered to Agar by Jim Piggott, Saskatoon contractor who holds the Los Angeles franchise.

BIG NIGHT ON MONDAY

Victoria's minor lacrosse kids have their night Monday.

The annual Greater Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association Jamboree will get under way at Memorial Arena at 6.45 p.m.

When it's over at about 10.30, Victorians will have had a good look at their lacrosse future and the association (it is hoped) will have enough money to partially finance another year of operation.

PLAYING BEFORE 14,000 AT WIMBLEDON ... ... ENOUGH TO START BUTTERFLIES FLAPPING

Even Old Hands Get Nervous Before Stepping on Centre Court

Victoria's Susan Butt, top-ranked women's singles player in Canada, is currently on a tennis tour in Europe. While on tour, Miss Butt is writing a series of articles for The Daily Times. Here, Sue writes from Wimbledon, England.

By SUSAN BUTT

WIMBLEDON, England — The last thing I expected to do at Wimbledon was to take on the first-seeded woman player on the centre court before 14,000 spectators.

First inkling I had that this might happen was when I saw the draw. I had a first-round bye, then I was to meet Leo Pericoli of Italy.

If I won, I would meet Sandra Reynolds of South Africa in the third round. She was runnerup to Maria Bueno in last year's Wimbledon final and she was this year's first seed.

Sure enough, I won the second round. On the morning of my match against Sandra, a friend rushed into my hotel room, newspaper in hand, saying, "Get up and curl your hair, you're third match on centre court."

I began to get nervous.

The number one seeds in the tournament are not always put on the centre court and I had hoped to play Miss Reynolds on court one, which seats 7,600, or the number two court, which seats 2,000.

We headed for Wimbledon at noon to practice and I began to get more nervous.

Two men's singles matches were scheduled on the center court before ours. Play begins every day at Wimbledon at 2 o'clock so the probable time of our match would be around 5.

After practising for half an hour I went to the dressing room to change into my center court clothes.

The referee's desk is in continuous contact with the players' dressing rooms by phone. In this way they keep a strict tab on players going onto any of the main courts so that there is no lull between the matches.

An hour and a half before we went on, they phoned to see if I was there.

Half an hour before the previous match ended, I received word to go to the official waiting room just off the center court.

There I was joined by Sandra, my opponent, and some officials.

The waiting room is very pleasant. But even the gay furniture and the great variety of picture magazines do little to soothe the players who are soon to step onto the centre court for the five matches played there daily.

I noticed that although Sandra is an old hand on the centre court, she also appeared very tense.

We were told that the Duchess of Kent had left the Royal Box for tea but she would probably return during our match. If she did we were to curtsy as we left the court. (The men players bow).

How well I recall that wait just off centre court. Luis Ayala of Chile was playing Billy Knight of England and as the score boomed out over the loud speaker above the roar of the crowd I realized that each time it brought me closer to the lion's den.

Soon Ayala was ahead 5-0 in the third set, having won the first two. Billy won the next two games, giving us a brief reprieve. But the next game was Ayala's and as the final storm of applause broke out from the 14,000 I ceased to breath.

When Luis and Billy entered the waiting room on the way to the dressing rooms, all hot and sweaty, the officials said, "All right girls, you're on!"

Out we walked with our umpire into the colosseum and, as always at Wimbledon, applause broke out as the players appeared.

I felt as if I was a grain of sand in a sea of faces which rose in great tiers all around. No matter which way one faced or turned I knew the blur of a thousand heads and bodies would meet the eye.

One player had said to me earlier, "Just don't look up." But even when I looked at the ground I couldn't get rid of the feeling of enclosure and oppression. I also had a strange feeling that I was being watched.

A full battery of linesmen and a full team of ballboys, perfectly trained, were waiting for us.

Toss was won by Sandra and she chose to serve.

So I stepped onto the centre court of Wimbledon on the fifth day of matches for the three-minute warm-up. I wondered if I could remember how to play tennis.

Second ball I hit ricocheted off the wood of my racquet high into the air. So did a couple more during the warm-up.

Sandra's first serve was an ace.

However, she also was making errors and after a somewhat erratically-played match she won 6-3, 6-2.

I regretted later that I had not calmed down and taken advantage of the numerous game points I had throughout the match and had not won.

After every decent rally a round of deafening applause was given. After every error a gigantic moan sounded.

But soon it was over and we were the ones making our way off the court on that hot and sunny day.

Oh, yes, we curtsied to the Duchess of Kent and company in the Royal Box on the way off. She had returned from tea.

Wendy's the Busy Gal Chasing Tennis Triple

Wendy Cox was to be a rather busy girl this afternoon.

The racquet-wielding secretary was slated to compete in three finals in the city open tennis championships at Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club today.

With her berth in the women's singles final already nailed down, on Friday she partnered two other players to spots in the women's and mixed double finals.

Miss Cox and Ed Hedley beat Vivian Wilkinson and George MacMinn 6-3, 6-2, to enter the mixed doubles final against Diana Lawrence and Ray Aldeguer, who eliminated Peggy Wright and Vince Clarkson, 6-1, 6-4.

STRAIGHT SET SWEEPS

Miss Cox and Maureen Hibberson ousted Miss Wilkinson and Carol Jones, 6-1, 6-2, to enter the doubles final against Tommy Elmsley and Miss Lawrence, who defeated Margaret Lyons and Elsie Cooley, 6-4, 6-1.

It all added up to a hard afternoon today. Miss Cox was slated to start competing at 1 p.m. and continue through the afternoon until her final match, due to begin at 4.30 p.m.

In the men's events, meanwhile, only Aldeguer was slated to compete in more than one match.

He and partner Ron Mitchell, who stopped Doc Miller and George MacMinn, 7-5, 6-3, were to play Art Ngai and Jack Cosar, who eliminated Warren Cameron and Jack Parker, 10-8, 6-4.

Aldeguer also was competing in the mixed doubles, and narrowly missed competing in the singles as well when he was upset by Eric Seefred in the semifinals Thursday.

Bye Bye BOGIES

by BOB ROSBURG

Playing Position

Almost any shot can be played two ways.

Playing for position in golf is almost as important as it is in billiards. Too few weekend golfers do it. Nearly every hole above par 3 offers two or more ways it may be played from the tee and fairway. In fact, almost any shot can be played two or more ways.

Before shooting from the tee, the golfer should study the topography of the next hole carefully. He should make up his mind from what spot on the fairway he can get the best second shot, then aim for that spot. Too many are content just to get a straight shot down the fairway, without regard to bunkers around the green or conformation of the ground.

The architect who designed the course set about to lure the golfer into trouble. Unless you study his work well beforehand, he will achieve his aim.

It may seem overly ambitious or even presumptious for a weekend golfer to aim for a small patch of fairway, yet if he does this consistently he has a better chance of achieving a good lie on his second shot than if he just fires away at random.

GARY LUND MEMORIAL

Former Winners In 100-Mile Race

Two former champions are expected to be on hand when the annual Gary Lund memorial bicycle race is held July 23 over a 100-mile course.

The race, as usual, will start at Qualicum and end at Portage Inlet. Riders should finish up about 4¾ hours after the 6 a.m. start.

Gary McKay and Jack Ferguson, 1960 and 1959 winners, respectively, are expected to be among the leaders when the riders hit the home stretch, but they may get some stiff competition from a number of other pedal-pushers.

McKay will be the top local hope. Ferguson, the Vancouver star, won the 100-mile Western Canada road championship in Calgary July 2 and would dearly like to regain the trophy that McKay took from him last year.

Other local riders entered so far are Bill Wild and Don Rosenberg. Wild won the 40-mile Saanich loop race last month.

Norm Kendall of Vancouver, another highly-rated provincial cyclist, is also listed among the early entries.

Victoria Pair Named To B.C. Cricket Side

The British Columbia Cricket Association has announced selection of 12 cricketers—including two from Victoria—to represent B.C. in the inter-provincial championship to be held in Calgary July 30-Aug. 6.

Teams from six provinces will compete — B.C., Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec — for the trophy now held by Ontario. The eastern province defeated B.C., Alberta and Manitoba in the last tournament, held in Vancouver in 1955.

B.C. team members from Vancouver are Bob Quintrell, captain; Dave Foster, Wallace Tait, Lloyd Edwards, George Nugent, Eric Gledden, Peter Snead, David Block, R. Jackson and Ray Robins.

Victoria players are Paul Gadban, vice-captain, and bowler Jim Richards.

A 13th member will be named later.

WEEK IN U.S.

Steels, Autos Record Gains, Employment Up

NEW YORK (AP)—Signs of a rising tempo of business ahead came from the steel and auto industries this week and in statistics out of Washington on gains in employment and production.

Encouraging word on sales and profits came from American Telephone and Telegraph Company, International Business Machines Corporation, Du Pont and other important companies.

The traditional summertime slump in steel continued, yet a rush or orders for future delivery greatly heartened steelmen.

Figures for the holiday-shortened Fourth of July week reflected a 7.6-per-cent cut in output from the preceding week to 1,779,000 tons, a six-week low.

But Iron Age, a trade publication, reports orders for August are 20 to 25 per cent above comparable advance data for May and June, both fairly good months.

PRODUCTION SLOWS

Although auto production was tapering off as the industry neared the end of 1961 model runs, the sales picture was bright.

Turnover by dealers in June, while down nine per cent from a year ago, saw 538,746 cars find buyers, slightly behind May. General Motors said the month was the best of the 1961 model run, aided by a surge in the last 10 days.

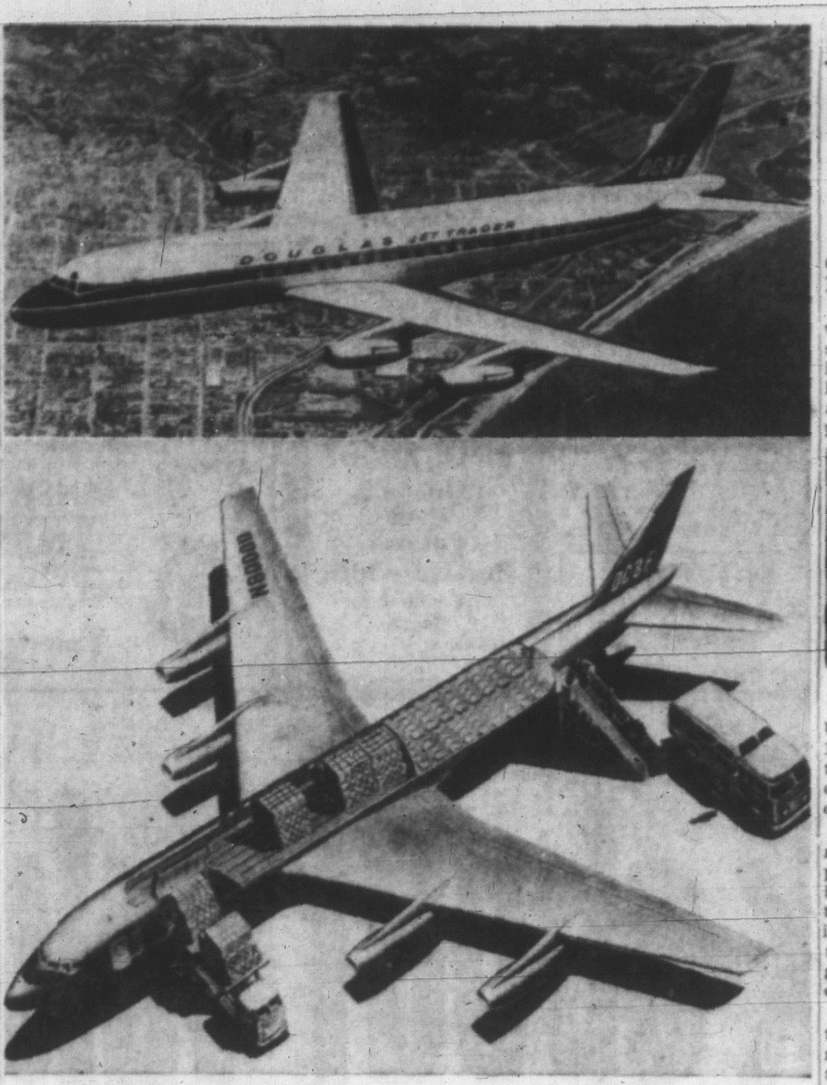
In Washington, the labor department said that as of mid-June, non-farm payrolls were up 600,000 from May 15, including a 240,000 rise—twice the expected seasonal increase—in factory employment.

The average work week lengthened to 40.1 hours, a gain of .4, and average blue-collar wages in manufacturing rose to $94.24, a record.

Still, with employment at 68,706,000, the ranks of job-seekers, reinforced by newly-graduated high school and college students, stood at 5,580,000, including 900,000 persons out of work 27 weeks or longer.

Gloom persisted in the railroad industry as freight traffic sagged—partly because of spreading vacations in the coal mines—and one major line foundered in bankruptcy court.

The casualty to pressure of rising debts was the New Haven Railroad, a 1,600-mile, 132-year-old line serving three New England states and New York.



PACKAGES AND PASSENGERS — A new idea in the jet transportation field is the DC-8F Jet Trader. As cutaway drawing shows, it will combine cargo and passenger carrying abilities. As the first pure jet available for mass cargo movement, the Jet Trader will fly cargo at half the current rate and cut passenger fares by 20 per cent, say its designers, Douglas Aircraft Corp. The DC-8F will carry—at over 575 m.p.h.—up to 52,000 pounds of cargo and 54 passengers in separate sections. Accommodations will be identical with regular passenger planes. First flight of Jet Trader is scheduled for August, 1962.

TESTATOR HAD A THEORY

Court Upholds Trust Fund To Wreck U.S. Finances

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal court of appeals has upheld the legality of two 500-year trusts estbalished by a lawyer in what the government claims is a move to wreck the nation's financial structure.

Five other trusts set up by 80-year-old Jonathan Holdeen, of Pine Plains, N.Y., were declared invalid by the courts earlier on the basis of their conflict with the income tax laws.

The ultimate beneficiary of the two valid trusts in the year 2444 is the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The government contended Holdeen set up the trusts to prove economic theories about vast accummulations of money through compound interest payments. Such a vast fortune would be amassed, the government said, that the tax base of the nation would be destroyed.

Although no one, not even lawyers for Holdeen, has estimated the possible value of the trusts if all seven were to continue to maturity, one fiscal expert testified in a lower court some time ago that five 1,000-year trusts would be worth about $9,988,380,000,000,000 (nine million, nine hundred and eighty-eight thousand, three hundred and eighty billion dollars).

Holdeen, who has written several books on his financial thinking, said he set up the trusts "to teach a lesson in saving as Benjamin Franklin had attempted to do."

The appeals court ruled that in the case of Holdeen's two remaining trusts, he guarded against illegality when he included a provision giving immediate charitable beneficiaries all other income "which is not lawfully subject to accumulation."

BUSINESS BRIEFS

CALGARY (CP)—Home Oil Company Ltd. announced Friday that completion of a $14,000,000 sale of 6⅛ per cent secured bonds to two New York insurance companies.

Subscriptions by Prudential Insurance Co. for $9,800,000 and by Mutual of New York for $4,200,000 will mature in 1976. Proceeds will be used to retire bank debt and increase Home Oil's working capital.

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's trade gap—the difference between exports and imports—fell sharply to £41,000,000 ($115,000,000) last month, according to board of trade figures issued Friday. The gap at the end of May stood at £82,000,000 ($230,000,000).

CANADIAN BUSINESS WEEK

Prices, Volume Took a Beating

This week's stock market may be summed up in one word — poor.

Trading came in dribs and drabs, prices declined and the exchange's industrial index fell close to 10 points. Trading seemed hesitant because of developments at Ottawa and possibilities of an election.

All industrial groups fell heavily on the week. Volume hovered around the 7,789,000-share mark and didn't rise above 2,000,000 shares in a single day.

One other reason for the decline was lack of leadership from Wall Street. Without this, said one brokerage house official, the Toronto market is "skittish."

"New York has been quiet for the past month," he added, "and Toronto has followed suit."

The industrial index fell two or three points on every day except Tuesday, when it seemed to be recovering. However, it promptly reverted to its "death warmed over" costume on Wednesday.

Refining oils, utilities, steels and papers suffered most. In the utilities, CPR and Power Corporation both lost a point or more, while smaller losses went to Gatineau Power, Northern Ontario Natural Gas and Consumers Gas. Consumers Gas and CPR both turned over more than 22,000 shares and finished on the weekly "most active" list.

Worst loss in papers went to Consolidated, down more than two points. Others in the group had fractional losses, including International, Price Brothers, MacMillan Bloedel and Great Lakes.

Among steels, Steel of Canada, Page-Hersey, Canada Iron and United Steel all declined but not drastically. Volume was especially heavy in the steels compared with the rest of the market.

In pipe lines and refining oils, Alberta Gas Trunk had the biggest fall, down three points, while Imperial Oil fared little better. Other losses went to Pembina, Canadian Oil, Alberta Gas, Supertest and Interprovincial.

Base metals market remained true to its code and followed the industrial lead—it sank.

The senior list showed Falconbridge down two points after it reached a new high of 63¾ earlier in the week, while other smaller drops were registered by Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting, Mining Corporation, Ventures and International Nickel.

On the speculative list, Nickel Rim, Belcher, Anacon and Bouzan all lost ground in the range of a few cents.

Golds were lethargic.

Trading in western oils lagged as prices gradually declined. Central Del Rio, Home B, Hudson's Bay Oil, Pacific Petroleum and Calgary and Edmonton all lost ground.

Index changes at Toronto: Industries down 9.31 to 584.69; golds up .69 to 83.64; base metals down .80 to 198.38 and western oils 2.98 to 92.07.

Toronto dollar value was $35,864,119 compared with $36,844,494.

Index changes at Montreal: Banks down .41 to 64.62; utilities down .8 to 145.2; industrials down 4.6 to 320.4; papers down 13.8 to 497.7 and golds up 1.73 to 81.83.

Volume at Montreal in industrial shares was 627,577 compared with 703,000 last week and 1,184,678 mining shares compared with 1,081,694.

Of the 397 issues traded, 82 advanced, 161 declined and 154 were unchanged.

Smelter Profits Down $1 Million For Six Months

MONTREAL (CP)—Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada Ltd. had estimated net profit in the six months ended June 30 of $11,414,000, or 70 cents a share, compared with $12,882,000 and 79 cents in the corresponding period last year.

The reduction of 11 per cent in net profit, the six-month report says, was caused primarily by decrease in lead and zinc prices, partially offset by a substantial increase in fertilizer sales.

BUSINESS VIEW

U.S. Order Jolts Canada's Oilmen

By GORDON BELL
Times Business Editor

A bright red stop light was flashing Friday on Canadian oil exports to the U.S. by Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall.

It couldn't have come at a worse time for Canadian oil shareholders who have been hopefully saying that the market had finally bottomed out and oil shares could be expected to improve.

Gordon Bell

Secretary Udall said Canada has "met all its targets for increased oil markets in the U.S.A. this year" and said it is time Canadian exporters took steps to restrain shipments.

UDALL

Canada's oil exports to the U.S. rose from an average 120,000 barrels daily in 1960 to an average 155,000 barrels daily in the first five months of this year.

The Udall statement will not come as any great surprise to the oil industry which has had plenty of warning that the politically-potent U.S. independent oil producers were not going to tolerate too great an increase in Canadian oil imports.

What is now made clear is that from this point on the national oil policy of production will have to be met mostly by domestic consumption.

TIED TO ECONOMY

The health of the Canadian oil industry is thus tied even more closely to the health of the Canadian economy as a whole—particularly the industrial heart of Canada in Ontario west of the Ottawa Valley where the Canadian-only "oil-shed" begins.

Average daily Canadian production is now over the 600,000-barrel mark but there is no hope of reaching the 640,000-barrel mark projected for year end under the national oil policy.

Mr. Udall's warning to Canadian oil exporters is certain to revive the activities of the Montreal pipeline advocates. They will point out that without assurance of greater gains for Canadian oil in the U.S. the national oil policy target of 800,000 barrels average daily production by 1963 has no chance of being reached.

It becomes clearer now that the national oil policy as a voluntary form of regulation cannot be successful without the complete co-operation of the U.S. government.

The major oil companies cannot provide markets in the U.S. for Canadian oil except at the pleasure of the American government. It is the independent U.S. companies, not the majors, who largely dictate oil import policy — this is a political thing, a matter of votes.

Unless there is a massive economic resurgence in the U.S. and Canada before the end of 1963, sufficient to permit much heavier oil exports to the U.S. and to provide an enormously increased Ontario oil consumption, the Montreal pipeline will have to be built.

Ore else the government will have to default on its premise to achieve the 800,000 barrels daily production rate.

Six top Wall Street analysts surveyed by the New York Times looked for a stock market rise this summer with four of the six linking the rise to inflationary forces in the American economy.

The plants of major chemical users and producers in B.C.—including the British American Paint Company plant at Victoria—will be visited by members of the Canadian Tariff Board the week of July 24.

The board's public hearings in Ottawa to review Canadian chemical tariffs have been suspended for the summer to allow members the opportunity to get first-hand knowledge of the problems of the industry.

The hearings will be resumed in September with at least 20 sessions to go before work on recommendations is started.

Early statistics indicate that this could be one of the best years for a long time for the B.C. caned salmon industry.

The pack to the week ended July 8 totalled 118,466 cases, compared with an average pack of 93,038 cases for the same period in the past six seasons.

Short Term Bond Issue By Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Advance notice of new short-term bond issues next week to raise $175,000,000 in cash for the government was given Friday by Finance Minister Fleming.

Details of two bond issues will be announced Tuesday.

The $175,000,000 will provide part of the government's 1961-62 cash needs, estimated in the June budget at $980,000,000 not counting what may be needed to implement the policy of pushing down the exchange value of the Canadian dollar through the exchange fund.

The announcement also said the Bank of Canada will take up another $175,000,000 of the new isues in exchange for its holdings of three-per-cent bonds maturing next Dec. 1.

Gas Up, Oil Down In B.C. for 1961

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia natural gas production in the first five months of 1961 was ahead of last year's level, but oil production fell behind.

However, sales value of both products, as well as that of gas by-products is greater than last year.

Natural gas production in May totalled 8,600,000,000 cubic feet, against 6,900,000,000 in May, 1960.

Crude oil production in May was 40,028 barrels, well below the 56,276 barrels in May last year.

Miss Universe Pageant Tonight From Miami

Raymond Massey as Abe Lincoln; Fabulous Fiorello on 20th Century

By LESLIE MILLIN

(Pinch-hitting for vacationing Times TV Editor, Phil Lee)

Picking the next Miss Universe out of a gaggle of 15 strong contenders is the kind of task that many a man dreams deliriously of, and tonight at 10, viewers have the opportunity of second-guessing the judges to the heart's content as the Miss Universe Pageant comes from Miami Beach to Victoria via channels 7, 11, and 12.

Beginning with a parade of the contestants in their native costumes, the pageant will require the girls to compete in three categories — native costumes, swimsuits and original evening gowns.

John Daly and Jayne Meadows will conduct interviews with the contestants backstage, and Johnny Carson will be master of ceremonies.

On hand to perform the coronation ceremony on the fortunate fragment of femininity that wins the approval of the judges will be Linda Bement, last year's Miss Universe.

The program takes 90 minutes altogether.

Raymond Massey, one of Canada's more famous acting exports, appears in perhaps his best-known role tonight as Abraham Lincoln in the biographical movie "Abe Lincoln in Illinois."

Ruth Gordon, Gene Lockhart and Mary Howard also star in this young-manhood tale of the Great Emancipator.

Twentieth Century presents "La Guardia," with film clips of the fabulous Fiorello during his time as mayor of New York City during the troublesome era of the depression and the Second World War.

Starting at 6.30 on Channel 7, the show will feature authoress Fanny Hurst and some of her recollections of La Guardia. That's on Sunday evening.

TONIGHT

5.00: Channel 4: Wide World of Sports presents Arnold Palmer and Jim Simpson reporting on the last three holes of play in the British Open golf tournament at the Royal Birkdale golf course in Southport, England.

5.15: Channels 7, 11, 12: $100,000 is guaranteed to the winner of the $140,000-added Gold Cup at Hollywood Park for three-year-olds and up.

7.00: Channel 4: From New York City comes a 10-round, middleweight bout between Rocky Fumerelle, of Buffalo, New York, and Don Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah. Neither is rated, but both have good fight records.

7.30: Channel 8: Tracy Steele is hired by a firm of lawyers in Los Angeles to locate a missing girl, in Hawaiian Eye.

7.45: Channel 4: George Nenezian, state amateur bowling champion of Florida, meets Phil Polinski, his opposite number from Nebraska, on Make that Spare.

8.30: Channel 8: Luke, the Rifleman, tracks down a gunman and finds that the "Strange Town" in which the gunslinger takes refuge is controlled by the pistolero's brother.

9.00: Channels 6, 2: Charles Dickens classic story, "A Tale of Two Cities," in a movie version, with Ronald Coleman, Edna May Oliver, and Reginald Owen.

9.00: Channel 8: Naked City tells the story of a deranged artist in "Landscape with Dead Figures," which sounds like the title of quite an entrancing painting. Police drama, one hour long.

9.30: Channel 5: "Foreign Policy at Home and Abroad" is the topic of a brief talk by United States Supreme Court Justice William Douglas on Nation's Future. After he has made his address, Mr. Justice Douglas will answer questions by members of the studio audience.

10.00: Channel 4: The Dance Marathon, that strange phenomenon of the 20's, lives again briefly on Roaring 20's when a marathon dancer becomes involved in blackmail, along with a few policemen.

Channels 7, 11, 12: Miss Universe Pageant, from Miami Beach, Florida, lasting 90 minutes.

10.35: Channel 5: Open End discusses the "Crisis in Our Colleges," with Dr. John Gardner of the Carnegie Foundation and other leading educators.

10.45: Channel 8: Racing highlights with Jack Short reporting from Exhibition Park.

11.10: Channel 6: Raymond Massey stars in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," the 1940 biographical history of Lincoln's young manhood. Ruth Gordon, Mary Howard.

11.30: Channel 11: Wholesome, nightmare-type melodrama with "Dead Man's Eyes," a 1944 horror film, with Paul Kelly, Jonathan Hale.

11.40: Channel 12: Almanac records by newsreel the 1955 exchange visits of farmers between the United States and the U.S.S.R.

SUNDAY

9.00: Channel 11: Camera Three looks at the approach to child-raising and education taken at the Summerhill school in England.

9.30: Channel 12: The Marquette Players present part three of the "Coventry Mystery Cycle" on Look Up and Live, using medieval techniques to present this mystery play of the Middle Ages.

Crowning the new Miss Universe at the Miss Universe Pageant tonight will be reigning queen Linda Bement, seen above in her regal regalia. John Daly will be host, Jayne Meadows will act as hostess, and Johnny Carson will be master of ceremonies, Channel 12, at 10 tonight.

10.25: Channels 11, 12: The Cleveland Indians take on the Minnesota Twins at Municipal Stadium in Cleveland, with Dizzy Dean and Pee Wee Reese reporting the action. Live.

12.00: Channel 4: Edgar McInnis, host of the Commonwealth of Nations series, features the Colombo Plan on this week's offering.

2.00: Channel 5: Armchair Theatre presents Jane Austen's classic, "Pride and Prejudice," the 1940 version, with Sir Laurence Olivier and Greer Garson.

3.00: Channels 6, 2: Making its debut is Canada File, a series of programs from Vancouver, Winnipeg, Ottawa and Montreal on public affairs. First offering is "Eye to Eye —The Negro in Winnipeg."

Channel 11: Errol Flynn, Basil Rathbone, David Niven and Donald Crisp make up a goodly selection of stars in "The Dawn Patrol," a 1938 drama about the First World War.

3.30: Channel 4: Robert Herridge's music program features the musical adaptation of "Riders to the Sea," John Millington Synge's classic short tragedy set in the Aran Islands, off the west coast of Ireland, with Liam Gannon and Helena Carroll.

4.00: Channel 4: Eichmann on Trial, an analysis of the trial of Adolf Eichmann, former Nazi officer in charge of the extermination camps during the Second World War.

Channel 5: Andre Kostelanetz conducts the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in an hour of great music.

5.00: Channels 7, 11: From Cambridge University, England, Accent brings an interview with Sir Charles Percy Snow, well-known English novelist and scientist, who discusses with Alexander Kendrick the differences between American and English education, the role of the scientist in government, and the history of Cambridge University.

Channel 12: Jon Provost as Timmy stars in another round of Lassie.

Channel 5: President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan Meets the Press in Washington, D.C. In color.

Channel 8: Time to Remember presents "Liberation," in which a Frenchman speaks of life under the German occupation of France. Pierre Chaminade narrates.

6.30: Channel 5: News Analysis has a program on the present New York City political situation, as well as an assessment of the political and military problems posed by a divided Berlin.

Channel 7: Twentieth Century presents "La Guardia," the tale of the fabulous Fiorello who was mayor of New York City from 1933 through to 1945. Partially consisting of film clippings, it also has Fanny Hurst recalling some of the little anecdotes that characterize Fiorello La Guardia's term in office.

7.00: Channel 11: Richard Green stars as Robin Hood in "Sherwood Forest," which this week uses the plot of the exact double used by the scurvy sheriff of Nottingham in an attempt to trap Robin.

7.30: Channel 13: Jackie Coogan, Allen Jenkins and Roy Gordon star in "Honorary Degree," this week's story on Damon Runyon.

8.00: Channels 6, 2, 7, 11, 12: Ed Sullivan's guests tonight include Bob Newhart (of Button-Down Mind fame), Danny Thomas, Joey Forman, Mickey Rooney; singers, organists, and Bernard Lee, a fire dancer.

9.00: Channel 5: Sunday Mystery Theatre presents "Murder Me Nicely," a drama set in the classroom, with Mark Goddard and Everett Sloane in the leading roles of the star student and the bitter teacher. In color.

9.30: Channel 4: Asphalt Jungle tells a touching tale about the man who goes out on a limb to prove that his old buddy isn't a crook in "The Friendly Gesture."

10.00: Channel 5: John Newland and Loretta Young star in "Unconditional Surrender" on the Loretta Young show, all about marital problems and how to hang onto an itchy-footed husband.

10.30: Channels 6, 2: Art in Action has host Professor George Swinton talking about decorative effects in Chinese landscape painting.

11.30: Channel 4: Yesterday's Newsreels shows life of King Albert of Belgium during the First World War, and his trip to the United States.

Gobel Rides Again

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A Madison Avenue squabble over a TV time slot could catapult George Gobel into the toast of Broadway next fall.

George filmed a pilot film last winter for a comedy series, and a sponsor bought it almost as soon as the film was developed.

"The sponsor even had a time of their own available," says Gobel. "If ever a series was set, this was it. We were to be on ABC-TV Thursday night between Fred MacMurray and The Untouchables.

"But then someone in the network thought my show was too similar to MacMurray's. I played a bachelor uncle who helps his widowed sister raise her kids. Fred plays a widower who also raises a family.

NO PLACE TO GO

"The argument makes sense except it comes from the same jokers who programmed three westerns in a row. So I wound up with a TV series that has no place to go — even if it's bought and paid for."

But don't feel sorry for lonesome George. He will be the star of Let It Ride, a hit Broadway musical even before it opens next October.

"The advance sale from just theatre parties alone is $1,200,000," says George, who owns a healthy piece of the show. "It's gonna cost us $400,000 to put it on, so I guess we got a profit already."

The musical is based on the famed farce of 25 years ago—Three Men on a Horse.

Gobel, of course, plays a mild-mannered greeting card poet whose hobby is picking horses — always 100 per cent right.

Sam Levene, recreating his original role, will be the gambling boss.

Gobel, who can really sing, previewed some of the Livingston and Evans score for me the other day.

"I don't excite easy, but I guess I'm excited about this," says George. "I've never been on Broadway before, but I figure I got to keep expanding in this business."

Spike Jones Returns for Summer; Canberra Arrival Monday Night

GETTING THE PICTURE here on a bear's skull is George Swinton, Winnipeg artist and professor of art who is also the host and instructor on CBC-TV's Art in Action series. The skull is just one of many nature objects that Professor Swinton uses as painting subjects.

Invasion of New England by the black-jacket-and-boots motorcycle set for their annual New England Rally and tour is chronicled this week on Sports Spectacular, featuring both action and interviews.

Laconia, New Hampshire, a small town north of Concord, was the scene of the action, and the 20,000 cycle enthusiasts who descended on the place outnumbered the official inhabitants by some four or five thousand.

Cycling games, exhibitions, and races were held during the four-day meet, both of the two races on a one-mile asphalt road. One race was a 50-mile amateur championship, and one a 100-mile test for professionals.

Besides showing plenty of action, the program also has a look at what the legitimate inhabitants of Laconia thought about the whole thing, and, as one can imagine, the reaction was mixed, with those living furthest from the race track presumably being most enthusiastic about the whole thing.

One hour long, the program starts at 7.30 on Thursday evening, Channels 7, 11 and 12.

Spike Jones, the wacky American band leader whose satirical distortions of popular music (insofar as it can be distorted) have become famous, is back on the summer circuit for the second time.

Accentuating the lighter side of music, Spike and his wife, Helen Grayeo, will kick off their new summer season on Monday night. They will be on Channels 6 and 2 at 8 p.m., and on Channel 7 at 9.

Also on Monday evening is Channel 8's coverage of the arrival in Vancouver of the luxury liner Canberra. Cameras will be stationed at Prospect Point, Brockton Point and Pier 3 to record the arrival.

A mobile cruiser will also be used.

That's at 9.30 on Monday evening, Channel 8, for one hour.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. How often should I water a large philodendron? And how much water should it be given each time? Mrs. J. P., Victoria.

A. The watering of pot plants is a subject open to a lot of discussion. The frequency of water depends on (1) the type of soil mixture; (2) the type of container (whether plastic, clay, or wood); (3) and the temperature and humidity prevailing in the place where the plants are growing.

A philodendron does not require constant moisture as does an azalea. Nor should the soil be allowed to become dust dry, and the leaves drooping. A clay pot with a garden compost mixture will need more frequent watering than a plastic pot containing a commercial peat-sand mixture.

In hot weather when the house temperature may go to 80 deg. F, and the humidity is low, the plant will require more frequent watering than in spring and fall when house temperatures are likely to be lower and humidity higher.

A large pot needs less frequent watering than a small pot, but when done, it should be a thorough job such as standing the pot in water half way up the pot for a couple of hours.

Half a lemon on a shelf of the refrigerator will help to absorb odors.

Smooth, hard-finished basement floor results from proper "floating."

Future Basement Plans Require Well-Laid Floor

The basement deserves as much attention as other parts of the house. Even if there are no special plans for its immediate use, the floor should be properly laid, with the correct slope, and a smooth, hard finish. A smooth floor will be easier to keep clean and there will be no pockets to collect water whenever the floor is washed.

This aspect becomes even more important if there is to be a basement workshop or laundry area, or if plans call for a basement recreation room.

There are a number of things to be done before pouring the concrete for the basement floor. Unless the base is sand, gravel or stone, a five-inch layer of "fill" has to be put down. Crushed stone or coarse gravel are frequently used for this purpose, but cinders will do, provided they do not come in direct contact with cast iron piping.

If the bottom of the excavation does not dry out rapidly enough and there are signs that water is seeping in, it may be advisable to install a second row of drain tiles. The tiles should be placed along the inside of the footing and should be connected to the drain where it leaves the building.

To prevent waste matter backing up, the tiles should be at a higher level than the drain pipe itself.

The basement floor should slope towards the drain. An incline of about one inch in every 10 feet is sufficient. The slope can be checked with a spirit level set on the edge of a straight board eight or 10 feet in length.

WET THOROUGHLY

Fill should be made compact before the concrete is poured. Watering it down a number of times with a garden hose will help. Even on sandy soil where no fill is needed, it is a good idea to wet the ground thoroughly before pouring the concrete. Otherwise the dry sand may draw too much water out of the concrete and lower the quality of the finished product.

As a measure of precaution, the floor drain should be covered before the concrete is poured.

In all probability the concrete will be poured into the basement through one of the basement windows. To protect the window frame against damage a board should be fixed over the sill, using finishing nails to hold it down. Afterwards the board can be easily removed and the nail holes filled with putty before painting.

Concrete for basement floors should be of good quality, preferably 3,000-pound concrete. It is easier to obtain a smooth finish if no large stones are used. Half-inch stone is ideal if the polishing or "floating" is done entirely with a hand trowel. If the floor is to be machine-polished, the presence of slightly larger stones will still make an excellent finish possible.

Three inches is the minimum depth for the concrete floor in an N.H.A.-financed house, but four inches will give a better quality floor.

FLOATING

The concrete is first levelled with a spade or hoe. Later, it is smoothed with the edge of of a board. When it has just begun to set and is strong enough to carry the weight of a man, the "floating" or polishing begins.

This is a time-consuming process and the manner in which it is carried out has a great deal to do with the quality of the concrete, particularly the surface.

Too much floating or floating the concrete too soon, tends to draw an excessive amount of water to the surface. Some of the finer aggregates and cement particles will then float to the top, producing a weak, soft-textured finish that will dust easily.

These fine particles of cement dust present an additional cleaning problem for the housekeeper.

It is equally bad to allow too much time to elapse between pouring and floating. As the concrete hardens it becomes more difficult to smooth and the result is a rough and bumpy floor. Deficiencies of this sort are not easily corrected.

If the floor is being poured in winter, care should be taken not to overheat the basement in an attempt to speed up drying of the concrete.

This may cause excessive shrinkage and lead to cracks; it may also produce a poor surface texture. Curing should be a gradual process. It is good practice to sprinkle the floor often while it is drying out.

Within a day or two of pouring the concrete should be hard enough to walk on. But the floor can still be damaged easily at this stage. Heavy materials or sharp objects should not be dragged across the floor until it has hardened further.

It takes about 10 days for the floor to become serviceable, and about a month before it can be put to heavy use.

FIX-IT FORUM

Q. Could you tell me the best way to protect wrought iron furniture on my patio from the effect of damp? —Mrs. J. B.

A. Paint protects wrought iron furniture used out of doors. The first coat should be an anti-corrosive primer. The second: a tough exterior enamel. Ornate pieces are painted most easily the spray way.

Rub the hinges of a creaking door with a lead pencil.

Dip a dishcloth in vinegar and use it for cleaning the grid of the stove at least once a day. Vinegar removes grease.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Summer Pruning Job Controls Fruit Tree Size

By JACK BEASTALL

As far as the commercial orchardist is concerned the summer pruning of fruit trees is not economically practical, therefore very little information is available on the subject.

The purpose of this article is to show that summer pruning is feasible, and in the home garden where labor costs and tonnage of crop are not vital considerations, it may be an advantageous practice.

Jack

In tests conducted over a span of 15 to 20 years it has been shown that summer pruned fruit trees are smaller in stature than the same varieties which have received only winter pruning.

While this is considered detrimental from the commercial point of view, it would seem decidedly beneficial in the home garden where space for trees is usually at a premium.

Summer pruning is spread over the months of July and August, a little work being done each week. To the home gardener this might have a greater appeal than the thought of spending a Sunday in February working against time and the elements on rain-soaked soil.

Actual work is nothing more than reducing in length all new shoots or growths, which have been made this year.

BLANKET RULE

Exact length of shoot to be left will depend on vigor of the tree and amount of extension growth the shoots have made in a particular season.

While the meagre literature on summer pruning does state specific lengths qualified by other conditions, there is no agreement among the writers. It is possibly more simple for the amateur to apply a blanket rule to remove one-half of the length of each growth until experience indicates otherwise.

Removing this amount of leaf surface during the summer when the tree is manufacturing quantities of food to take care of new growths, swelling fruits and maturing seed, is bound to have a limiting effect.

We know that the growing points of plants receive the greatest amount of food because of the rapidity with which cells are being made. When these points are removed the surplus food is diverted to dormant buds which become active and provide new growing points.

FIRST FUNCTION

We would expect this to happen to the fruit trees until we give thought to the overall picture.

First, we have reduced the total leaf surface of the tree and therefore less food can be processed. Secondly, the important function of the tree at this season is the swelling of fruits and the making of seed.

A seed contains more food, in a concentrated form, than other parts of a plant, and the seed will be given priority when the reduced amount of food is distributed. Dormant buds will not be so readily activated and any new growing points will not elongate so rapidly as would be the case if seed were not maturing.

It is this annual reduction of total leaf surface at a critical time that limits the stature of the trees.

The summer pruning of cherries, plums and walnuts has long been advocated, although not for the same reasons.

LESS BLEEDING

When normal winter pruning is applied to cherries and plums it can result in split bark and the exuding of a gummy substance, but this tendency is less pronounced when pruning is done during the fruit bearing season. The summer pruning of walnuts, if needed, results in less bleeding from the pruning wounds.

It is obvious that any sudden and drastic reduction of food could be detrimental to a tree rather than beneficial. For this reason the summer pruning of fruit trees is spread over the eight to nine weeks of July and August.

A few growths from different parts of the tree are shortened each week, or twice a week, depending on the size of the tree and the total amount of wood to be removed. This is a pleasant task for the cool of a summer's evening when most of us like to be pottering in the garden.

IN FEBRUARY TOO

One of the chief arguments against summer pruning in commercial orchards is that workers cannot be spared at this season to handle the work, whereas winter pruning occupies help who would otherwise be idle.

Summer pruning does not entirely eliminate all winter work, for there is a little to be done during February. This consists of a further cutting back of the summer pruned growths to two or three "eyes" from their point of origin. The job is usually done just before the dormant sprays are applied.

Peaches and nectarines are not summer pruned. These trees bear fruit on new growths made the previous year.

The shoots which are bearing fruit now are cut away entirely as soon as the crop has been picked, that is in late August or during September according to the variety and its picking date. The new growths made this year will bear the fruits next year.

Many gardeners prefer to stay with the winter pruning program they have mastered and found quite satisfactory, and there are no conclusive arguments that would make a change desirable.

Other gardeners find winter pruning a task beyond their ability to handle, and they have been pleased to learn of the possibility of exercising some control on the growth of their trees at a more congenial time of year.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Lavender spikes should be cut without delay, for drying and shedding. Choose a time around noon on a sunny day to obtain highest oil content.

Although separate colors from seed are now available in violas and pansies, it is sometimes desirable to take a number of cuttings of a particular color form for mass plantings. Time now to take cuttings of young growth about two inches long. Root in a shaded coldframe.

Cuttings of zonal bedding geraniums taken this month are less likely to suffer stem rot in winter, since they will root rapidly and can be potted up before cold weather.

Leeks and celery should be earthed up, and onions have soil drawn away from bulbs.

Wood Hues Choose Blues

If you are planning to paint your walls blue or green, the color of the wood of your furniture can be a helpful guide as to what shade to use.

Turquoise, periwinkle blues, and greens that contain a lot of yellow are ideal backgrounds for furniture finished in mahogany, walnut or one of the fruit woods. Furniture finished in greyed tones looks better in rooms with walls painted in clear blues.

Pale woods, favored in modern furniture, are enhanced against the deeper shades of green or blue.

GUNMAN FLUSHED FROM ROCK

'I Saw My Chance . . .'

CRAIG, Colo. (AP) — Weak and famished from two days of flight through rugged mountains, a pint-sized gunman surrendered Friday and admitted he shot four Colorado officers because "I just didn't wanta go to jail."

Delmar Spooner, 25, was impassive when captors told him two of his victims were dead.

"I saw my chance and grabbed it," police quoted him as saying. "I'm not sorry it happened."

The blond former soldier was seized as he crouched behind a rock near a railroad spur at Bond, in northwest Colorado.

State patrol Cpl. Maurice Becmer saw the suspect behind the rock, gun in hand, and called: "Give it up or I'll blow your brains out."

Spooner hesitated, then dropped the weapon. It was fully loaded.

DELMAR SPOONER
. . . 'not sorry'

Under questioning he told about the violence last Wednesday in which the four officers were shot.

Spooner had stopped his car near Kremmling, Colo., where a passing game and fish department employee, Robert Hoover, saw him and offered aid. Hoover became suspicious when he noticed a rifle and ammunition in the parked car.

State patrol Lieut. Hiram Short, 49, and Sheriff Chancy Van Pelt, 55, arrived within a few minutes and searched Spooner. He moved to the car, drew a hidden gun and began firing.

All three officers were wounded, and Short died within a few hours.

Spooner fled, but his trail was picked up by Sheriff Henry Knuth and Undersheriff John Clark, 68. In an exchange of shots which followed, Clark was fatally wounded.

Racial Violence Boils In Mixed Chicago Area

CHICAGO (AP) — Negro youth gangs attacked a white man with axe handles and hurled explosives at two young white girls as racial violence erupted for the third successive day in a tense, mixed neighborhood on the south-west side.

Beefed-up police patrols cruised the streets as the toll of white persons injured by the roving gangs of young Negroes rose to 18.

Fred Vaughn told police four Negroes belabored him with axe handles early today as he returned from a cigar store to his mother's home. He was taken to hospital with head cuts and bruises.

The girls, Linda Rivers, 14, and Alice Ramos, 12, told officers they were sitting on the Ramos' front porch when four or five young Negroes stopped on the sidewalk, hurled a few remarks and then home-made bombs containing steel pellets. Both girls were taken to hospital with cuts.

Police said 45 of 64 Negroes seized Friday were 16 or younger.

An emergency policy control plan was thrown into operation in the neighborhood of Harrison High School. More than 100 police were moved into the area to restore order and prevent further violence.

The violence was stirred, police speculated, by the unsolved killing Wednesday of Matthew Tolber, 16, a Negro. Tolber was walking home from summer school with friends when he was struck by a bullet. Police say they still do not know who fired the fatal shot.

Union Ordered to Pay $1.2 Million Damages

STINNETT, Tex. (AP) — Twenty-eight former union members won a $1,197,072 damage judgment Friday against the International Union of Operating Engineers.

The 28 men claimed the union had caused them to lose their jobs at the Phillips Petroleum Company during a strike in May, 1958.

A jury, which deliberated more than a week, held that the actions which prompted their dismissal by the oil company were ordered by the union and that the union was responsible for their loss of earnings.

The suit had asked for recovery of more than $4,000,000, including loss of retirement and other benefits and credit ratings resulting from their dismissal.

Judge Max Boyer reduced this amount to $2,600,000 before the case went to the jury, ruling out all items except loss of past and present earnings.

Butter Rationed In E. Berlin

BERLIN (Reuters) — The East Berlin city council has decided to tighten up its system of unofficial butter rationing "to avoid speculation."

Present lists under which housewives have to register their name in one store for buying butter will be scrapped within the next few days and new lists issued, according to a statement by the deputy mayor.

But this time the housewife, as well as producing her identity card, will have to leave part of her potato rationing card in the shop as long as she intends to buy butter there.

Since there is no way of obtaining more than one potato card for each person, this will cut out the possibility of a housewife putting her name on butter lists at several stores in different districts.

Reports of growing food shortages in East Germany prompted West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to offer East Germany 5,000 tons of butter.

But the East German news agency ADN dismissed the offer as a "propaganda statement."

Squeeze Sauashed Flatfoot

WASHINGTON (AP) — A self-styled underground agent who says his feet are his most important weapon is seeking $25,000 in damages over a pair of tight shoes.

The suit in district court here pits Dr. V. Stefan Krajcovic, 45, of Washington, against William Hahn and Company, a local shoe store.

In court papers, Krajcovic identified himself as the "head of the Czech underground," chairman of the National Committee for the Liberation of Slovakia and president of the Slovak Relief Fund.

"For me my feet are the most important weapon for my security so I always keep them in good shape," Krajcovic said in a deposition. Sometimes, he said his life may be in peril and he "must be able to run." The tight shoes, he said, hampered this ability.

The shoes in question are moccasin-type loafers which Krajcovic said he bought in the store almost two years ago. The salesman, Krajcovic said, recommended the wrong size—at least one size too small.

As a result, Krajcovic said, he suffered severe pain, mental anguish and loss of revenue from his profession. This he identified as the ferreting out of Communist technological secrets and their sale to American industrialists.

LIMIT INCREASED

KELOWNA—Speed limit on Highway 97 from Summerland to the Canadian-United States border at Osoyoos will soon be increased to 60 from 50 miles an hour, the highways department has announced.

New signs now are being posted.

NAMED CHAIRMAN of the payroll division, United Appeal, is John A. Wallace (above) general manager of Yarrows. Campaign for $310,000 in support of 21 agencies will run September-October.

Calgary Man Given Remand

James Jerry Jasper Ramchuk, Calgary, was remanded to Wednesday for probation report and sentence in Colwood RCMP court Thursday after pleading guilty to attempted breaking and entering.

Police said a motorist passing the Hatley Service Station, Sooke Road, Thursday at 12.55 a.m., saw a car pull into the station and then heard breaking glass.

As the car pulled away he noted the licence number and reported to RCMP. Ramchuk was picked up later in the morning and confessed to the attempt later in the day.

Tattoo Scores Big Hit

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver International Festival opened on a spectacular note here Friday night as 13,616 persons watched a brilliant display of pageantry at the military searchlight tattoo in Empire Stadium.

The attendance was double that of opening night in 1958. An advance ticket sale of $145,000 has already been made on this season's eight-day tattoo.

Lt.-Gov. George Pearkes took the salute as representatives of the three services marched before a reviewing stand.

There were 1,066 performers.

Show stoppers of the evening were a team of Royal Air Force gymnasts performing on trampolines and springboards.

A massed brass band—350 pieces in all—played marches and light pieces from musical comedy.

The program was produced for the festival by Brigadier Alastair Maclean who has won fame in similar productions in the United States, Britain and Europe.

TRAFFIC FINES

In Colwood RCMP court Friday:

Arthur Carl Palm, Lake Cowichan, $35 and $3 costs, careless driving.

Ray Alfred Zboyoosky, Youbou, $25 and $3 costs, over 60.

Roland Ernest Sudhues, Metchosin, $35 and $3 costs, careless driving.

Jack Lloyd Irving, 1740 Ash, $15 and $3 costs, over 50.

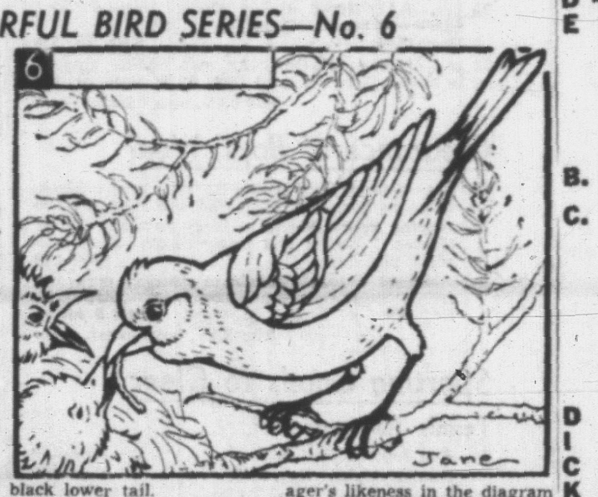
COLORFUL BIRD SERIES—No. 6

This is the sixth in a series of drawings by Jane Niebrugge designed to acquaint readers with habits, hues and markings of some colorful birds.

Specimen No. 6 is the Western tanager. This bird summers in the far western United States, ranging eastward to Colorado and Nebraska. It winters in Mexico and the mountains of Central America, south to Costa Rica.

Favorite habitats of Western tanagers are black oaks and tall cedars. Nests are built on a horizontal branch about 20 feet from the ground. Eggs are greenish blue, speckled with brown.

Conspicuous colors of this bird, as indicated in the small diagram at right, are (1) bright red head, blending into yellow body, (2) yellow markings on black wings and (3) black lower tail.



How quickly and neatly can you color the Western tanager's likeness in the diagram above?

(Next Week: The Scarlet Tanager.)

TIME WELL SPENT?

If your watch is stopped for five minutes every 15 minutes, how long will it take the minute hand to go from 12 to 12? Answer in one minute, if you can.

ASK HENRY

The writer of this weekly advice column is an 11-year-old boy. The advice he gives is strictly his own. It has not been changed by his parents or the editor. He welcomes letters from parents. If you want him to discuss your problem write to ASK HENRY, in care of this newspaper.

Dear Henry:

I have eight grandchildren, and every week get rid of $3.00 or $3.50 in small distribution to the kids. I'm thinking of changing to putting the money in the old sugar bowl and once a month taking the whole family, including mom and dad, to a fine place for dinner. Which would you suggest would leave the finer memory of Granma?

V.M.D.

Dear Granma V.M.D.:

You can't buy love. Your grandchildren will remember you better for being a nice helpful granma, not for occasionally giving them money or taking them to dinner.

Henry.

Dear Henry:

Will you please advise me on how to stop my 4-year-old boy from eating ants?

Puzzled.

Dear Puzzled:

Oh, that mean thing is eating the lovely ants! Serve him some catsup and vegetables with them.

Henry.

Dear Henry:

I am having a lot of trouble with my 16-year-old son. He has been arrested a few times but never convicted. He goes around with "black leather jacket" boys who meet on street corners. I have been sick and have not been able to control him. He often talks back at me. What can I do

In Desperation.

Dear In Desperation:

It's too bad you have so much trouble with your boy. I am sorry but I can't figure out a solution to this problem because I guess I am a little young. Thanks for trusting me with your problem. I invite any reader who can figure out an answer, please write in and I will get it published.

Henry.

Dear Henry:

My daughter, age 8, bites her fingernails almost down to the roots. Bitter medication does not help.

Concerned Mother.

Dear Concerned Mother:

Cut her fingernails more often.

Henry.

Dear Henry:

I am 6 years old. My mother is very nice but when it comes to spanking oh! oh! I am the one who gets hit. I love her but why is she this way?

Rebeca.

Dear Rebeca:

I don't think parents are quite bad enough to hit their child without a reason. Try not to give your mom a reason.

Henry.

COOL, BREEZY WEEKEND FORECAST

Thunderstorm Risk Seen in Turret Clouds

The clouds are stacked for a thunder and lightning storm tonight, according to weatherman William Mackie.

"There will be some sunshine this afternoon, but the cloud will close in again this evening," Mr. Mackie said. "There is the risk of showers tonight, and even of a thunderstorm."

Tipoff to the situation was the cloud condition of Friday, when there were high-level cumulus clouds with "turret tops."

Sunday morning will be cloudy, but there will be sunshine in the afternoon, Mr. Mackie said.

Winds will be fairly brisk, he said. They will be from the northwest at 15 to 20 miles per hour Sunday in Georgia Strait, while in Juan de Fuca Strait they will be southwesterly at 15 to 20 miles.

Temperatures will be far removed from the subtropical level of the early part of the week. Minimum tonight will be 55 degrees, and the peak Sunday will be 68 degrees in areas close to the water, and ranging upward to a maximum of 75 degrees inland and away from the sea breeze.

'OWNERS' TO SEE SUB

The RCN Pacific Command's new submarine HMCS Grilse will be on view to her 'owners'—federal taxpayers—next Saturday and Sunday.

The navy is surveying the Inner Harbor in the hopes a suitable berth can be found in the heart of the city.

Visiting hours will be announced later.

"THIS IS THE LIFE" said motorist J. R. Martin as he sat back and enjoyed the scenery today as a bevy of beauties set to with a will to clean his car. The girls are members of Victoria Girls' Drill Team and they are holding a car wash at the corner of Fort and Foul Bay. Idea is to raise money for new uniforms so the team can put in an appearance at the Kelowna Regatta in August.

Early Vote Set On Downtown Parking Scheme

Full Information To Be Provided

First phase of long-term plan to solve the city's parking problem will be submitted to downtown property owners as early as next week.

Owners of the $11,000,000 worth of property in the heart of downtown Victoria will vote on whether to guarantee construction of two off-street parking garages.

Mayor Percy Scurrah today denied an earlier report they would be writing a "blank cheque," or voting blind, without knowing what the costs would be.

"Instead of this being a blind vote, every property owner will be furnished with a very close estimate of the cost, based on wide experience in parking facilites," the mayor said.

175 VOTERS

There are 175 property owners in the downtown core, bounded roughly by Johnson, Government, Broughton and Blanshard.

Based on proposed space for 600 cars, the estimated cost of building the facilities would be $720,000.

The mayor said a fair estimate of the cost of construction per stall is $1,300, according to local rates.

SPECIAL PARLEY

The proposal was hammered out in special in camera meeting of city council Friday, where approximate locations for the facilities were chosen, one south of View near Douglas, the other near Langley and Fort.

If the area vote approves, contractors will be asked to tender on construction, which could begin by late this year.

Approval by 60 per cent or more is required to pass the proposal, after which the land may be purchased.

Two other suggestions by the works committee investigating the parking problem, were turned down: to lease two lots owned by Dominion Construction Co. Ltd. for surface parking lots, with option to buy in five years;

NEW METERS

And to use parking revenues, including those from new 10-cent meters, to finance construction of the two garage-type facilities.

Dominion Construction had proposed erecting the building on its terms, and Pigeonhole Parking, of Seattle, also had a scheme, both of which are out of the running with this proposal.

"Tenders would be called for plans based on a known cost of the land," Mr. Scurrah said.

"The cost per stall of such buildings is well known, and therefore the total cost can be very accurately forecast.

INFORMATION

"The council feels that more off-street parking facilities are essential to maintain downtown business and property values, and full information on the proposal will be given to the property holders concerned before they are asked to vote," the mayor said.

He said it is expected all business and professional people would validate parking tickets to allow an hour's free parking by their customers.

SOMETHING NEW NICKEL WON'T BUY

Pause before you plug the parking meter Monday — first day of operation for 10-cent parking.

Metermen begin converting all one-hour parking meters to 10-cents-per-hour, a 100 per cent increase, but are not expected to complete the task for several days.

It is advised that motorists check instructions on each meter in case they may still get by with nickels for 60 minutes of space.

Lumber Blaze Cause Stumps Fire Marshall

Cause of the $150,000 fire at Stewart and Hudson's lumber yard early Friday may never be determined.

Provincial fire marshal's office investigator, David Cummings, said today there was no physical evidence to indicate where the blaze started.

"The damage is so extensive," he said, "that it is impossible to determine the point of origin."

He discounted both arson and spontaneous combustion as certain causes of the fire.

"It's just as silly to call it arson or spontaneous combustion as it is to pin it on defective wiring."

Although no possible cause is completely ruled out at this stage of the investigation, Mr. Cummings and Fire Chief James Bayliss were not inclined to give too much weight to reports a firebug may have been at work.

A little over two hours after the fire started at 12.10 a.m. a local radio station reported three phone calls from a man who said: "Did you like the fire? We will have another one tomorrow night."

"Crank calls," said Mr. Cummings, are not unusual after major fires.

DIALOGUE IN SEARCH OF TWO ACTORS

SHE: Something's missing! Something isn't right in this room.

HE: Mmmmm, I'm reading.

SHE: I mean it, I miss something. Oh, I know what it is.

HE: What?

SHE: The cat? Where's the cat?

HE: Mmmmm, quiet, I'm reading.

SHE: But the cat isn't here. Where's the cat? What if something has happened to the cat?

HE: Mmmmm . . . the cat! Something's happened to the cat? WHAT WHAT WHAT WHAT what?

SHE: I don't know what, and I didn't SAY anything had HAPPENED to the cat, I just asked, WHERE is the cat?

HE: Where is she where is she where is she? Don't get excited, tell me where she is.

SHE: I'm not excited, and I don't know where she is, that's why I asked YOU.

HE: I haven't seen her for hours.

SHE: Neither have I.

HE: You haven't? Not for hours? Goodness mercy to Betsy. Don't get excited now, I'm sure nothing bad has happened.

SHE: Nothing bad?

HE: I'm sure she hasn't been eaten by a seagull. Pretty sure, that is.

SHE: Pretty sure? Not certain sure?

HE: Well, I never heard of a cat being eaten by a seagull, but this is a very small cat . . .

SHE: And I've been told seagulls eat just anything.

HE: Don't get excited don't get excited keep calm keep calm calm. We'll organize a search party.

SHE: I'll look under the bushes around the trees.

HE: I'll (gulp!) look down by the dock.

HE AND SHE (TOGETHER): Here, kitty, kitty. Where are you, kitty?

(THE OMINOUS TICKING OF A CLOCK DENOTES THE PASSAGE OF 30 MINUTES.)

HE: I went up the road, and down the road, and along the beaches, and through the fields and—whatwhatwhatwhat? Isn't that the cat?

SHE: Yes, she's right here.

HE: Where was she?

SHE: Asleep under your chair.

HE: Oh.

SHE: Aren't you glad she's safe and sound, and not eaten by a seagull?

HE: I'm just glad I didn't get excited or worried about a cotton-pickin' cat.

Outdoor Movies Summer Attraction

A free movie show will be held three times a week this summer during a special open-air Victoria film festival which starts Monday.

The Summer Home Film Festival will be held at the Cameron bandshell in Beacon Hill Park Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays at 7.30 p.m. until the end of August.

Most of the movies will be documentaries, some from the National Film Board, some produced by the B.C. government's photographic branch.

The festival is sponsored by the film board, the Pacific Command of the Royal Canadian Navy, Victoria Public Library and the city parks branch.

Monday night's program includes: Canada Between the Wars, Energetically Yours and A for Architecture.

B.C. movies to be shown are Tight Lines, Fraser Canyon, and Date with B.C.

MONDAY MEETING

Victoria Gyro Club: Noon, Empress Hotel. Film.

Douglas Rotary Club: 6 p.m., Holyrood House. Surprise program.

GENEROUS AID

New Start For Victims Of Fire

The McAllan family, burned out of their home at 3954 Cedar Hill Cross Road Thursday afternoon, will be able to make a new start thanks to the work of welfare officials and the generosity of private citizens.

A house has been found for them in Cordova Bay and essential articles such as basic furniture, kitchen utensils and clothes have been donated from all sides.

Rent for the house will be paid by welfare until William McAllan, due to join a fishboat here Sunday, is able to assume the burden.

WITH FRIENDS

At present Mrs. McAllan with newborn baby James Edward Blake is living with friends, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Ambrose, 5058 Wesley, but the family expects to move into their new home "within three or four days."

A 20-month-old daughter, Mary Elizabeth, is staying with relatives.

FROM THE PRESS GALLERY

Diverse Actors In Power Play

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

In a yellow plaster building on Blanshard, in an office above the din of View St., and in the Legislative Buildings, a war of nerves is near breaking point.

The three principals in the three offices are Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, chairman of the B.C. Power Commission; Dr. Gordon Shrum, who as chairman of the B.C. Energy Board works in the View Street building, and Premier Bennett.

Rutter

They are key figures in the future of B.C.'s huge hydro power potential.

* * *

So far the only one who has publicly declared his stand is Dr. Shrum, and it has become clear he is in the running to become super-chief of power, perhaps heading a new government agency controlling all resources.

He has pretty well signalled the punch of the energy board's report on power, expected in August: B.C. must export its power to the U.S.; it must integrate its resources.

* * *

Premier Bennett won't disclose his personal policy; he will neither confirm nor deny that he plans to take over the private power utilities such as B.C. Electric and the Peace River scheme.

All this leaves Dr. Keenleyside, as head of the government's present public power agency and also a member of the energy board, on a sticky wicket.

He just does not know his future or in what position B.C. Hydro will survive.

* * *

He does know, however, what the studies of the energy board will recommend, and there are reports he does not fully agree.

This could mean he will make a minority report.

Dr. Keenleyside is a confirmed and committed public power man, and has built up a staff of experts capable of handling the entire development of the Columbia River.

It may be significant that this staff, its files and records, are kept entirely separate from the other business of the commission.

* * *

But whatever the reason, power commission officials believe that if there is to be a big public power pool then it should be run by the commission.

It would, in fact, be an extension of the policy under which the commission has, since it was created in 1945, been gradually taking over all the small rural power companies in the province.

This may be the core of any dissent in the energy board, or it may, too, be a head-on clash of personalities.

* * *

The key man in the triangle, the man who will make the big decision in B.C.'s power politics, is Premier Bennett.

And much to the frustration of all concernd, he won't talk.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Monthly meeting of the Air Force Officers Association of Vancouver Island will be held at 8.15 p.m., Wednesday in the Air Cadet building, Patricia Bay Airport.

After the business session, a color film, "Birth of a Jet," will be shown.

A special feature on Victoria's Craigdarroch Castle will be published in the fall issue of the magazine Beautiful B.C. which goes on sale Aug. 1.

The magazine, put out by the B.C. recreation department, will also feature Mayne Island, a voyage up the north coast of Vancouver Island in Uchuk II, a salute to the Royal Canadian Navy and Vancouver's Chinatown.

Ulfert S. Wilke, an artist who is a native of Germany and a citizen of the United States currently studying in Rome on a Guggenheim fellowship, will speak on "Life in Japan—a Way of Art," at Victoria College's summer session on Wednesday evening at 8 in the college auditorium.

Rezoning of Fort Street land for funeral home use is valid in spite of errors and inconsistencies in the description, city solicitor T. P. O'Grady told council Thursday.

The rezoning was challenged by Linn A. Gale, 1032 Craigdarroch, who pointed out several errors in the bylaw and plan referring to funeral home sites.

The mistakes appeared only in copies, not to be confused with the actual bylaw, Mr. O'Grady assured councillors.

A spearfishing meet has been organized by Victoria Skin Divers Club for 11.30 a.m. Sunday at Brentwood Bay.

Miss Victoria, Nina Holden, will present trophies and prizes to the winners.

Stanley Goddard, 31, formerly of Victoria, has graduated as an aeronautical engineer from Southern Alberta Institute of Technology.

The son of Mrs. Elsie Goddard, 919 Vancouver, he is a graduate of Victoria High School and served 10 years in the RCAF.

He will continue his studies at the University of Michigan this fall.

RECREATION department field man Robert Nichols takes five amid turn-of-the-century furnishings gleaned from condemned house for Barkerville resoration project. He sits in elaborate Oriental wicker chair with sliding footrest, contemplating parlor stove in near-mint condition.

FROM DOUGLAS STREET TO BARKERVILLE TOWN

Ghost Town Gains When 70-Year-Old Home Burns

By AB KENT

The goldrush town of Barkerville will benefit from a fire which gutted a 70-year-old Douglas Street home recently.

Nineteenth-century furnishings which survived the blaze have been acquired by the department of recreation and conservation to help decorate and finish houses in the old goldrush ghost town.

The provincial government undertook to restore Barkerville as a centennial project in 1958, a project now reckoned to run at least 20 years.

It might take that long to obtain enough furnishings of the 1870-1890 era to fill 115 buildings and to erect replicas of the buildings themselves.

However long it takes, the department is assured of a popular following, despite initial scoffs.

C. P. Lyons, one of the directors, says attendance figures have doubled each year since 1958—5,000 visitors that year, 10,000 in 1959 and 20,000 last year.

An early check this season puts attendance 62 per cent ahead of 1960.

Next year is likely to set a record since it will be just 100 years from the day Billy Barker struck it rich on Williams Creek, establishing the richest gold find in the Cariboo.

To coincide, the government will open a new museum in the spring, containing many items donated or obtained by field men constantly on the alert for relics of the period, such as the items found in the home of Miss Edith King, 302 Douglas, whose cavernous Victorian home was bursting with material before the fire.

For example, there are wicker chairs of various sizes, mostly in like-new condition, that were popular as porch and parlor pieces at the turn of the century.

There is an air-tight stove of a type used to heat a sitting room, complete with foot rail around the bottom.

A prize "find," according to field man Bob Nichols, is a brass bed, ornately decorated with varying colors of the metal along the upright rails.

"Victoria has supplied by far the greatest number of furnishings," Mr. Lyons said, due both to the fact that the department is located here and field men know this area well, and because this city was established before Barkerville.

"We don't maintain the stuff originated in Barkerville," said Mr. Nichols. "We just try to reproduce what furniture they had there in that period."

Many other Victoria homes contain furnishings the department would be happy to have for Barkerville, yet few people realize it and burn much of the things as junk.

Besides homes, Barkerville has a restored blacksmith shop, saloon, general store, carpentry shop and hotel and it is planned to add next doctors' and dentists' offices.

MEMORIAL CHURCH IN WEST BERLIN

Iron Curtain Christians Find Haven for Worship

By GEORGE BOULTWOOD

BERLIN (AP)—One of the first things to catch your eye as you leave the Communist sector of Berlin through the Brandenburg Gate is a gleaming golden cross.

The cross tops the modern open-work belfry of a new west of the little Iron Curtain dividing Berlin.

This Christian symbol is a landmark for many East German Protestants. They flock there to practice their religion without harassment by the Communist regime.

ACHIEVES QUIET FAME

The Kaiser Friederich Memorial Church is in the Hansaviertel, a new residential area. Although built less than four years ago it already has achieved quiet fame as a meeting place for believers from both sides of the Iron Curtain.

The reason is that so long as West Berlin remains free under the protection of the Western Allies, people fom East Berlin and East Germany can visit it with relatively little difficulty. The church is nearly always full and often one-third of the congregation consists of worshippers from the east.

Marriages, baptisms and confirmations are performed for people who fear Communist interference if they conduct such church ceremonies in their own home towns.

The Red regime is campaigning to eliminate Christian observances and substitute atheistic ceremonies of their own.

COME FOR CEREMONIES

Many East German parents bring over their children for christening or confirmation.

Newly-married couples from the East come across to get the blessing of the church on their marriage.

They cannot avoid the legal ceremony in their local town hall, but in West Berlin they also can pledge their vows before the altar.

For many refugees the church is their first step in the West. There, in the shadow of the Iron Curtain, they find relief from both political and religious oppression.

Baha'i Faith Observes Sacred Date

The Baha'i Faith of Victoria observed one of its most sacred anniversaries, the Martyrdom of the Bab, on Sunday last.

Ali Mubammed, a youthful prophet known to the Baha'is as The Bab, or The Gate, was publicy executed at Tabriz, Iran, just 108 years ago.

Mrs. Nan Greenwood, secretary of the Baha'i Faith in Victoria, said Bab was martyred for preaching the need for a universal language, universal education, the duty of all faiths to unite in establishing world peace and the moral responsibility of all governments to protect human rights.

"From Persia, his teachings were carried by loyal disciples to Baghdad, Palestine, Europe, the Americas and the Far East," Mrs. Greenwood said.

As a memorial to Bab, a beautiful shrine has been erected on the slopes of Mount Carmel at Haifa, Israel, international headquarters of the Baha'i World Faith. It was designed by the late Sutherland Maxwell, a Montreal architect.

Silver Threads Plan Picnic At Beacon Hill

The Silver Threads Centre for Senior Citizens promises fun and frivolity at its first annual picnic to be held in Beacon Hill Park Wednesday.

There will be games and sporting events followed by a concert in the band shell at 2 p.m. featuring Leilani, graceful Hawaiian dancer, and members of the Eileen School of Dancing.

The Silver Threads vocal group and other senior artists will contribute to the program.

Members will occupy reserved seats at the Bowl and all Senior Citizens are invited to join them. They are asked to assemble at the picnic grounds at 11 a.m., bringing their own lunch. But tea and ice cream will be provided.

"We intend to make this a really lively picnic," a Silver Threads official said.

UN COMMITTEE TOLD

Infant Mortality Rate 98 Per Cent

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanganyika (Reuters) — A former southwest African nurse told a United Nations committee Friday that so many Africans are dying of malnutrition in the territory that there will be none left within five years.

Giving evidence to the United Nations committee on southwest Africa, Mrs. Putuse Appolus also said that the African infant mortality rate is "98 if not 100 per cent."

Mrs. Appolus said she had seen African patients beaten in the hospital where she worked and claimed that after stopping the beating of an 11-year-old boy by his two white employers she was told she must not "fiddle in these people's affairs."

A statement by the southwest African people's organization urged the committee to disregard South Africa's "empty threats" and enter the territory.

United Church Plans Orient Mission Tour

TORONTO—An Orient mission tour for United Church people will leave Vancouver Sept. 17, via Canadian Pacific Airlines.

The tour will be conducted by Charles Burritt of Burnaby, B.C., national president of United Church AOTS Men's Clubs. It will take in areas adjacent to Tokyo, Kyoto, Nara, Osaka in Japan; Seoul in Korea; and finally Hong Kong.

Price of the tour out of Vancouver is $1,491, plus connecting rates to other points in Canada, and includes transportation, hotels, meals, and sightseeing, with English guides provided.

Reservations are now being accepted at the United Church offices, 505 Dunsmuir Street, Vancouver.

Obscenity On CBC Protested

EDMONTON — A resolution dealing with alleged instances of immorality and obscenity in CBC television productions was passed at the final session of the convention of the Alberta-British Columbia District of the Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod, meeting here.

The resolution called for individuals and the church to appeal in a positive way for the "elimination of those elements which tend to bring about a deterioration of the nation's moral fibre."

In debating the resolution, the delegates insisted that the church is not a police force to compel a government to action, but should act as the "conscience" of the Christian community.

The convention also adopted a budget of $335,800 for the program of the district in 1962. This compares with a 1961 budget of $287,000.

Hospital Donated

GAZA, Egypt (AP) — The Canadian contingent serving with United Nations expeditionary force guarding the demarcation line between Egypt and Israel Friday donated a maternity clinic to a refugees camp at Khan Yunes. The gift from funds contributed voluntarily by Canadian soldiers and airmen cost approximately $6,000.

Atrocities Claimed

LONDON (AP) — The Baptist Missionary Society claimed Friday it has a mass of evidence, including eyewitness accounts, of Portuguese atrocities against the natives of Angola.

RELIGION IN SCHOOLS THREATENED

WARSAW (Reuters) — one of the Roman Catholic Church's most cherished institutions in Poland, religious instruction in state schools, appeared to be threatened by legislation introduced in the Polish parliament Thursday.

Communist Andrzej Werblan, introducing the bill to reform education, declared: "the business of schools is education, not religion."

"Our state considers religion to be the private concern of citizens," he said, adding that in the interest of an undisturbed educational progress, the children should receive religious instruction outside school.

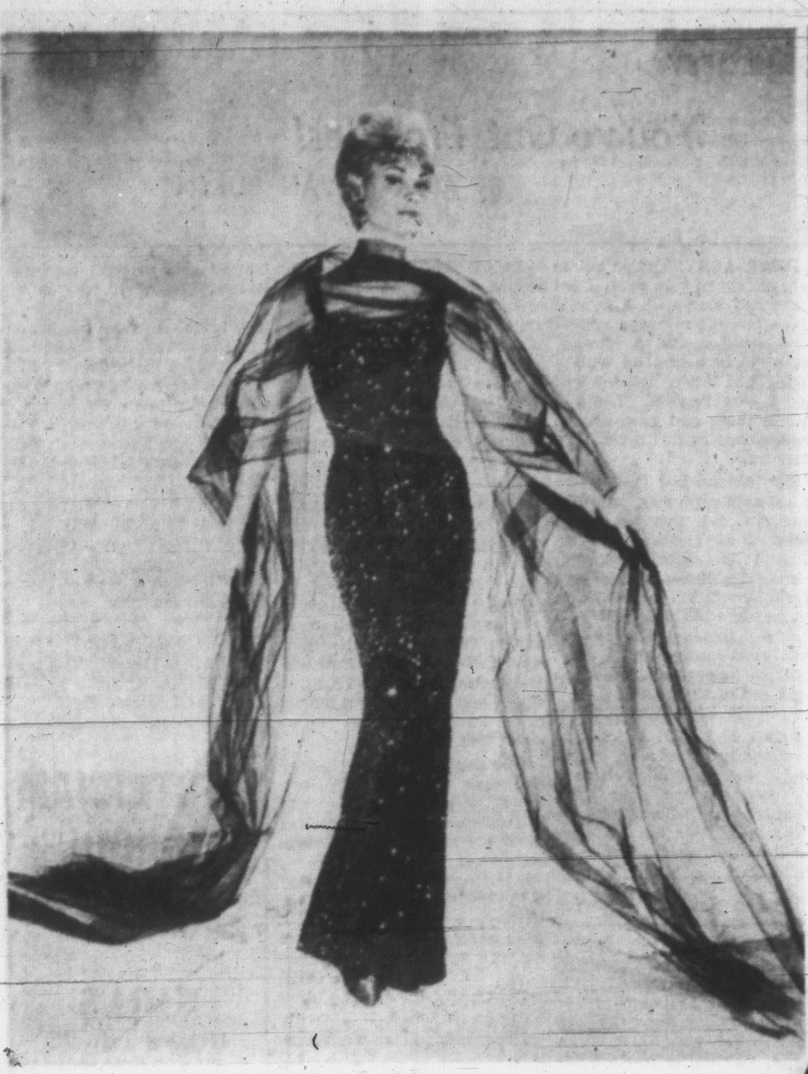
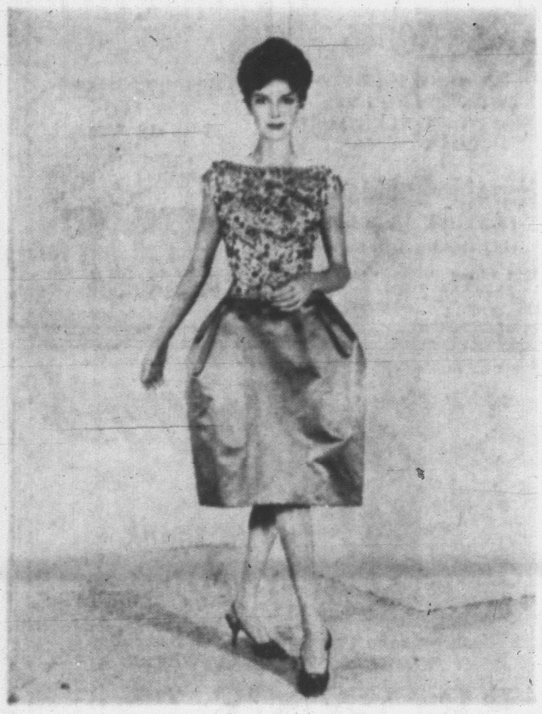
"WRAPS OFF" ON FALL FASHIONS

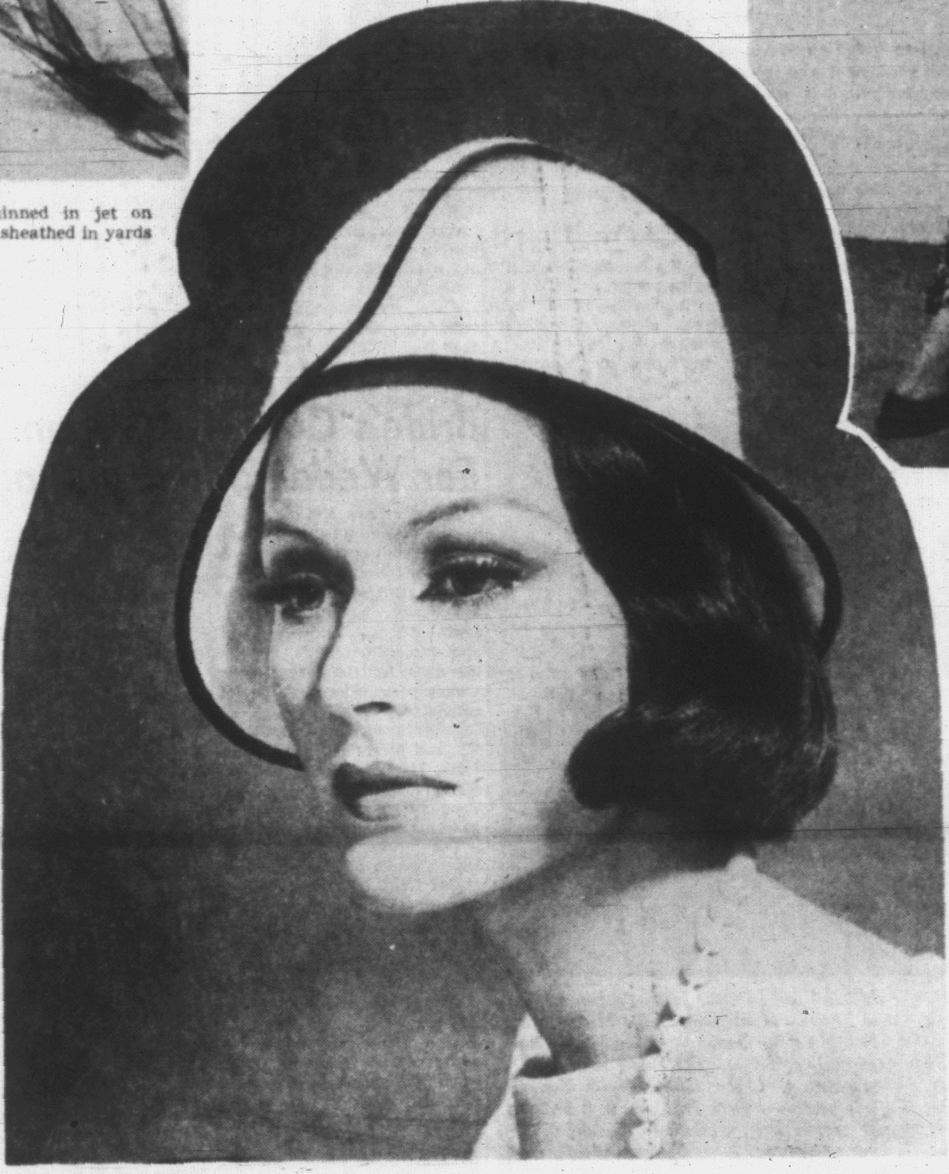
Arranged by
NONA DAMASKE
Times Fashion Editor



Shimmer and Shape . . . Gothe's Fall 1961 evening dress sequinned in jet on chiffon. The skirt fan-tails low in the back and the shoulders are sheathed in yards and yards of black smoke tulle.



The "Cabochon" skirts of Gothe's fall collection shape out from an elongated basque bodice for a gala short evening dress. Shown in strawberry and pink, the dress is jewelled with beads in a sharper shade.



Vanity Fair . . . Cuff-brim silhouette dipping to the right. Fashioned of white soleil with the dramatic contrast of black grosgrain binding and band. Chapeau is the creation of Sally Victor.

A knowing smile plays over grandma's face as she glances over the latest fashion releases from New York . . . fringed dresses . . . bugle bead trims . . . deep crowned side-tilting hats . . . sash belts . . . feather boas and short skirts bring memories of years gone by.

We may not be doing the Charleston and singing "Margie" but as far as fashion is concerned we are playing the tune of the 1920s.

There are no radical changes in fashion . . . clothes are different in a gentle, subtle kind of way.

Look for . . . top width . . . lowered waistlines . . . bloused bodices . . . pleated, tiered and gored skirts. Overblouses entirely eclipse tuck-in tops. Necklines are nakedly simple or burdened with huge collars or bulky scarves.

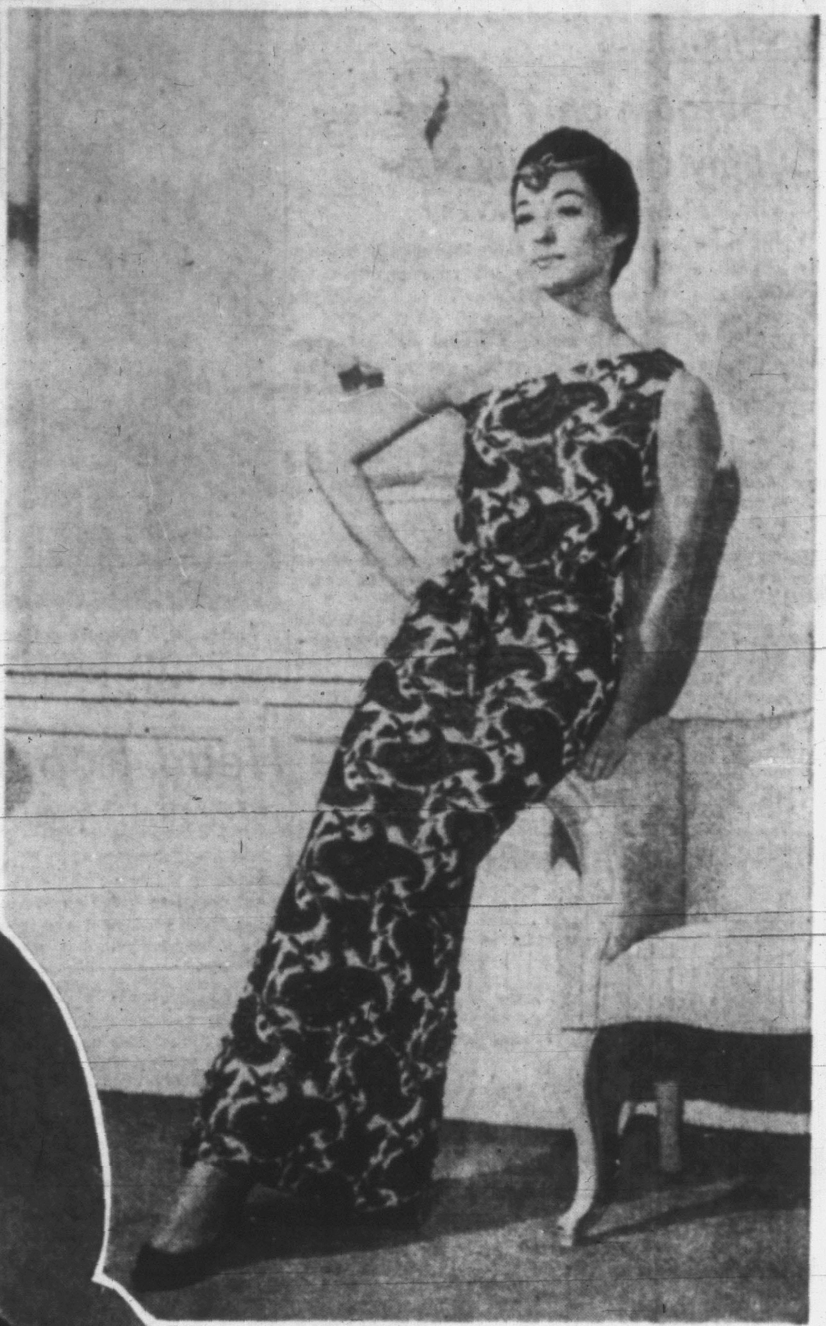
Big, deep stoles are appearing at all hours of the day and night.

The late day and formal gowns show more changes in fabric than in line. They're either very elaborate, glittering with beads or sequins, or classically simple.

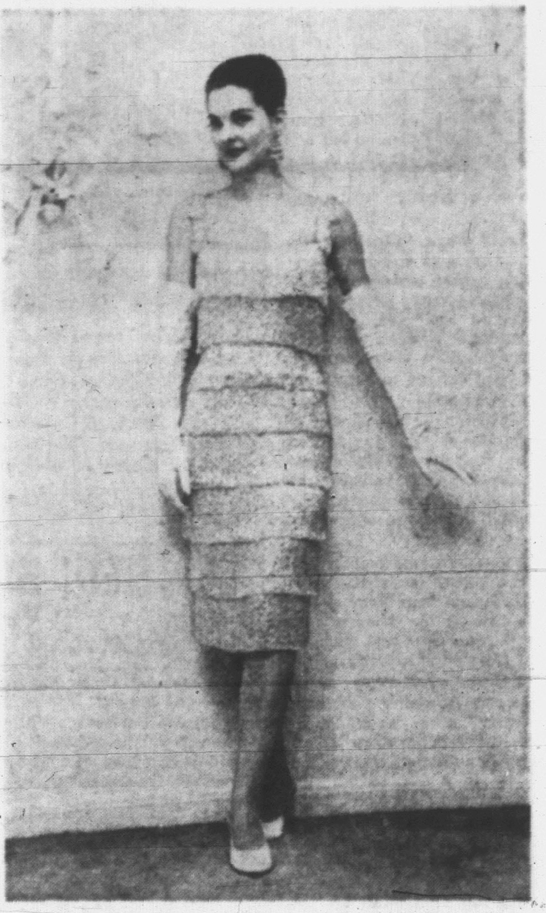
Fabrics will have a layered look . . . ridged, puffed, blistered, double woven or carved. Pile fabrics are very important, ranging from a new mat velvet to deep, silky plush; plain or patterned. Paisley will be found in wool, silk and velvet. Gold and silver brocades and lames give late-day clothes a gorgeous gleam.

Glowing deep colors will be seen in three favorite ranges. Green from spruce to darkest evergreen, berry tones from strawberry to grape, plum and eggplant and brown from amber to walnut. Peacock and dark sapphire blue are high fashion entries, as are grey and mushroom shades, particularly for evening.

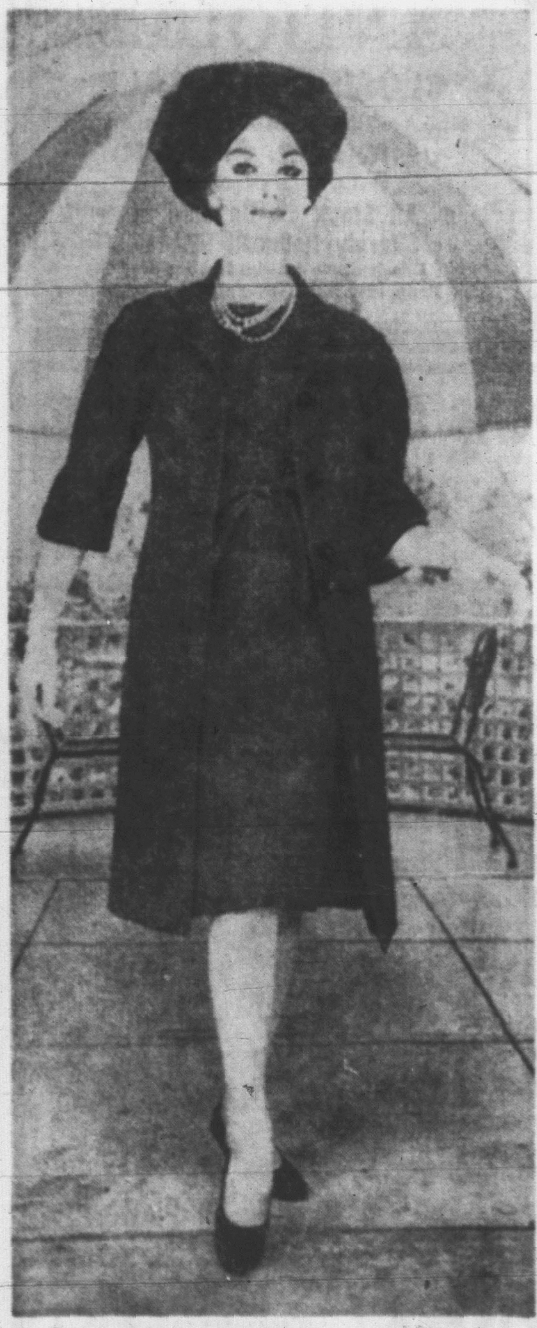
Tonight the 37th National Press Week, arranged by the New York Couture Group, comes to a close and the feeling is that fall's new flair to fashion is for everyone, femininely flattering . . . but definitely 1920 . . . so . . . 23 Skidoo to you!



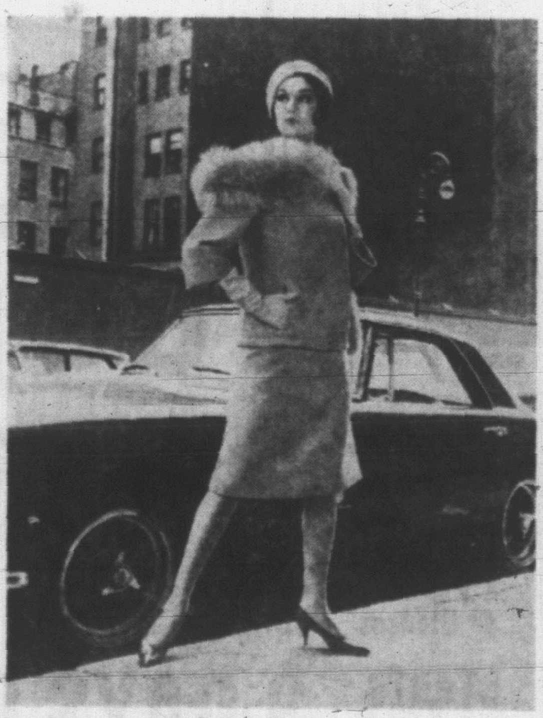
Cold Shoulder . . . Oleg Cassini, Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy's favorite couturier, showed the fashion press this one-shouldered paisley wool evening dress at the New York Couture Group gathering this week. The First Lady will have a similar shouldered dinner gown in her fall wardrobe.



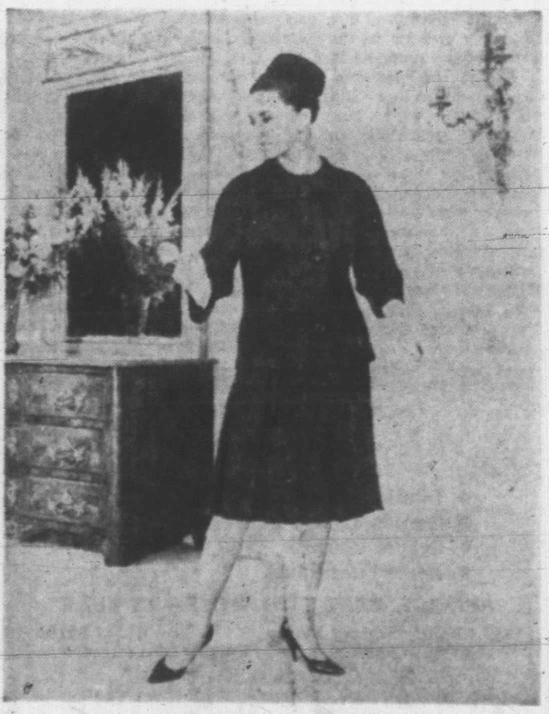
Shimmying fringe . . . eight tiers of beaded eyelash fringe shimmer down this barenecked cocktail gown by Ben Reig. Sequins sewn to the base of the white dress produce more glitter. Strands of fringe serve as shoulder straps.



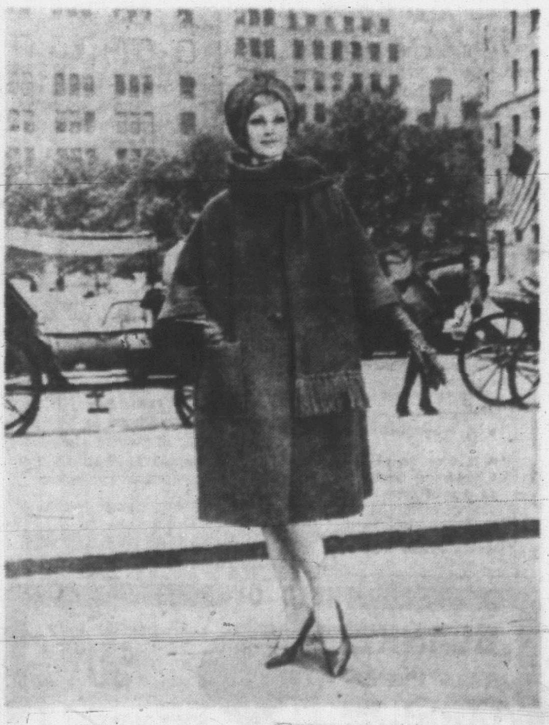
Just right for day and night . . . rose brocade is fashioned into a short-sleeved dress and coat with high-waisted shaping by designer Gustave Tassell. An exciting addition to any wardrobe, this costume takes you easily from afternoon hours to cocktail time.



The "cosmopolitan look" by Bill Blass for Maurice Rentner is reflected in a beige wool suit wrapped with a fox boa. The long jacket, shaped to the figure in front, closes in a fly-front manner. The skirt, slightly flared toward the hemline, is typical of many giving the designer's "obelisk silhouette" its name.



Designed by Philippe Tournaye for Marquise, a suit in ebony brown nubby worsted. The jacket introduces the "orbit" shoulder treatment and is loosely-fitted over a skirt with wide flaring pleats.



Stroller . . . greatcoat of deep royal "Willow Weave" worsted from fall and winter collection of Originala. It has a stand-away neckline under a long detachable stole. Hugging the head is a stunning mink hat from the Lilly Dache collection.

SHOPPING GUIDE

A Bargain on Thermoses—Supply the Family Now

By PENNY SAVER

With the weather seeming to alternate radically between the hottest ever and rather cold, and no happy medium, thermos bottles will be in demand, even if, like Penny, you have ice cold orange juice one day and hot tea the next.

One Victoria store is featuring a special on regular size bottles that come from Japan. They are guaranteed to keep hot for 24 hours, and cold for 72, and are topped with an aluminum cap. They are priced right now at 79 cents each.

Same store is selling gay metal dustpans, perfect gift for a kitchen shower, that are finished with a stiff rubber edge for ease in sweeping up. They come in red, green and yellow, or with floral pattern, at 59 cents each.

Flowerpots always seem to be a problem—earthenware types have to be covered, and shiny plastic pots can detract from the shrub or plant. Today I found pots in a new material, new to me anyway; styrolite.

It feels and weighs like cardboard, but gives illusion of a patterned small mosaic tile, in tones of mauve, green, pink and yellow. Styrolite, moreover, is completely waterproof, and acts as an insulator to keep plants at a cool temperature. These non-destructible flower pots come in three sizes, selling at either 39 cents, 59 cents or 69 cents.

If you would like to know where Penny did her shopping today, please give her a ring at EV 2-3131.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Here are a few suggestions which I hope will make your summer more pleasant and return you to fall in good condition.

Lowman

Don't stay too long in the sun at first. Tan gradually. This will not only take care of your complexion but add comfort. A bad sunburn on a two-week vacation can spoil the fun.

"Don't be a "vacation athlete." Perhaps you have been sitting behind a desk most of the year. Why, then, think that you can climb Mount Washington or take four-mile walks without sore muscles and even danger to your life?

If you are not going any place, then take a vacation at home. Use paper napkins and paper towels. Forget your standards as a housekeeper for a short while and get the baby sitter in more often than you usually do.

If you live where it is hot, take a siesta each day after lunch. Learn from your sisters who live in the tropics. Pull the blinds down and turn on the fan or air-conditioning. Live at a slower pace.

Do any shopping you must do early in the morning before the temperature soars. Many church and civic activities slow down during the summer. Why not you?

Either cut your hair shorter or upsweep it for warm weather. Many women have entirely different hairdos in winter and in summer.

When you are going to be outdoors for long periods, wear a sun hat. This will protect your hair from extreme drying.

Everybody's doing it—going camping, that is. If you would like the leaflet, "Tricks in Camping," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 69 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

These colorful checkerboard meat loaves will draw murmurs of appreciation any time they're served to the teen-age set—or any other set for that matter! Try them next time your son or daughter has the gang over for a party—you'll be the most popular mother in the block!

Head Popularity Poll With These

FOOD AND FUN—Favorite Subject of the Teen-Age Set.

Surprise your teen-ager by suggesting she invite her fun-lovin' crowd over for an evening of food and frolic! And to make it easy for you, here are a few tips.

First shoo all the guests to the basement, family room or backyard. Leave the entertainment up to Sis. She may want to plan a variety of activities. She'll probably want to have plenty of records handy and clear some space for those with a yen to dance. In one corner set up a ping-pong table or mark the floor with tape for shuffle board. For the quiet ones, set up a couple of card tables for checkers, chess or gin rummy. If the party is outdoors, a volleyball game or croquet may fill the bill for the backyard athletes.

For food, plan something simple. We suggest checkerboard meat loaves. They're filling and easy to prepare and serve. To add a creative touch, criss-cross six slices of pasteurized process Canadian Cheese on top of each loaf. The golden cheese adds color, important nutrients and the flavor the teen-age set votes for every time.

Serve the meat loaves buffet style with potato salad, a platter of relishes—crisp cauliflowerets, pickles, olives, carrot sticks—just to suggest a few, and a basket of piping hot rolls.

CHECKERBOARD MEAT LOAVES

1½ lbs. ground beef, ½ pound ground pork, ¼ cup chili sauce, ½ cup finely chopped onion, 2 eggs, 1 cup soft bread crumbs, ⅔ cup milk, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard, 2 teaspoons salt, dash of pepper, 6 slices pasteurized process Canadian cheese, each cut into 6 slices.

Combine all ingredients except the cheese, and mix lightly. Shape into 6 individual loaves and place in a shallow baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 30 minutes.

Place six strips of cheese, criss-cross fashion, on top of each loaf. Return to the oven until the cheese melts.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mitchell, 675 Lampson Street, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Sharon Arlene, to Mr. George Maurice Durisseau, son of Mrs. R. Norfolk of North Surrey, B.C., and the late Mr. Maurice Durisseau. The wedding will take place in St. Saviour's Church, Victoria West, on Saturday, August 26, at 7.30 p.m. Rev. D. Kendell will officiate. Attending Miss Mitchell will be Mrs. John Weldon, matron of honor; and bridesmaids, the Misses Avril Brett, Marilyn Gibson, Maureen Marson and Jacqueline Marson. The young niece of the groom-elect, Linda Graff, North Surrey, will be flower girl. Best man will be Mr. Wayne McMurry, North Surrey, and ushering will be Mr. John Weldon and Mr. Pat Cummings.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

"I Give Up and Under-Stitch by Hand"

"Dear Eunice Farmer:

"When do you suggest using top-stitching instead of under-stitching for facings and collars?

"I find under-stitching by machine almost impossible and end up doing it by hand. Is this usually necessary? Your column is very helpful, giving me courage to tackle things I've never done before."

Mrs. N.L.P.

Dear Mrs. N.L.P.:

I'm afraid from the tone of your letter that there is some misunderstanding of the word "under-stitching." This word got its name because it is actually "under" the right side of your garment. It is quite important because it will keep facing edges from slipping out and showing from the right side of your garment.

Under-stitching can be done on almost any faced edge. If the edge is curved, you must clip the curve first.

Next, bring all the seams toward the facing, and machine stitch on the right side of the facing, very close to the seam line. You will not be able to get up too close to any corner, so don't pull your garment out of shape trying to.

For answers to your sewing problems write Eunice Farmer, care of this newspaper.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Fabric colors may be repeated with striking effect in your living room. An accent wall may match one of the colors in patterned slipcovers.

Your own personality adds style to a costume. No matter if the garment is right off the rack, it won't look the same on you as duplicate appears on another woman.

The deep cloche, done in velours and a glowing color, is meant to keep company with a 1920's hairdo. Try one and see.

On Salt Spring

Miss Kathleen Devine, whose marriage to Mr. Michael Giegerich takes place in August, was honored at a garden party shower in the Salt Spring Island home of Mrs. L. G. Mouat. Co-hostesses with Mrs. Mouat in her Churchill Road home were her two daughters, Mrs. Y. Bryant and Mrs. D. Winter, both of Victoria. Gifts were piled on a decorated garden swing and corsages were presented to the guest of honor and her mother, Mrs. Charles Devine. Serviteurs were the Misses Marguerite Gear, Marilyn Parsons, Sally Barker, Susan Fellows, Barbara Newman and Laurie Mouat.

MAKES HISTORY

OTTAWA (CP)—Her Majesty's commission has been granted for the first time to a North American Indian, it was announced here today.

Irene Hoff, 42, of the Obenakies of St. Francis Band, who was born on their reservation at Odanak, Que., 20 miles from Sore, has been commissioned as a lieutenant with posting as assistant adjutant of the 4th Princess Louise Dragoon Guards.

She is supervising clerk in the administrative division of the federal Indian affairs department, where she has worked since coming to Ottawa in 1936.

Smorgasbord

Mr. and Mrs. Archibold H. Stevenson entertained at a smorgasbord dinner held in their Killarney Road home to honor Mr. Stevenson's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wood and their daughter, Hazel, from Galashields, Scotland. DEAR ABBY

You've Got Troubles!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You've got to help me out of this mess. I am a married man with a family. I was laid off my regular job, so I took a job in another state. I got mixed up with a young girl there. I didn't tell her I was married. I did a foolish thing and gave her an engagement ring. I must have been nuts.

She told me last Friday she is in a family way, and we have to get married right away. I can't marry her because I am already married. I know her father, and I am afraid he will kill me. If I run out on her and am caught, will they put me in jail? My job pays good money, and I don't want to leave town. How do I get out of this mess?

STUPID AND MESSED UP

DEAR STUPID: I doubt if you'll be lucky enough to get into a nice, safe jail. Tell your girl friend about your wife. Then tell your wife about your girl friend. Then tell a lawyer about both of them. And pray.

DEAR ABBY: How do you stop a grown man of 24 from licking his plate? Yes, Abby. This husband of mine (and father of two children) just loves to lick his plate. He does it all in fun, and to show me what a good cook I am, but the children are going to start to imitate him. Any suggestions would be appreciated.

DOTTIE

DEAR DOTTIE: If your great, big over-grown boy does not stop licking his plate—give HIM a licking.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My daughter was asked to be a bridesmaid again. This will be the third time this year. Each time she had to buy her own dress and shoes, and get a present for the bride. Each time it has run us about $60.

Our daughter goes to college and does not earn her own money. We have another child in college, and have to budget ourselves very closely to make ends meet.

Am I wrong in thinking that if the bride's mother wants her to have a big wedding, with bridesmaids, she should pay for the bridesmaids' dresses?

CUTTING CORNERS

DEAR CUTTING: The most common practice is for the bridesmaids to buy their own gowns. The other way is the exception, and not the rule. The bride's mother has an obligation to keep the dress modestly priced. If she wants super-duper bridesmaids' dresses, she should buy them. Generally, if a bridesmaid can't afford to buy her own dress more than once, she should decline the invitations.

* * *

What's bothering you? For a personal reply, write to Abby, 205 Park Road, Burlingame, Calif. Include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

* * *

For Abby's booklet, "How To Have a Lovely Wedding," send 50c to Abby, 205 Park Road, Burlingame, Calif.

CLUB CALENDAR

Sixth Arbutus (St. Paul's) Scout and Cub Groups, annual garden party, Wednesday, 2.30 to 4.30 p.m., at home of Mr. and Mrs. Les Fuller, 1162 Hadfield Street, Esquimalt. Tea, home cooking, sewing, plants and flowers, white elephant, novelty stalls, games.

Neat Cut

If both sides of the knife are coated with butter when cutting a meringue pie, the meringue will remain undisturbed.

Bride's Cousin at Organ For Wedding In Esquimalt

Mrs. Barbara McColl, cousin of the bride, played traditional wedding music as Joyce Kathleen Staniforth entered Esquimalt United Church for her recent marriage to Robert Dean Perry. White gladioli and pink carnations flanked the altar for the ceremony at which Rev. Howard Turpin officiated.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Selwyn C. Staniforth, 742 Lampson Street, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Perry, 4445 Torquay Drive. Mr. Staniforth gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride wore a floor length gown of Chantilly lace, styled with a fitted bodice, scoop neckline and full skirt. Sleeves ended in lily points. For "something old" she wore a fingertip length veil, lent to her by Mrs. C. Williamson, who had worn it at her own wedding 12 years ago. It misted from a bandeau of white petals. A single strand of culture pearls and matching earrings, gift of the groom, was her only jewelry. White roses, stephanotis and fern were in the cascade bouquet.

Miss Mary Staniforth attended her sister in a pink chiffon gown and matching headdress of petals and tiny veil. She carried a bouquet of white and pink roses and fern.

Frank Perry, brother of the groom, was best man and ushering guests were Robert Gibb and Richard Gill.

Receiving guests at the reception held in the home of the bride's parents, the bride's mother wore a beige suit with soft green hat and gloves, black patent shoes and bag. A green printed two-piece silk dress with beige and bone accessories was chosen by the groom's mother. Both had corsages of white roses.

Pink and white color theme was carried out in the flowers that decorated the rooms and on the bride's table that was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, made by her mother.

C. Williamson proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kenward and Robert, Mr. and Mrs. Ron Green and Susan, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Littlejohn and Bobbie, all of Vancouver; Miss Charlotte Partridge and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sutherland of Naramata, B.C., and Mrs. Charles Higgins and Mr. and Mrs. Jay Higgins of Parksville.

Leaving for a honeymoon trip up-Island, the new Mrs. Perry donned a beige and tan printed sheath, white hat and gloves and black patent shoes and bag. Ensemble was topped with a beige duster on which was pinned a red rose corsage.

Newlyweds will make their home at 2821 Irma Street.

When friends "drop in" for a visit, Miss Helen Kishinsky loves nothing better than to get out her silver samovar and serve them tea—Russian style. Samovar, made in Tula, a city that's famous for its samovars, was among possessions her family saved in their flight from the Communists.

This Russian Story Has a Happy Ending

By PAT DUFOUR

The little fox terrier whimpered. The tiny girl hushed her pet and huddled close to her parents as they fled from the Siberian city of Irkutsk across the border into Manchuria—and safety. It happened a long time ago but to Miss Helen Kishinsky it's just as real as if it were yesterday.

"I remember it all vividly but it is still too painful to talk about."

Her father was an officer in the Imperial Army, serving under Admiral Kolchak in Siberia.

"When the admiral's army was defeated in 1920 the British and Japanese consuls helped us to escape."

CPR SETTLERS

The family lived in Manchuria for four years and came to Canada in 1924. They were among those who were settled on Canadian Pacific Railway farms.

Farming not being Mr. Kishinsky's forte, they finally settled in Edmonton, where Helen's parents ran a grocery store until 1948, when Mr. and Mrs. Vladimir Kishinsky came to Victoria.

The rest of Helen's story sounds like something out of "The Arabian Nights"—or its Russian counterpart. But unlike so many Russian tales—this one will have a happy ending.

At the same time Helen and her family were escaping from the Communists, a certain Prince Alexandre Andiyski was forced to flee from the small region of the Caucacus known as Andia, of which he was Khan.

Bulgaria became his second country and he lived there until after the Second World War, coming to Canada in 1948.

He, too, headed for Edmonton and it was in the local Greek Orthodox Church that Helen and Prince Andiyski met.

But the happy ending was still nowhere in sight. Helen came to Victoria to join her parents and the prince married another girl.

The years that bridged the period from then until now were strung together with letters between Helen and him and his wife.

"We were all very good friends. When his wife died two years ago it made no difference to our letter writing until he proposed by mail."

Miss Kishinsky refused to give her answer through Her Majesty's mails but, after taking a trip to Edmonton, last May, she finally said "Yes."

Prince Andiyski arrives in Victoria this weekend and the happy ending will come true when the couple exchange vows in a Greek Orthodox ceremony in Miss Kishinsky's Haultain Street home.

FIRST IN CITY

The ceremony will be performed on Monday, July 31, by Fr. F. Gorelik, Vancouver, and, according to Miss Kishinsky, will be the first such ceremony in Victoria.

It will be her mother's wedding ring that the prince places on Helen's finger and her coronet will be fashioned after the headdress of the Russian national costume.

The end of this tale? "They lived happily ever after," as in all good stories.

But where is another question. The newlyweds will leave for Edmonton shortly after the wedding. But—just in case they decide to return to Victoria—Helen will still keep her Haultain Street home and all its reminders of Russia.

Honored at Government House

His Honor, the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes will entertain at a dinner in Government House on Monday evening in honor of Commodore H. V. W. Groos, RCN, and Mrs. Groos and Commodore John Deane, RCN, and Mrs. Deane. Both Commodore Groos and Commodore Deane and their families will be leaving the city later this summer for Ottawa where the two naval officers will take up new appointments.

To Attend Annual Summer Ball

His Honor, the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes have accepted an invitation to attend the annual summer ball of the Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club to be held at the clubhouse on Saturday, July 29. Ball will mark the culmination of the 64th annual British Columbia lawn tennis championships. Between 500 and 550 guests are expected to attend. Clubhouse will be decorated with flowers and potted plants for the gala affair and guests will dance to the music of Len Acres orchestra. There will be a floor show by the Van Four and cocktails will be served in the lounge at 8.30 p.m.

Among the invited guests are Mr. Waldo Skillings, MLA, and Mrs. Skillings, Alderman Geoff Edgelow and Mrs. Edgelow, Mr. and Mrs. Laurie Wallace, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Down, Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Sadler, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Eager, Mr. Andy Pitkethley and partner, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Jim McArthur, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Morriss, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Rutledge, Maj. W. Merston and Mrs. Merston, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Dunbar, Mr. and Mrs. Keith MacKenzie, Mrs. Dorothy Wrotnowski and Mrs. Pat Dufour.

Festival-Goers

Now that the Vancouver International Festival has started, trips by Victorians to the mainland will undoubtedly increase. The second attraction of the festival, the Military Searchlight Tattoo, began Friday at Empire Stadium. Attending the grand opening and staying in Vancouver for the weekend is Miss Lucy Loveday, 2335 Estevan Avenue. On Saturday, Mr. T. F. Wallace, 205 Cook Street, and his brother, Mr. J. Wallace, of St. Louis, Mo., who is visiting him, will travel to Vancouver to take in the spectacle. Next Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Trueman, 2589 Vista Bay, will be among the thousands of spectators at the stadium.

House Guest

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Holker, 2535 Killarney Place, had as their guest during the past few days, Dr. Warren Cook, an assistant professor of history and geography at Castleton Teachers' College, Castleton, Vermont. While here, Dr. Cook did research at the Provincial Archives for a book on "The Spanish in the Pacific Northwest" which is to be published by the Yale University Press. Dr. Cook left Victoria on Friday to return to his parents home in Spokane for the remainder of the summer.

Married Today

Former Miss Jeanne Myers, whose marriage took place this morning to Mr. Erich Kellner, was guest of honor at a shower given recently by her sister, Mrs. M. A. Gibson, in her Davida Avenue home. Corsage of pink rosebuds and baby carnations was presented to honored guest, while her mother, Mrs. Oma Myers, received corsage of variegated mauve carnations. Clues to hidden gifts were placed in gay balloons. Invited guests were Mrs. B. Kasper, Mrs. T. Gerrath, Mrs. L. Cox, Mrs. B. Paterson, Mrs. A. Chwojka, Mrs. H. Paterson, Mrs. J. Paterson, Mrs. D. Moss, Mrs. J. Zado, Mrs. D. Ward and the Misses Laraine Kasper, Therese Davis and Christina Gibson.

Lingerie Shower

Mrs. Andrew Rittich and Mrs. H. D. Gordon Roberts were hostesses at the latter's Howe Street home at a lingerie shower given to honor Mrs. Christine Francis, whose marriage to Mr. Louis de Macedo will take place July 29. Rose corsages were presented to Mrs. Leonard Cook, mother of bride-elect, and Mrs. Charles de Macedo, mother of groom-elect, while guest of honor received gardenias. Guests attending included Mrs. P. McLoughlin, Mrs. L. St. Hilaire, Mrs. R. Tubman, Mrs. J. Emslie, Mrs. I. de Macedo, Mrs. M. Hodding, Mrs. B. Brinkworth, Mrs. R. Mickelson and the Misses M. Harrison and F. Keiser.

Buffet Dinner

Miss Marion Elliott, whose marriage to Mr. Brian Clements takes place in August, was honored recently at a buffet supper and shower given by Miss Rosemary Flett in the Dean Avenue home of her parents. Pink carnations and white candles centred the table, and a miniature church concealed gifts. A corsage of deep pink carnations was presented to Miss Elliott, while her mother, Mrs. W. A. Elliott, mother of groom-elect, Mrs. R. Clements, and bride-elect's maternal grandmother, Mrs. J. Bianco of Duncan, received pale pink carnations. Miss Dorothy Flett and Miss Rosalind Butcher assisted in serving, and other guests included Mrs. M. H. Flett, Mrs. W. C. Simpson, Mrs. I. Clarkson, Mrs. M. Johnstone, Mrs. S. Liska, Mrs. E. Murrell, Mrs. R. D. Greggor, Miss Sylvia Firth and Miss Judy Greggor.

Wedding Guests

Many guests have come from out-of-town for the marriage this morning of Miss Jeanne Myers and Mr. Erich Kellner. They include Mr. and Mrs. G. Budge, Mr. and Mrs. T. Lazenby, Mr. Neil Carlson, Miss J. Gill, Mr. and Mrs. G. Slough, Mr. D. Ready, Mr. and Mrs. V. Carlson and family, Mr. J. McConnachie, Mr. and Mrs. H. Marshall and family, all of Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. Bent Buemann, Mr. L. Zalaudeck and Mr. N. Cornish from Richmond; Mr. Rainer Kellner, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. H. Dunaway, Williams Lake; Mr. and Mrs. W. Glass, Bellevue, Wash.; Mrs. E. Adams, Ashcroft; Mr. R. West, Peachland; Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Chwojka, Chilliwack; Miss R. Kuntz, Saskatoon, Sask., and Mr. Charles Stephen, Courtenay.

Myers-Kellner Vows Exchanged

A profusion of mauve and white stocks with pink carnations decorated St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church this morning for the impressive nuptial mass which united in marriage Miss Elizabeth Jean Myers and Mr. Erich Kellner. Vows were repeated before Fr. M. J. McNamara.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Oma Myers, 1905 Lee Avenue, and Mr. and Mrs. Franz Kellner of Daetzingen, Germany.

Given in marriage by her father, the petite dark-haired bride was lovely in a waltz-length Coronette model gown fashioned of Chantilly lace in pale amethyst shade. Full skirted gown with scalloped hemline and fitted bodice with tiny straps was topped with a brief jacket in sheerest silk, with softly gathered wrist length sleeves. A cascading bouquet of white gardenias and stephanotis completed the picture.

Matron of honor, Mrs. F. R. Shwojka, sister of the bride, and bridesmatron, Mrs. M. A. Gibson, wore identical gowns of white pure silk organza, sashed in orchid shade, with applique of mauve orchids highlighting bell-shaped skirt. Matching orchid bandeaux with tiny veils finished their ensembles. They carried bouquets of cascading mauve and white gladioli.

Graham Budge of Vancouver was best man, and Rainer Kellner of California and Fred Chwojka of Chilliwack ushered. Mrs. Leslie Gill played Schubert's "Ave Maria" during signing of the register.

Kennedy pink was the shade of the silk Shantung sheath dress worn by the bride's mother. Designed by Rene, it had a high round neckline, softly draped waistline and three-quarter length sleeves. Accessories were white and corsage, gardenias.

A reception will be held this evening at the War Amputation Hall on Oak Bay Avenue. Melvin A. (Gibbie) Gibson, the bride's brother-in-law, will propose a toast to her happiness. A four-tier wedding cake will centre the head table.

When they leave on a honeymoon trip to the interior of the province the new Mrs. Kellner will wear an original design suit by Louis Schrier in Persian pink boucle with short toning pop-over jacket. Her flowered hat will match her ensemble and accessories and top coat will be white. She will wear a gardenia corsage.

From Ontario

Dr. and Mrs. William H. Levis and family, Maxine, Beverly, Billie and Richard, Kingston, Ont., are presently visiting in Victoria. While here, they are guests at the Cedar Hill Road home of Mrs. Levis' father, Mr. C. F. Dawson.

Vacation Here

Wing Cmdr. J. Wicken and Mrs. Wicken will arrive tomorrow with their family from St. Hubert, P.Q., to spend a month's vacation with Mrs. Wicken's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Armstrong, at 448 Quebec Street.

Dianne Bassett Makes a Charming Bride In Cadboro Bay Ceremony This Afternoon

A portrait neckline outlined with lace and pearl applique framed the lovely face of Bette Dianne Bassett at her marriage this afternoon to Kenneth Leonard Elder. Her bouffant gown was of corded silk with a flowing chapel-length train. A pearl diadem held in place a misty double tulle veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and gardenias.

Bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. L. W. Bassett, 3040 Beach Drive and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Elder of Vancouver.

Father of the bride gave her in marriage during the ceremony performed by Rev. William Hills in the Church of St. George the Martyr at Cadboro Bay. White gladioli, carnations and ivy decorated the church. Gordon Britton played the Lord's Prayer during the signing of the register.

Best man was the bride's brother, Michael Bassett. Ushers were Sid Watson, Duncan, and Robert Brown, Vancouver.

Attendants, Miss Carole Howay and Miss Jane Langdon, wore panniered gowns in periwinkle blue peau de soie. Their tiny veiled pill box hats were en tone. White gladioli, set in periwinkle blue tulle with white streamers, formed their bouquets.

At the reception held in the Union Club, decoration on the head table carried out the blue and white theme. Wedding cake was flanked by cut glass bowls containing miniature white roses and periwinkle blue scabiosa.

Dr. D. B. Roxburgh proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

For the wedding trip to California, the new Mrs. Elder chose a midnight blue imported Italian suit, strikingly accented by a white feather beehive hat, and white accessories. Corsage was of white carnations.

The newlywed couple will make their home in Vancouver.

Here for Wedding

Guests in Victoria this weekend for the wedding today of Miss Dianne Bassett to Mr. Kenneth Elder, in St. George the Martyr Church, include the bride's grandmother, Mrs. J. R. Conway, and Mr. and Mrs. R. Brown, all of Kelowna; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Conway of Kamloops, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ringering of Walla Walla, Wash. and Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Sinclair of South Burnaby.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our many friends and relatives, also to the members of A.F. & A.M. for their kindness and sympathy extended to us at the death of our beloved wife and mother, also our deepest thanks for the beautiful floral tributes.—William John Boorman, Harry and Family.

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to kind friends for their expressions of sympathy during our recent bereavement in the loss of our dear husband and father. We especially wish to thank Dr. John R. Le Huquet and the Fraternal Order of Eagles.
—Daisy Rhode and Family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

ASHTON—In memory of a loving wife and mother, who passed away July 15, 1961.

Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days;
Sincere and true in her heart and mind,
Beautiful memories she left behind.
—Husband, Charles Ashton, and daughters, Sylvia, Maisie, Pauline and Queenie.

LITTLE—In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Robert H. Little; and son and brother, Peter Little, who left us so suddenly.

One by one they go before us,
They are fading like the dew,
But we know they're watching o'er us.
They, the good, the fair, the true,
They are waiting for us only,
Where no pain can ever mar,
Dear ones who left us lonely
Watch us through the gates ajar;
There a father, there a brother,
Gone within those gates ajar.
—Always remembered by the loving Family.

BRIDGE LESSON

Opening lead—♥ Q

West opened the queen of hearts against South's three no-trump contract and East made no effort to save his king. He put it right on his partner's queen. Hearts were continued and while South held off until the third lead it did him no good. West's suit was established while he still held the ace of diamonds and South had to go down. Actually, he went down two because he did not cash his eight top tricks.

Five clubs is a cinch against any lead. In fact, six clubs makes against any opening but a heart.

The hand is a hard one to bid, but South should have kept his side out of the no-trump trap by bidding three hearts rather than three no-trump.

West would probably have doubled that for a lead and the double would surely have kept North and South out of no-trump. Even without a double by West it is likely that North would have gone to four clubs over the three-heart bid whereupon South would have closed the bidding at five.

SIDING

"Keystone" clear kiln-dried siding is the finest available — a quality material for all applications where perfection is required.

THE LUMBER

Western red cedar lumber is noted for its exceptional durability, light weight and beautiful color, ranging from almost pure white of the narrow sapwood to redish brown heartwood. It is very easily worked, is free from pitch, takes and holds stains, paints and enamels excellently, and is superior for gluing. Because of these qualities, Western red cedar is especially adaptable for use as bevel siding for quality homes.

DURABILITY

Western red cedar is one of the most durable species known. Its heartwood is highly resistant to decay, and can be counted on for long and worthy service where conditions favoring decay prevail.

WEATHERING CHARACTERISTICS

Left exposed without paint or other protective finishes, Western red cedar weathers to an intriguing grey color having little or no sheen. It is one of the most stable species of lumber, having very little tendency to cup and pull loose from fastenings when exposed to the weather.

INSULATING QUALITIES

Western red cedar has the highest insulating value of all commonly-used soft woods—another point in its favor as siding, and of particular importance when used as roof decking.

$2775 DOWN Or Less if Desired BY A PROMINENT ARCHITECT

This is a home for the discriminating buyer who can appreciate the fullest extent of this amazing home. The exterior is siding with stucco panels designed and colored by the architect to add to the distinctiveness of this home. This 3-bedroom home has features only a fine architect can think of. The private, yet friendly entrance—a foyer with obscure glass panels and a dropped ceiling; the use of panelled glass for light and solar heat in the living room and dining room—this is in addition to the large windows. The fireplace is large and the distinctive panelling goes up to the natural wood post and deck ceiling. The kitchen has many hardwood cabinets, Formica counter tops and dining space. It has a ceramic tiled bathroom and full basement. The architect has chosen his colors to accentuate the many, many features of this home. The NHA payments are $95 (P. & I.) and though it compares favorably with the $25,000 house, this home is priced at only

No Evidence, 'Possession' Case Dropped

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Decision was reserved by a magistrate here Thursday when the Crown requested a charge of illegal possession against Walter J. Smith be dropped.

Smith has acted as campaign manager in past elections for Highways Minister Gaglardi.

He was charged June 30 with illegal possession of a chain saw, rifle and other goods.

Crown counsel D. R. Andrews said there was not sufficient evidence to continue with the case.

Defence counsel Peter Millward objected, saying the withdrawal would make it possible for another charge to be laid.

A decision is expected July 19.

Russia Halts Baltic Ships

HELSINKI, Finland (Reuters)—Russian warships today stopped British, French, Swedish and Finnish vessels in the Baltic, it was reported here.

Word of the action by the Soviet vessels was given by Capt. Leif Strandvik of a Finnish vessel that was stopped. All the halted ships were later allowed to continue their journeys with no explanations given, he said.

Jerome Wins Dash At London Meet

LONDON (CP) — Harry Jerome of Vancouver today sprinted to victory on a rain-soaked track in the 100-yard event in Britain's track and field championships, doing the course in 9.6 seconds.

Cuban Hubby Jailed

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Cuba's controversial revolution has figured indirectly in the domestic troubles of a Cuban couple. Adub Soliva, in suing for divorce Thursday, said his wife Angela refused to leave Havana and seek refuge in the United States with him. Soliva said his wife informed on him and he was jailed. Later he was freed and made his way to Miami.

KNEELING BAN IN RED CHURCH

VIENNA (Reuters) — Frequent kneeling and bowing during religious worship is a threat to Bulgaria's economic progress because it weakens the worshippers physically, the Bulgarian Communist newspaper Otechestven Glas said in an issue reaching here today.

VICTORIA delegates to the New Party inaugural convention in Ottawa July 31 - Aug. 4 will be Michael Audain, 23, above, of 333 King George Terrace, and city lawyer Mrs. Marney M. Stevenson. Mrs. Stevenson will serve on the newly-formed national council of New Party clubs. Mr. Audain returned here recently from Mississippi where he was jailed after joining the U.S. Freedom Riders in their tests of segregation laws. CCF delegates to the convention will include Neil Hindle, Geoffrey Mitchell, Dr. J. M. Thomas and Pat Thomas, all former election candidates.

Congo Session Still Delayed

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — The United Nations expressed optimism today that the long-awaited Congolese parliament session would get under way next week. But there appeared little hope that the session would begin for at least four more days.

The parliament session was originally scheduled to open today in Leopoldville's closely guarded Lovanium University. Less than half of the lawmakers were in the Leopoldville area and key delegations of Antoine Gizenga, head of the Stanleyville regime, and of Katanga, President Moise Tshombe, had failed to show so far.

Woman Injured When Car Hit, Rolls Over

A Saanichton woman was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital today after the car in which she was riding rolled over at the intersection of Colville and Tillicum.

Mrs. Louise Sawchuck, 25, of 850 Barkley was reported in good condition with severe scalp lacerations and undetermined injuries.

Police said the car, driven by Nels Rosenland, 512 Simcoe, was struck from behind by a car driven by Wilfred Lewey, 916 Tolmie, at 1.30 a.m. and suffered heavy damage when it rolled.

Nine Seamen Jailed After Riot Act Read

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (UPI)—Nine members of the Seafarers' International Union were carted off to jail Friday night when they refused to disperse after Mayor Ivan Buchanan read the Riot Act to an unruly crowd of seamen.

The demonstration was designed as a protest against alleged threats by a rival union against 15 fellow union seamen aboard the Northern Venture, a lake freighter now tied up at Port Weller drydock for repairs.

The SIU men said their union mates were threatened with baseball bats when they refused to join the Canadian Seamen's Martime Union, an offshoot of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers.

Most of the seamen remen retreated after the reading of the Riot Act but the nine arrested were still hovering around the docks. They were arraigned before a justice of the peace today and have been remanded to Lincoln County Jail to await trial.

Police seized two armfuls of what they described as clubs. Strikers, however, said they were stacks of firewood cut and stacked nearby in case the temperature fell below the 65 degree reading predicted for Friday night. Police said the pile of fuel included a new axe handle.

Police Probe Death of Aged Bootlegger

(Compiled from CP)

VANCOUVER — Homicide detectives Friday began an investigation into the death of Quon Won, a 74-year-old crippled Chinese recluse, who moved outside his dingy skid road rooming house only once in 15 years.

They said Quon was a bootlegger and that he was injured in a brawl at the rooming house last May. He died in hospital Thursday and detectives termed the death "unnatural"—probably due to head injuries.

The officers are questioning witnesses to the brawl but have had trouble tracing some who scattered after the rooming house was gutted by fire last month.

BLINDFOLD ROBBERY

VANCOUVER—A man and a woman led a drinking companion blindfolded from their apartment Friday after robbing him of $43. Wilfred Goldsmith, 51, said the man punched him, took his wallet, covered his eyes with the woman's scarf and led him three blocks away. Goldsmith was unable to recall the address of his assailants' apartment.

VOTE FOR STRIKE

NEW WESTMINSTER — More than 150 employees of four hotels, in New Westminster, Burnaby and Coquitlam, voted Friday in favor of strike action in support of demands for a 15-cent hourly wage increase.

The group, which includes hotel service employees as well as waiters and bartenders, had voted previously to reject a conciliation board report calling for a seven-cent increase in a two-year contract.

More than 500 waiters and bartenders in Vancouver also have rejected the board's recommendations and have voted in favor of a strike. No strike date has been set yet in either case.

HOLIDAYER KILLED

PENTICTON—A Vancouver man was killed Friday when he struck his head on a rock while diving into the Similkameen River near Keremos, 30 miles southwest of here.

Ralph Knock, 40, died of a broken neck.

Police said Knock and his wife, guests at a dude ranch, were swimming in the river.

CUTTERS TO RESCUE

VANCOUVER—Two United States coastguard cutters answered RCAF Search and Rescue emergency calls in two separate marine incidents Friday.

Both vessels were en route here for a weekend visit on an annual reserve training cruise.

The cutter Wachusett assisted in the rescue of one person aboard a 20-foot pleasure boat reported sinking five miles west of Point Grey.

A few minutes later, the fishing vessel Pathfinder was reported in difficulty near Sechelt Peninsula. The cutter Winona sped to the scene and assisted the Pathfinder, which had run aground off Reception Point.

INDIANS WIN

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Squamish Indian band has apparently won its battle against construction of a cement works in front of the twin-spired church on the band's North Vancouver reservation.

This became evident Friday when the National Harbors Board branch here announced it had been decided to halt all work on the area fronting on the reservation. The lease on the project has been suspended.

A harbors board official said the move was made "in the interest of community harmony."

The spokesman also said the Vancouver port manager has been instructed to attempt to negotiate a settlement through the Indian affairs branch of the department of citizenship and immigration.

The Squamish tribe had appealed to Immigration Minister Fairclough to rescind leases granted by the harbors board on two parcels of land along the reservation waterfront. One is the site for the cement works.

Almost 100 Squamish tribesmen milled around the project earlier this week in a demonstration against the works.

Tom Finlay, a member of the band's 16-member council, had said the group would seek a court injunction restraining construction of the plant if the immigration minister did not rescind the leases within 48 hours.

Finlay claimed the harbors board had given his tribe's land away without consulting the tribe.

Villagers Flee Bees

ACCRA (UPI)—Swarms of bees invaded Kopetiem village and drove out its human population today. About 600 persons at the village, 80 miles from here, had to flee because of the bee invasion.

SON DEAD BUT NOBODY TELLS PARENTS

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI)—Every week, regularly as clockwork, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Posa of this suburban Los Angeles community receive a letter from their son, Eugene.

They do not know and probably never will that that Maj. Eugene Posa was among the crew of an RB47 reconnaissance plane shot down July 1, 1960, over the Barents Sea by the Russians.

Friday the air force declared Posa and two other crewmen efficially dead.

But the letters will continue to come from the major, according to his brother, Phillip.

"I can't tell the old folks—the shock would be too much," said the brother, who weekly reads to his 80-year-old parents the letter he composes for his dead brother.

Bursting Bullets Warn Pair

Exploding ammunition may have saved the lives of a Saanich couple early Friday when a fire crept from the basement to the bedroom of their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Julian, 3930 Winton, were awakened by the noise of rifle bullets exploding, and fled to a neighbor's house to call Saanich firemen.

The fire was extinguished after it had gutted the basement which contained a quantity of wood and metal working machinery.

"If the ammunition hadn't warned us," said Mr. Julian, "we probably would not have known of the fire until it was in our room."

The loss was estimated at $6,000.

Princess Pats Outlucked In Rifle Meet

BISLEY, England (CP) — A battered backsight and a split-second time lag dashed the hopes of the Canadian Army team as the last results of the Bisley rifle shoot's service rifle matches became known Friday.

One of the two four-man entries from the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry placed third in Thursday's spectacular Hamilton Leigh challenge trophy match, won last year by the Canadian Black Watch team.

The Hamilton Leigh, an attempt to reproduce combat conditions, demands energy, speed and accuracy. Competitors must scramble 10 yards across three major obstacles, hit the firing point at top speed and shoot down targets 200 yards away.

A new target comes up every five seconds from the time the men start running. To win, a team must clear the target area within a 75-second time limit.

SIGHT WRECKED

The Patricias had put their hopes on their first entry which had trained especially for this event. Unfortunately, their top marksman, Sgt. Ed Zwolak of Victoria, knocked his backsight askew climbing over a truck. Every one of his 10 shots went wide.

The second Canadian entry did much better but lost a chance for a first-place tie with the British army's small arms school corps when officials ruled they had shot down the last target one-fifth of a second after time ran out.

The bad luck in the Hamilton Leigh was the climax of a disappointing series of matches for the army team. They won none of the team competitions and the highest-placed Canadian in the aggregate scoring total was Zwolak, who stood 14th.

Parker Leads Esks to Win

EDMONTON (CP) — Quarterback Jackie Parker's 18-point performance led Edmonton Eskimos to a 24-16 victory over Calgary Stampeders Friday night as Canadian professional football opened its 1961 season on an exhibition note.

Parker crossed the goal line for two touchdowns and added three converts and a 35-yard field goal. Edmonton's six other points came on a touchdown by fullback Johnny Bright.

Calgary's points came on touchdowns by backs Ed Buchanan and Ray Mathews and George Hansen's field goal and convert.

About 10,000 fans turned out.

PRACTICE SESSION

Players of the Butler Bros.' juvenile "B" lacrosse team are asked to report for a practice at 10 a.m. Sunday at Carnarvon Park.

Conscription Opponent Dies at 77

CHATEAUGUAY, Que. (CP)—Maxime Raymond, 77, once a controversial figure in Canadian politics, died Friday night at his summer home in this community 20 miles south of Montreal.

Mr. Raymond was a member of the House of Commons for stituency from 1925 until 1949 when he retired from politics, a somewhat disheartened and disillusioned man.

First elected as a Liberal, he staunchly backed that party until the early 1940s when he split sharply with the late prime minister Mackenzie King over the government's handling of Canada's war effort.

Mr. Raymond crossed the floor of the Commons and founded his own party — Le Bloc Populaire Canadien. He felt the government was wrong in calling for an all-out effort to fight a war on foreign soil. He argued that Canada's effort should be kept moderate, that there should be no conscription and that Canadian soldiers should remain at home to defend their own country.

Live Like a Boy On Ol' Man River

By HORACE SUTTON

RED WING, Minn. — Any man can be a boy on the river here in Red Wing where Main Street is just a block from the main channel of the Mississippi. Pilot-yourself houseboats are tied up at the docks waiting for overgrown Tom Sawyers to take them lumbering down river.

Sutton

Renting your own floating summer cottage costs $250 a week for a brand new houseboat that sleeps six, or $175 a week for a 27-footer that sleeps two comfortably, four in a pinch. Both boats rent complete with built-in bath, galley equipped with ice box and gas stove, and a bell with a lanyard. Licences are not needed for either size boat and the commodore at Jorgy's Marine will check out pilot-yourself skippers in 10 minutes.

Rent Anything

Just opposite Colvill Park in Red Wing you can rent anything from a bike on a raft made of inner tubes to a flat-top pontoon boat with canvas sides and fringed awning on top. Jet-propelled boats, for the advanced set, are on sale at $3,995.

There are two directions on the Mississippi starting from these parts—up to St. Paul or south clear to New Orleans. That's the life of citizens who live in river towns like Red Wing and Winona, many of whom park their craft in floating boathouses that ride on poles stuck in the river bed. When the weekends come they slide open the garage doors on the boathouse and buzz out into the river.

Good for Frying

Towboats, cruisers, houseboats, commercial fishermen and water skiers are the main traffic on the Mississippi these days. Commercial fishermen take carp, buffalo, drum and catfish. Sports fishing is best in the Upper Mississippi, especially large mouth bass that lurk in the running sloughs, and that local favorite, walleyed (that is, "Popeyed") pike. Fried golden brown it is a dish for kings or out-of-state tourists. The Hot Fish Shop in Winona and Nybo's in Red Wing are the practitioners of the art.

The ancient creature called the paddlefish lives in the Upper Mississippi. Its only relative is domiciled behind the Bamboo Curtain along the River Yangtse, probably in deep water communes. The fast waters around here will sometimes yield a giant sturgeon, an event which produces simultaneously, a wall-eyed tourist. Fish markets along the river supply, among other tidbits, smoke carp which, swallowed with cold beer, is the ideal antidote for a warm day.

Racing Beavers

Spotting a blue heron, a crane, an egret or a bald eagle is a sport along the river, and so is racing beavers. A 284-mile run of riverland clear to Rock Island, Ill., is under the control of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and sandbars are open for those who would like to picnic or camp. Most houseboats and pontoon boats carry their own charcoal broilers, but lazy river types can merely put in a call to the Winonna Hotel in Winona, which has a river catering service. Just mention what slough you are parked in, or on which sandbar you are aground and they will dispatch a skiff with all the vittles and potables.

'Locking Through'

There are 26 sets of locks and dams between St. Louis and St. Paul. The U.S. Army Engineers have issued a booklet explaining the etiquette of "locking through," an event which will fascinate the pint-sized pilots. If the locks and dams are an impediment to clear sailing, they are a blessing to the fishermen who congregate on the floats below the dams. Float and boat fishing below dams is a great sport that sometimes produces a 50-lb. catfish, if not a caviar-stuffed sturgeon.

There are few steamboats still comin' round the bend in the Mississippi, but in Winona you can take a ride on one, the Hiawatha Belle. It sets out twice a day on a trip through the locks. For any one who has a large circle of friends the Belle can be chartered for $30 the hour.

Steamboat Museum

A marvelous musuem of steamboat days has been built into the old riverboat Julius C. Wilkie, a paddlewheeler that has been brought ashore on the banks of Winona's Levee Park. Kids can visit the wheel house, ring the back-up bell and hear the calliope that once provided the music on the showboats. The old machinery has been spruced up, there is a collection of models and old posters that recall the salad days along the river.

Winona also has an otter sanctuary south of town where the furry types perform capers for the wall-eyed tourists. Outside the sanctuary, local residents can legally trap for muskrat, mink, beaver and otter. More than a million and a half dollars in pelts have been taken in the past 20 years during the season, which runs from November to January. At other times of the year everyone is busy with the tourist trapping season which runs from Memorial Day to Labor Day.

Commission Green Light For Ladysmith Expansion

LADYSMITH—Extension of the Ladysmith village boundary, are proposed by Ladysmith Chamber of Commerce, has been recommended to the government by a special three-man commission appointed by the municipal affairs minister.

Only three minor changes were made by the commission in the chamber's original plan.

Because of the exhaustive study made of the scheme by the commission, it is expected the government will accept the recommendation as a matter of course. There is no indication of a date when an order-in-council will be made proclaiming the new boundaries.

It is estimated the change would increase the area of the village by about 10 times, and the population by 40 per cent for a new total of 2,900.

Southern boundary would be moved two miles to the Holland Creek area, and the northern boundary would be moved further northward by one-half mile.

The only organized objection to the amalgamation move came from the southern area.

'FIERCE' FELLOW REALLY FRIENDLY

Fierce in appearance but harmless by nature, tiny horned chameleon from Cameroons, in Africa, perches happily on shoulder of Tosca Oyen, wife of Duncan zookeeper Jim Oyen.

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

Gamble

WEST COAST ADVOCATE—This is an important year in the annals of the Fisheries Department as far as development and propogation of salmon species is concerned in this west coast area. They are awaiting the pay-off, if there is to be a pay-off, on their gamble in the development of the fishways on Robertson Creek at Great Central.

Some two years ago the first lot of artificially-hatched pink salmon were released from the new type hatching pens, constructed at a cost of $256,000, and since that time fingers have been crossed hoping that the great experiment will pay off.

Today, the Fisheries officals are waiting and watching very closely the trend of incoming fish. They are looking for any fish of this species that will tell them that the pinks are coming . . . and we hope with them that the fish will return to their spawning beds as is the custom of all species of fish. Once they do this the run of pinks will be established.

Sid In the City

COMOX DISTRICT FREE PRESS—In Courtenay, Sid Williams is Sid, no matter whether he's in the costume of a savage Century Sam, or Popeye.

In Vancouver it's rather different, it appears.

To the musicians union he's just another man who isn't allowed to perform without a professional pianist.

To the daily newspaper, it seems, he's a protege of a radio station and no fit subject for press cameras.

It was supposed to be a big thing for Vancouver, was the Tourist Week promotion and Sid, as Century Sam, was invited over to help.

But big deal or no big deal, tourist promotion or not, Sid couldn't sing with an amateur pianist and had to recite his Century Sam songs and although Vancouver heard him, they couldn't see him because of the press picture ban.

Isn't Vancouver the place that wants to be capital of Canada; to have summit conferences there; that wants to be thought of as the big city that the whole of the west comes to for holidays?

Surely this is pretty small town stuff for a big city.

CF-101's COMING SOON

New Jets Ordered For Comox Base

OTTAWA (UPI)—Five Royal Canadian Air Force squadrons at Comox, Ottawa, Bagotville, Que., and North Bay, Ont., will receive the 66 CF-101 Voodoo jet interceptors recently acquired to replace the aging CF-100, Defence Minister Harkness disclosed Friday.

The aircraft, with speeds of up to 1,200 miles an hour to its credit, will be delivered to the bases as soon as training of each squadron's crews is completed, Harkness said.

The squadrons receiving the Voodoos included in the defence deal with the U.S. are the 410 all-weather squadron at Ottawa, 413 and 432 squadrons at Bagotville, 414 squadron at North Bay and 409 squadron at Comox.

The first group of aircrew to undergo Voodoo training will attend courses in the U.S. this month and a total of 10 crews now operating the CF-100s will be trained to combat readiness on the new planes, Harkness said.

The five squadrons will then undergo further training at RCAF station Namao, Alta.

Paul Hertel Zoo to Close

NANAIMO—Zoo founded at Wellington by Paul Hertel, then taken over by Dan Detwiler a year ago, will close shortly.

Operating permit issued by the game branch has expired, and Mrs. Detwiler, speaking for her husband, said it will not be renewed.

Three years ago a lioness escaped from the zoo, and killed a five-year-old girl before being tracked and shot by hunters.

Pneumonia Found Cause of Death

NANAIMO (CP) — A coroner's jury has ruled that the death of a Nanaimo man on his wedding day was caused by virus pneumonia.

Coroner Dr. H. W. Lewis told jurors hotel employee A. W. E. Wick, 32, died from acute fulminating pneumonia which acted very quickly.

Mr. Wick was found dead in his bed July 7, 12 hours before he was to have been married.

$14,344 GRANT AWARDED LIBRARY

NANAIMO—A grant of $14,344 to the Vancouver Island Regional Library has recently been authorized by the provincial government, through the Public Library Commission.

The money will be used to help in meeting the ever-increasing demand for books in the Vancouver Island area.

Jury Rejects Testimony Of Witness

Testimony of James Redlin, Glen Lake, owner of a car in which Mrs. Loretta May Purcell of Sooke suffered fatal injuries early Sunday morning, was rejected Friday by a coroner's jury.

Redlin testified at an inquest at Sands that he was driving the car which crashed on Sooke Road at 5.30 a.m.

The jury, however, brought in a verdict of accidental death, "and the driver was unknown."

There was conflicting evidence from witnesses regarding the tragedy.

Cpl. P. A. Eastman, RCMP, of Sooke, said that when he arrived at the scene of the accident, Redlin was in the back seat of the car holding Mrs. Purcell in his arms. She died in hospital about four hours later.

STRONG SMELL

Occupants said at the time they did not know who was driving, he stated. The car smelled strongly of liquor and there were broken beer bottles in the wreckage, according to the police report.

Mrs. Marie Carlson of Sooke, third occupant of the car, said at the scene she had been driving until shortly before the accident, and that Redlin then had taken over. Speaking from a wheel chair at the inquest, she said the car was not being driven recklessly.

Redlin, speaking under protection of the Canada Evidence Act, told the jury the outside wheel of the car pulled off the pavement, and that the car ran into rock at the side of the road. He estimated his speed at the time as 40 miles per hour.

A CINCH FOR ROUNDABOUT-TRAINED DRIVERS

Involved as an abstract painting but as utilitarian as a monkey wrench this aerial picture of the Decarie Boulevard interchange, part of new Montreal expressway shows seven roads, allowing traffic to enter and leave at three levels. The east-west expressway will stretch 33 miles and cost $100,000,000.

Negro Rides Ball Over Niagara Falls

Few Scratches Only Injuries

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A New York City Negro from the Bronx went over the 162-foot horseshoe falls in a giant rubber ball today and survived with only a few cuts and scratches.

Nathan Boya, 30, declared cheerfully from his hospital bed: "I always wanted to make this trip and now I have—I felt it was something I had to do."

Boya, who gave his occupation as self-employed and said he is a member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, quipped to hospital staff that he had just "inegrated the falls."

The daredevil was taken to hospital here under police guard for examination overnight. A first check, including a chest x-ray, showed only abrasions to his back and both arms.

A police spokesman said Boya will be charged under the Niagara Parks Act which forbids such stunts in the park system.

Chief Edwin Refeld of the parks commission police, who watched Boya's voyage but was powerless to stop him, said the New Yorker told him: "I made it all right and I'm happy.

"I don't care what happens—talk to my attorney."

Boya took his spectacular plunge within view of hundreds of tourists—and the police—at about 10.45 a.m. He opened a hatch in the ball and waved to spectators on Table Rock Plaza after his drop.

1,250-Pound Sphere Dented In Drop

His craft, a 1,250-pound sphere slightly bigger across than Boya's own height of five feet 10 inches, and dented into a half-moon shape and half filled with water when the daredevil emerged after his trip.

Boya, who called the ball a Plunge-o-Sphere, said he started building it in New York last March but refused to say how he brought it here. He covered a steel frame with six-ply rubber, then a coating of sheet metal and a final coating of rubber. He estimated it cost him $5,000.

Boya, the seventh man to go over the falls intentionally and the fourth to survive the stunt, said he got advice weeks ago from the last man to go over and live, Jean Lussier of Niagara Falls, Ont.

Lussier, who used a rubber ball to make the perilous trip in 1928, warned the New Yorker about the danger of being trapped behind the falls like George L. Stathakis, who suffocated after a plunge in 1930 when his barrel was trapped behind the curtain of water.

Boya carried 13 cannisters of oxygen along with breathing apparatus—enough to last him 30 hours. Inside the ball, he took a semi-reclining position. His head and knees were padded with air cushions.

Boya said that when he was in the river he felt a severe jolt which ripped the hatch partially open. He grabbed a rung in the hatch and held on, thinking he had gone over the falls.

Through a slit in the hatch he could see daylight and realized he had not made the plunge but had entered the treacherous upper rapids.

Held Hatch Down With His Hands

He said he held the hatch down by hand when he went over the brink of the falls.

Boya, who wore a black polo shirt and dark trousers for his trip, was picked up from the river below the falls by a launch belonging to the Maid of the Mist Steamships.

Captain Lawrence McGinn who was accompanied on the launch by Niagara parks police corporal Alex Awada, found Boya peering around and waving from the open hatch of his craft. They took him aboard and towed the ball ashore.

Boya said he first began to plan the stunt 10 years ago when he was studying at the University of Geneva in Switzerland.

Chief Rehfeld said he spotted the big ball moving downriver when it was about two miles above the falls. He ran indoors for his binoculars, checked the craft's progress, then jumped into a car and followed the ball's progress from the shoreline.

The chief said the turblence of the water at the brink of the falls prevented him from seeing Boya go over.

Chief Rehfeld said that when he picked up Boya, the daredevil asked: "Were you the fellow who was following me in the car?"

A year ago last Sunday, young Roger Woodward of Niagara Falls, N.Y., became the first person in history to survive an accidental fall over the cataract.

Roger, then seven years old, was fished out of the water at the base of the falls after he fell from a boat and was swept over.

Disaster Hits Festival

MOSCOW (UPI) — Fashion disaster struck tonight at the Moscow film festival. Liz Taylor and Gina Lollobrigida turned up at a Kremlin reception in the same Christian Dior gown.

Even their hairdoes were the same.

"Oh, how nice to see you," Gina said sweetly to Liz.

The two brunette beauties embraced each other while their eyes flashed fire. From time to time there was an exchange of dagger-like glances.

But no fireworks.

DEAD AT 76

Island May Lose Passenger Train

By AB KENT

The E and N Railway is considering abandoning passenger service on Vancouver Island, an authoritative source said today.

A spokesman for the Canadian Pacific Railway, owner of the historic Victoria-Courtenay line, said he knew "nothing definite."

"There are always a lot of things under study by the company, and this may be one of them," he said.

Any plan to give up passenger service is "not in the near future" at any rate, he said.

It was understood the company has surveyed its passenger trade and found only an average 26 people a day use the service.

This is insufficient even to operate the economical Budd car, a diesel-electric locomotive coach put in service in September 1955 and replaced with a smaller version about a year ago.

ONE TRIP

The line makes one round-trip daily between here and Courtenay, about half way up Vancouver Island, a distance of about 150 miles.

A branch line goes to Port Alberni, on which passenger service was relinquished about four years ago.

First reaction here to the possibilities of the cut was almost indifferent.

MARCH OF PROGRESS

"Not that many people use it. It's the march of progress . . .," said Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Aubrey Kent.

"But it's a pity such a long-established service should pass out of the picture," he added.

Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island will want to know the opinion of all its member chambers before making any statement, according to Eric Mallett, president, of Victoria.

"They will be contacted regarding their views, and we will be having an executive meeting in Nanaimo shortly," he said.

B.C. Electric chairman, A. E. (Dal) Grauer, was reported today to be critically ill of leukemia at Vancouver General Hospital. Doctors said Mr. Grauer, 55, had a difficult night Friday and that his condition is now acute.

TEST BAN PACT TOSSED TO UN

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The United States and Britain today tossed to the UN General Assembly the issue of a treaty on banning tests of nuclear weapons.

Confronted by a deadlock in negotiations with the Soviet Union in Geneva, the two Western powers asked that the test ban issue be put on the agenda of the General Assembly opening Sept. 19.

They asked the assembly to consider "the urgent need for a treaty to ban nuclear weapons tests under effective international control."

Crew Rushed To New Fire

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Forestry officials in the vast Prince George forest district have rushed in 47 men to combat what appears to be a major fire 225 northwest of Prince George.

More crews are already on the way to the fire, some 100 miles north of Fort St. James. The fire is one of three reported burning in the Rocky Mountain Trench some 150 miles north of Prince Rupert.

Canada Speaks Out Against U.K. Market

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government has made it clear that it intends to fight any move by the British government to enter the Common Market.

Canada's position was disclosed Friday in a joint communique issued by the two governments following two days of talks between Duncan Sandys, Britain's Commonwealth relations secretary, and four Canadian Cabinet ministers.

The 250-word communique said the Canadian government's assessment of British membership in the customs union of France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg is different from that put forward by Mr. Sandys.

It showed that Canada is frigid to Britain even entering negotiations to join the Common Market.

Mr. Sandys conferred for 10 hours Thursday and Friday with External Affairs Minister Green, Trade Minister Hees, Finance Minister Fleming and Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton. He also met for an hour with Prime Minister Diefenbaker and plans to return to London Monday.

OPPOSITION STRONGER

Canada's unyielding opposition to British entry into the customs union appeared to be even more critical than that of Australia and New Zealand.

Canada's previously stated position on British entry into the Common Market is that trading interests with Britain will be damaged, perhaps seriously, if the U.K. aligns itself with Common Market countries. For Canada this could mean a loss of Commonwealth tariff preferences in the U.K. and possibly even preferences against Canada.

'FAILING TO COMPETE ABROAD'

DURHAM, England (Reuters) — Opposition Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskell said today Britain was apparently "drifting into a major economic crisis."

He told a group of miners that ministers in the cabinet of Prime Minister Macmillan were "going out of their way to stress the gravity of the situation."

"We are failing to compete effectively with foreign producers. They are outselling us abroad and at home. That is the dead end to which 10 years of Tory economic policy have brought us."

Beginning Of the End?

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (AP)—Sir Roy Welensky, prime minister of the Central African Federation, said today Britain's entering the European Common Market "might well mark the beginning of the end of the Commonwealth."

Welensky, speaking at the opening of an agricultural show, said: "I warn that any serious diminution in status of the United Kingdom as a political entity, coupled with any further lessening of ties which exist between Commonwealth countries and the pivot of that organization, represented in Britain, might well be the beginning of the end of the Commonwealth as a group of nations having any substantial meaning.

'Tighten Your Belts'

HAWARDEN, Wales (AP)—Britain's Conservative government today warned Britons, who enjoyed a spree of post-war prosperity, to brace for some belt-tightening.

Chancellor of the Exchequer John Selwyn Lloyd declared in a speech prepared for a political rally:

"I am determined that some of the present trends in our economy should be changed. I shall recommend such action as I think necessary to secure this, however unpopular or unexpected."

MOB SCENE IN LONDON

Women Hysterical As Yuri Departs

LONDON (Reuters) — Yuri Gagarin, the Russian space man who evoked almost hysterical welcomes from the British, left by air for Moscow today after a five-day visit.

Gagarin, a crowd-puller to the last, was beseiged by a fighting screaming mob of 2,000 when he left the Soviet Embassy to drive to the airport. The scene was typical of his receptions since he stepped off a plane last Tuesday on his first visit to Western Europe.

Gagarin said he was returning home with "most warm memories" of Britain.

As his TU-104 airliner took off, the cheers of thousands of people lining the roof of the airport building could be heard even above the roar of the jet engines.

The spaceman in his farewell statement praised the Queen and Prince Philip, Prime Minister Macmillan and "people prominent in public, political and trade union life" in Britain.

Gagarin, who made history April 12 when he became the first human to orbit earth in a space ship, said the Soviet Union wanted achievements of modern science to be used for peaceful purposes and the enjoyment of mankind.

"That is something which cannot be achieved without a stable peace. May the friendship between the Soviet Union and the people of Great Britain develop and grow strong."

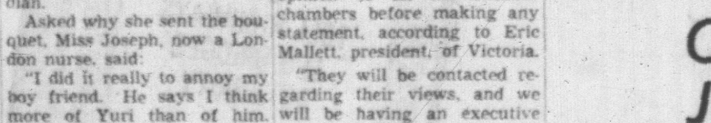
During the embassy scene women fought to get near his open limousine. Some women fell to the ground screaming, shrubs and bushes were trampled to the ground and the embassy lawn badly torn up.

Gagarin remained calm and imperturable, smiling, waving and raising his cap to the fighting crowd.

Shortly before he left the embassy an official accepted a bouquet of flowers for him from Hazel Joseph, a Canadian.

Asked why she sent the bouquet, Miss Joseph, now a London nurse, said:

"I did it really to annoy my boy friend. He says I think more of Yuri than of him. Just the same I hope this does not break up our friendship."



Thet feller at Niagara had himself a ball.

CRIME DOES PAY—JUST ASK 'BIG JOE'

NEW YORK (AP)—Joseph McGowan has learned that people do care.

A lot of them came forward Friday to help the 53-year-old father, to befriend him and, perhaps most important of all, to show him understanding.

Things looked a lot darker Thursday for McGowan, who earns $70 a week as a mail clerk. Faced with a $285 tuition bill for his 19-year-old college student son, he held up a savings and loan association. He was caught only moments later.

It was, ironically, at McGowan's arraignment that his life began to brighten.

His wife, Catherine, from whom he has been estranged for two years, appeared to comfort him. Gerald was there too, standing by his father.

An assistant district attorney assured him the prosecution was sympathetic to his case.

A bail bondsman posted $2,500 bail and waived his fee.

His 40 fellow employees at the Blue Bell Clothing Manufacturing Company raised more than $300 to help "Big Joe" take care of his legal needs.

The firm's management assured him his job would be waiting for him, and the Blue Bell board of directors voted to furnish "substantial financial aid" to McGowan.

And the president of Iona College, which Gerald attends said the youth can register for the fall semester and forget about the tuition he owes.

Smelter Profits Down $1 Million For Six Months

MONTREAL (CP)—Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada Ltd. had estimated net profit in the six months ended June 30 of $11,414,000, or 70 cents a share, compared with $12,882,000 and 79 cents in the corresponding period last year.

The reduction of 11 per cent in net profit, the six-month report says, was caused primarily by decrease in lead and zinc prices, partially offset by a substantial increase in fertilizer sales.

BUSINESS VIEW

U.S. Order Jolts Canada's Oilmen

By GORDON BELL,
Times Business Editor

A bright red stop light was flashing Friday on Canadian oil exports to the U.S. by Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall.

. . . flashes red light

It couldn't have come at a worse time for Canadian oil shareholders who have been hopefully saying that the market had finally bottomed out and oil shares could be expected to improve.

Gordon Bell

Secretary Udall said Canada has "met all its targets for increased oil markets in the U.S.A. this year" and said it is time Canadian exporters took steps to restrain shipments.

Canada's oil exports to the U.S. rose from an average 120,000 barrels daily in 1960 to an average 155,000 barrels daily in the first five months of this year.

The Udall statement will not come as any great surprise to the oil industry which has had plenty of warning that the politically-potent U.S. independent oil producers were not going to tolerate too great an increase in Canadian oil imports.

What is now made clear is that from this point on the national oil policy of production will have to be met mostly by domestic consumption.

TIED TO ECONOMY

The health of the Canadian oil industry is thus tied even more closely to the health of the Canadian economy as a whole—particularly the industrial heart of Canada in Ontario west of the Ottawa Valley where the Canadian-only "oil-shed" begins.

Average daily Canadian production is now over the 600,000-barrel mark but there is no hope of reaching the 640,000-barrel mark projected for year end under the national oil policy.

Mr. Udall's warning to Canadian oil exporters is certain to revive the activities of the Montreal pipeline advocates. They will point out that without assurance of greater gains for Canadian oil in the U.S. the national oil policy target of 800,000 barrels average daily production by 1963 has no chance of being reached.

It becomes clearer now that the national oil policy as a voluntary form of regulation cannot be successful without the complete co-operation of the U.S. government.

The major oil companies cannot provide markets in the U.S. for Canadian oil except at the pleasure of the American government. It is the independent U.S. companies, not the majors, who largely dictate oil import policy — this is a political thing, a matter of votes.

Unless there is a massive economic resurgence in the U.S. and Canada before the end of 1963, sufficient to permit much heavier oil exports to the U.S. and to provide an enormously increased Ontario oil consumption, the Montreal pipeline will have to be built.

Ore else the government will have to default on its promise to achieve the 800,000 barrels daily production rate.

Six top Wall Street analysts surveyed by the New York Times looked for a stock market rise this summer with four of the six linking the rise to inflationary forces in the American economy.

The plants of major chemical users and producers in B.C.—including the British American Paint Company plant at Victoria—will be visited by members of the Canadian Tariff Board the week of July 24.

The board's public hearings in Ottawa to review Canadian chemical tariffs have been suspended for the summer to allow members the opportunity to get first-hand knowledge of the problems of the industry.

The hearings will be resumed in September with at least 20 sessions to go before work on recommendations is started.

Early statistics indicate that this could be one of the best years for a long time for the B.C. caned salmon industry.

The pack to the week ended July 8 totalled 118,466 cases, compared with an average pack of 93,038 cases for the same period in the past six seasons.

Short Term Bond Issue By Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Advance notice of new short-term bond issues next week to raise $175,000,000 in cash for the government was given Friday by Finance Minister Fleming.

Details of two bond issues will be announced Tuesday.

The $175,000,000 will provide part of the government's 1961-62 cash needs, estimated in the June budget at $980,000,000 not counting what may be needed to implement the policy of pushing down the exchange value of the Canadian dollar through the exchange fund.

The announcement also said the Bank of Canada will take up another $175,000,000 of the new issues in exchange for its holdings of three-per-cent bonds maturing next Dec. 1.

Gas Up, Oil Down In B.C. for 1961

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia natural gas production in the first five months of 1961 was ahead of last year's level, but oil production fell behind.

However, sales value of both products, as well as that of gas by-products is greater than last year.

Natural gas production in May totalled 8,600,000,000 cubic feet, against 6,900,000,000 in May, 1960.

Crude oil production in May was 40,028 barrels, well below the 56,276 barrels in May last year.

COOL, BREEZY WEEKEND FORECAST

Thunderstorm Risk Seen in Turret Clouds

The clouds are stacked for a thunder and lightning storm tonight, according to weatherman William Mackie.

"There will be some sunshine this afternoon, but the cloud will close in again this evening," Mr. Mackie said. "There is the risk of showers tonight, and even of a thunderstorm."

Tipoff to the situation was the cloud condition of Friday, when there were high-level cumulus clouds with "turret tops."

Sunday morning will be cloudy, but there will be sunshine in the afternoon, Mr. Mackie said.

Winds will be fairly brisk, he said. They will be from the northwest at 15 to 20 miles per hour Sunday in Georgia Strait, while in Juan de Fuca Strait they will be southwesterly at 15 to 20 miles.

Temperatures will be far removed from the subtropical level of the early part of the week. Minimum tonight will be 55 degrees, and the peak Sunday will be 68 degrees in areas close to the water, and ranging upward to a maximum of 75 degrees inland and away from the sea breeze.

"THIS IS THE LIFE" said motorist J. R. Martin as he sat back and enjoyed the scenery today as a bevy of beauties set to with a will to clean his car. The girls are members of Victoria Girls' Drill Team and they are holding a car wash at the corner of Fort and Foul Bay. Idea is to raise money for new uniforms so the team can put in an appearance at the Kelowna Regatta in August.

'OWNERS' TO SEE SUB

The RCN Pacific Command's new submarine HMCS Grilse will be on view to her 'owners'—federal taxpayers—next Saturday and Sunday.

The navy is surveying the Inner Harbor in the hopes a suitable berth can be found in the heart of the city.

Visiting hours will be announced later.

Early Vote Set On Downtown Parking Scheme

Full Information To Be Provided

First phase of long-term plan to solve the city's parking problem will be submitted to downtown property owners as early as next week.

Owners of the $11,000,000 worth of property in the heart of downtown Victoria will vote on whether to guarantee construction of two off-street parking garages.

Mayor Percy Scurrah today denied an earlier report they would be writing a "blank cheque," or voting blind, without knowing what the costs would be.

"Instead of this being a blind vote, every property owner will be furnished with a very close estimate of the cost, based on wide experience in parking facilites," the mayor said.

175 VOTERS

There are 175 property owners in the downtown core, bounded roughly by Johnson, Government, Broughton and Blanshard.

Based on proposed space for 600 cars, the estimated cost of building the facilities would be $720,000.

The mayor said a fair estimate of the cost of construction per stall is $1,300, according to local rates.

SPECIAL PARLEY

The proposal was hammered out in special camera meeting of city council Friday, where approximate locations for the facilities were chosen, one south of View near Douglas, the other near Langley and Fort.

If the area vote approves, contractors will be asked to tender on construction, which could begin by late this year.

Approval by 60 per cent or more is required to pass the proposal, after which the land may be purchased.

Two other suggestions by the works committee investigating the parking problem, were turned down: to lease two lots owned by Dominion Construction Co. Ltd. for surface parking lots, with option to buy in five years;

NEW METERS

And to use parking revenues, including those from new 10-cent meters, to finance construction of the two garage-type facilities.

Dominion Construction had proposed erecting the building on its terms, and Pigeonhole Parking, of Seatle, also had a scheme, both of which are out of the running with this proposal.

"Tenders would be called for plans based on a known cost of the land," Mr. Scurrah said.

"The cost per stall of such buildings is well known, and therefore the total cost can be very accurately forecast.

INFORMATION

"The council feels that more off-street parking facilities are essential to maintain downtown business and property values, and full information on the proposal will be given to the property holders concerned before they are asked to vote," the mayor said.

He said it is expected all business and professional people would validate parking tickets to allow an hour's free parking by their customers.

SOMETHING NEW NICKEL WON'T BUY

Pause before you plug the parking meter Monday — first day of operation for 10-cent parking.

Metermen begin converting all one-hour parking meters to 10-cents-per-hour, a 100 per cent increase, but are not expected to complete the task for several days.

It is advised that motorists check instructions on each meter in case they may still get by with nickels for 60 minutes of space.

Lumber Blaze Cause Stumps Fire Marshall

Cause of the $150,000 fire at Stewart and Hudson's lumber yard early Friday may never be determined.

Provincial fire marshal's office investigator, David Cummings, said today there was no physical evidence to indicate where the blaze started.

"The damage is so extensive," he said, "that it is impossible to determine the point of origin."

He discounted both arson and spontaneous combustion as possible causes of the fire.

"It's just as silly to call it arson or spontaneous combustion as it is to pin it on defective wiring."

Although no possible cause is completely ruled out at this stage of the investigation, Mr. Cummings and Fire Chief James Bayliss were not inclined to give too much weight to reports a firebug may have been at work.

A little over two hours after the fire started at 12.10 a.m. a local radio station reported three phone calls from a man who said: "Did you like the fire? We will have another one tomorrow night."

"Crank calls," said Mr. Cummings, are not unusual after major fires.

HE: Mmmmm . . . the cat! Something's happened to the cat? WHAT WHAT WHAT WHAT what?

SHE: I don't know what, and I didn't SAY anything had HAPPENED to the cat, I just asked, WHERE is the cat?

HE: Where is she where is she where is she? Don't get excited, tell me where she is.

SHE: I'm not excited, and I don't know where she is, that's why I asked YOU.

HE: I haven't seen her for hours.

SHE: Neither have I.

HE: You haven't? Not for hours? Goodness mercy to Betsy. Don't get excited now, I'm sure nothing bad has happened.

SHE: Nothing bad?

HE: I'm sure she hasn't been eaten by a seagull. Pretty sure, that is.

SHE: Pretty sure? Not certain sure?

HE: Well, I never heard of a cat being eaten by a seagull, but this is a very small cat . . .

SHE: And I've been told seagulls eat just anything.

HE: Don't get excited don't get excited keep calm keep calm calm. We'll organize a search party.

The festival is sponsored by the film board, the Pacific Command of the Royal Canadian Navy, Victoria Public Library and the city parks branch.

Monday night's program includes: Canada Between the Wars, Energetically Yours and A for Architecture.

B.C. movies to be shown are Tight Lines, Fraser Canyon, and Date with B.C.

MONDAY MEETING

Victoria Gyro Club: Noon, Empress Hotel. Film.

Douglas Rotary Club: 6 p.m., Holyrood House. Surprise program.

GENEROUS AID

New Start For Victims Of Fire

The McAllan family, burned out of their home at 3954 Cedar Hill Cross Road Thursday afternoon, will be able to make a new start thanks to the work of welfare officials and the generosity of private citizens.

A house has been found for them in Cordova Bay and essential articles such as basic furniture, kitchen utensils and clothes have been donated from all sides.

Rent for the house will be paid by welfare until William McAllan, due to join a fishboat here Sunday, is able to assume the burden.

WITH FRIENDS

At present Mrs. McAllan with newborn baby James Edward Blake is living with friends, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Ambrose, 5058 Wesley, but the family expects to move into their new home "within three or four days."

A 20-month-old daughter, Mary Elizabeth, is staying with relatives.

Diverse Actors In Power Play

By FRANK RUTTER
Times Legislative Reporter

In a yellow plaster building on Blanshard, in an office above the din of View St., and in the Legislative Buildings, a war of nerves is near breaking point.

The three principals in the three offices are Dr. H. L. Keenleyside, chairman of the B.C. Power Commission; Dr. Gordon Shrum, who as chairman of the B.C. Energy Board works in the View Street building, and Premier Bennett.

Rutter

They are key figures in the future of B.C.'s huge hydro power potential.

* * *

So far the only one who has publicly declared his stand is Dr. Shrum, and it has become clear, he is in the running to become super-chief of power, perhaps heading a new government agency controlling all resources.

He has pretty well signalled the punch of the energy board's report on power, expected in August: B.C. must export its power to the U.S.; it must integrate its resources.

* * *

Premier Bennett won't disclose his personal policy; he will neither confirm nor deny that he plans to take over the private power utilities such as B.C. Electric and the Peace River scheme.

All this leaves Dr. Keenleyside, as head of the government's present public power agency and also a member of the energy board, on a sticky wicket.

He just does not know his future or in what position B.C. Hydro will survive.

* * *

He does know, however, what the studies of the energy board will recommend, and there are reports he does not fully agree.

This could mean he will make a minority report.

Dr. Keenleyside is a confirmed and committed public power man, and has built up a staff of experts capable of handling the entire development of the Columbia River.

It may be significant that this staff, its files and records, are kept entirely separate from the other business of the commission.

* * *

But whatever the reason, power commission officials believe that if there is to be a big public power pool then it should be run by the commission.

It would, in fact, be an extension of the policy under which the commission has, since it was created in 1945, been gradually taking over all the small rural power companies in the province.

This may be the core of any dissent in the energy board, or it may, too, be a head-on clash of personalities.

* * *

The key man in the triangle, the man who will make the big decision in B.C.'s power politics, is Premier Bennett.

And much to the frustration of all concernd, he won't talk.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Monthly meeting of the Air Force Officers Association of Vancouver Island will be held at 8.15 p.m., Wednesday in the Air Cadet building, Patricia Bay Airport.

After the business session, a color film, "Birth of a Jet," will be shown.

A special feature on Victoria's Craigdarroch Castle will be published in the fall issue of the magazine Beautiful B.C. which goes on sale Aug. 1.

The magazine, put out by the B.C. recreation department, will also feature Mayne Island, a voyage up the north coast of Vancouver Island in Uchuk II, a salute to the Royal Canadian Navy and Vancouver's Chinatown.

Ulfert S. Wilke, an artist who is a native of Germany and a citizen of the United States currently studying in Rome on a Guggenheim fellowship, will speak on "Life in Japan—a Way of Art," at Victoria College's summer session on Wednesday evening at 8 in the college auditorium.

Rezoning of Fort Street land for funeral home use is valid in spite of errors and inconsistencies in the description, city solicitor T. P. O'Grady told council Thursday.

The rezoning was challenged by Linn A. Gale, 1032 Craigdarroch, who pointed out several errors in the bylaw and plan referring to funeral home sites.

The mistakes appeared only in copies, not to be confused with the actual bylaw, Mr. O'Grady assured councillors.

A spearfishing meet has been organized by Victoria Skin Divers Club for 11.30 a.m. Sunday at Brentwood Bay.

Miss Victoria, Nina Holden, will present trophies and prizes to the winners.

Stanley Goddard, 31, formerly of Victoria, has graduated as an aeronautical engineer from Southern Alberta Institute of Technology.

The son of Mrs. Elsie Goddard, 919 Vancouver, he is a graduate of Victoria High School and served 10 years in the RCAF.

He will continue his studies at the University of Michigan this fall.

FROM DOUGLAS STREET TO BARKERVILLE TOWN

Ghost Town Gains When 70-Year-Old Home Burns

By AB KENT

The goldrush town of Barkerville will benefit from a fire which gutted a 70-year-old Douglas Street home recently.

Nineteenth-century furnishings which survived the blaze have been acquired by the department of recreation and conservation to help decorate and finish houses in the old goldrush ghost town.

The provincial government undertook to restore Barkerville as a centennial project in 1958, a project now reckoned to run at least 20 years.

It might take that long to obtain enough furnishings of the 1870-1890 era to fill 115 buildings and to erect replicas of the buildings themselves.

However long it takes, the department is assured of a popular following, despite initial scoffs.

C. P. Lyons, one of the directors, says attendance figures have doubled each year since 1958—5,000 visitors that year, 10,000 in 1959 and 20,000 last year.

An early check this season puts attendance 62 per cent ahead of 1960.

Next year is likely to set a record since it will be just 100 years from the day Billy Barker struck it rich on Williams Creek, establishing the richest gold find in the Cariboo.

To coincide, the government will open a new museum in the spring, containing many items donated or obtained by field men constantly on the alert for relics of the period, such as the items found in the home of Miss Edith King, 302 Douglas, whose cavernous Victorian home was bursting with material before the fire.

For example, there are wicker chairs of various sizes, mostly in like-new condition, that were popular as porch and parlor pieces at the turn of the century.

There is an air-tight stove of a type used to heat a sitting room, complete with foot rail around the bottom.

A prize "find," according to field man Bob Nichols, is a brass bed, ornately decorated with varying colors of the metal along the upright rails.

"Victoria has supplied by far the greatest number of furnishings," Mr. Lyons said, due both to the fact that the department is located here and field men know this area well, and because this city was established before Barkerville.

"We don't maintain the stuff originated in Barkerville," said Mr. Nichols. "We just try to reproduce what furniture they had there in that period."

Many other Victoria homes contain furnishings the department would be happy to have for Barkerville, yet few people realize it and burn much of the things as junk.

Besides homes, Barkerville has a restored blacksmith shop, saloon, general store, carpentry shop and hotel and it is planned to add next doctors' and dentists' offices.

Budd, Rudolph Win at Moscow Meet

MOSCOW (UPI) — Villanova stars Frank Budd and Paul Drayton finished 1-2 in the men's 100-meter dash and Wilma Rudolph equalled her own world record of 11.3 seconds in the women's 100-meter dash today to send the United States off to a flying start in its dual track meet with Russia.

Nine Rescued In Okanagan Lake Spill

KELOWNA (CP) — Nine sawmill employees were thrown into Okanagan Lake when their boat capsized near here today.

One of them swam to shore and the others clung to the overturned boat until an RCMP launch came to their rescue.

Police Probe Fatal Saskatoon Fire

SASKATOON (CP) — Police are investigating the possibility of foul play in the death of a man in a Langham, Sask., farm home which burned to the ground five days ago.

Officers said today they still are not satisfied and have uncovered no evidence to indicate the body found in the ruins is that of James Morton Simpson, 32, Langham service station operator missing since a few hours before the fire.

BCE's President In 'Acute' State

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. A. E. (Dal) Grauer, chancellor of the University of British Columbia and chairman of the B.C. Electric Company, is critically ill of leukemia at Vancouver General Hospital.

A B.C. Electric spokesman said today Dr. Grauer, 55, has been under treatment for the blood disease for several months.

'DAL' GRAUER
. . . stricken

Doctors in attendance said he had a difficult night Friday and that his condition is now acute. Dr. Grauer, a Rhodes scholar in the late 1920s, was admitted to hospital two weeks ago.

Dr. Grauer graduated in arts from UBC in 1925. He received his Ph.D. from the University of California in 1929 and his degree in law from Oxford University in 1930.

Dr. Grauer was admitted to the B.C. bar in 1931 and later moved to Toronto, where he was professor and head of the department of social science at the University of Toronto.

He became a member of the UBC Senate in 1945. He was appointed to the board of governors in 1956 and elected Chancellor on the retirement of Chief Justice Sherwood Lett in 1957.

Dr. Grauer served as an expert to the 1937-39 Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations and was a member of the Gordon Royal Commission on Canada's economic prospects.

MOB SCENE IN LONDON

Women Hysterical As Yuri Departs

LONDON (Reuters) —Yuri Gagarin, the Russian space man who evoked almost hysterical welcomes from the British, left by air for Moscow today after a five-day visit.

Gagarin, a crowd-puller to the last, was beseiged by a fighting screaming mob of 2,000 when he left the Soviet Embassy to drive to the airport. The scene was typical of his receptions since he stepped off a plane last Tuesday on his first visit to Western Europe.

Gagarin said he was returning home with "most warm memories" of Britain.

As his TU-104 airliner took off, the cheers of thousands of people lining the roof of the airport building could be heard even above the roar of the jet engines.

The spaceman in his farewell statement praised the Queen and Prince Philip, Prime Minister Macmillan and "people prominent in public, political and trade union life" in Britain.

Gagarin, who made history April 12 when he became the first human to orbit earth in a space ship, said the Soviet Union wanted achievements of modern science to be used for peaceful purposes and the enjoyment of mankind.

"That is something which cannot be achieved without a stable peace. May the friendship between the Soviet Union and the people of Great Britain develop and grow strong."

During the embassy scene women fought to get near his open limousine. Some women fell to the ground screaming, shrubs and bushes were trampled to the ground and the embassy lawn badly torn up.

Gagarin remained calm and imperturbable, smiling, waving and raising his cap to the fighting crowd.

Shortly before he left the embassy an official accepted a bouquet of flowers for him from Hazel Joseph, a Canadian.

Asked why she sent the bouquet, Miss Joseph, now a London nurse, said:

"I did it really to annoy my boy friend. He says I think more of Yuri than of him. Just the same I hope this does not break up our friendship."

Island To Lose Train?

Passenger Run Being Studied

By AB KENT

The E and N Railway is considering abandoning passenger service on Vancouver Island, an authoritative source said today.

A spokesman for the Canadian Pacific Railway, owner of the historic Victoria-Courtenay line, said he knew "nothing definite."

"There are always a lot of things under study by the company, and this may be one of them," he said.

Any plan to give up passenger service is "not in the near future" at any rate, he said.

It was understood the company has surveyed its passenger trade and found only an average 26 people a day use the service.

This is insufficient even to operate the economical Budd car, a diesel-electric locomotive coach put in service in September 1955 and replaced with a smaller version about a year ago.

ONE TRIP

The line makes one round-trip daily between here and Courtenay, about half way up Vancouver Island, a distance of about 150 miles.

A branch line goes to Port Alberni, on which passenger service was relinquished about four years ago.

First reaction here to the possibilities of the cut was almost one of indifference.

MARCH OF PROGRESS

"Not that many people use it. It's the march of progress . . ." said Victoria Chamber of Commerce president Aubrey Kent.

"But it's a pity such a long-established service should pass out of the picture," he added.

Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island will want to know the opinion of all its member chambers before making any statement, according to Eric Mallett, president, of Victoria.

"They will be contacted regarding their views, and we will be having an executive meeting in Nanaimo shortly," he said.

Disaster Hits Festival

MOSCOW (UPI) — Fashion disaster struck tonight at the Moscow film festival. Liz Taylor and Gina Lollobrigida turned up at a Kremlin reception in the same Christian Dior gown.

Even their hairdoes were the same.

"Oh, how nice to see you," Gina said sweetly to Liz.

The two brunette beauties embraced each other while their eyes flashed fire. From time to time there was an exchange of dagger-like glances.

But no fireworks.

Canada Speaks Out Against U.K. Market

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government has made it clear that it intends to fight any move by the British government to enter the Common Market.

Canada's position was disclosed Friday in a joint communique issued by the two governments following two days of talks between Duncan Sandys, Britain's Commonwealth relations secretary, and four Canadian Cabinet ministers.

The 250-word communique said the Canadian government's assessment of British membership in the customs union of France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg is different from that put forward by Mr. Sandys.

It showed that Canada is frigid to Britain even entering negotiations to join the Common Market.

Mr. Sandys conferred for 10 hours Thursday and Friday with External Affairs Minister Green, Trade Minister Hees, Finance Minister Fleming and Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton. He also met for an hour with Prime Minister Diefenbaker and plans to return to London Monday.

OPPOSITION STRONGER

Canada's unyielding opposition to British entry into the customs union appeared to be even more critical than that of Australia and New Zealand.

Canada's previously stated position on British entry into the Common Market is that trading interests with Britain will be damaged, perhaps seriously, if the U.K. aligns itself with Common Market countries. For Canada this could mean a loss of Commonwealth tariff preferences in the U.K. and possibly even preferences against Canada.

'FAILING TO COMPETE ABROAD'

DURHAM, England (Reuters) — Opposition Labor party leader Hugh Gaitskell said today Britain was apparently "drifting into a major economic crisis."

He told a group of miners that ministers in the cabinet of Prime Minister Macmillan were "going out of their way to stress the gravity of the situation."

"We are failing to compete effectively with foreign producers. They are outselling us abroad and at home. That is the dead end to which 10 years of Tory economic policy have brought us."

Beginning Of the End?

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (AP)—Sir Roy Welensky, prime minister of the Central African Federation, said today Britain's entering the European Common Market "might well mark the beginning of the end of the Commonwealth."

Welensky, speaking at the opening of an agricultural show, said: "I warn that any serious diminution in status of the United Kingdom as a political entity, coupled with any further lessening of ties which exist between Commonwealth countries and the pivot of that organization, represented in Britain, might well be the beginning of the end of the Commonwealth as a group of nations having any substantial meaning.

'Tighten Your Belts'

HAWARDEN, Wales (AP)—Britain's Conservative government today warned Britons, who enjoyed a spree of post-war prosperity, to brace for some belt-tightening.

Chancellor of the Exchequer John Selwyn Lloyd declared in a speech prepared for a political rally:

"I am determined that some of the present trends in our economy should be changed. I shall recommend such action as I think necessary to secure this, however unpopular or unexpected."

Carried Safely By Rubber Ball

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A New York City Negro from the Bronx went over the 162-foot Horseshoe falls in a giant rubber ball today and survived with only a few cuts and scratches.

Nathan Boya, 30, declared cheerfully from his hospital bed: "I always wanted to make this trip and now I have—I felt it was something I had to do."

Boya, who gave his occupation as self-employed and said he is a member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, quipped to hospital staff that he had just "integrated the falls."

The daredevil was taken to hospital here under police guard for examination overnight. A first check, including a chest x-ray, showed only abrasions to his back and both arms.

A police spokesman said Boya will be charged under the Niagara Parks Act which forbids such stunts in the park system.

Chief Edwin Refeld of the parks commission police, who watched Boya's voyage but was powerless to stop him, said the New Yorker told him: "I made it all right and I'm happy.

"I don't care what happens—talk to my attorney."

Boya took his spectacular plunge within view of hundreds of tourists—and the police—at about 10.45 a.m. He opened a hatch in the ball and waved to spectators on Table Rock Plaza after his drop.

1,250-Pound Sphere Dented In Drop

His craft, a 1,250-pound sphere slightly bigger across than Boya's own height of five feet 10 inches, and dented into a half-moon shape and half filled with water when the daredevil emerged after his trip.

Boya, who called the ball a Plunge-o-Sphere, said he started building it in New York last March but refused to say how he brought it here. He covered a steel frame with six-ply rubber, then a coating of sheet metal and a final coating of rubber. He estimated it cost him $5,000.

Boya, the seventh man to go over the falls intentionally and the fourth to survive the stunt, said he got advice weeks ago from the last man to go over and live, Jean Lussier of Niagara Falls, Ont.

Lussier, who used a rubber ball to make the perilous trip in 1928, warned the New Yorker about the danger of being trapped behind the falls like George L. Stathakis, who suffocated after a plunge in 1930 when his barrel was trapped behind the curtain of water.

Boya carried 13 cannisters of oxygen along with breathing apparatus—enough to last him 30 hours. Inside the ball, he took a semi-reclining position. His head and knees were padded with air cushions.

Boya said that when he was in the river he felt a severe jolt which ripped the hatch partially open. He grabbed a rung in the hatch and held on, thinking he had gone over the falls.

Through a slit in the hatch he could see daylight and realized he had not made the plunge but had entered the treacherous upper rapids.

Held Hatch Down With His Hands

He said he held the hatch down by hand when he went over the brink of the falls.

Boya, who wore a black polo shirt and dark trousers for his trip, was picked up from the river below the falls by a launch belonging to the Maid of the Mist Steamships.

Captain Lawrence McGinn who was accompanied on the launch by Niagara parks police corporal Alex Awada, found Boya peering around and waving from the open hatch of his craft. They took him aboard and towed the ball ashore.

Boya said he first began to plan the stunt 10 years ago when he was studying at the University of Geneva in Switzerland.

Chief Rehfeld said he spotted the big ball moving downriver when it was about two miles above the falls. He ran indoors for his binoculars, checked the craft's progress, then jumped into a car and followed the ball's progress from the shoreline.

The chief said the turbulence of the water at the brink of the falls prevented him from seeing Boya go over.

Chief Rehfeld said that when he picked up Boya, the daredevil asked: "Were you the fellow who was following me in the car?"

A year ago last Sunday, young Roger Woodward of Niagara Falls, N.Y., became the first person in history to survive an accidental fall over the cataract.

Roger, then seven years old, was fished out of the water at the base of the falls after he fell from a boat and was swept over.

Crew Rushed To New Fire

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Forestry officials in the vast Prince George forest district have rushed in 47 men to combat what appears to be a major fire 225 miles northwest of Prince George.

More crews are already on the way to the fire, some 100 miles north of Fort St. James. The fire is one of three reported burning in the Rocky Mountain Trench some 150 miles north of Prince Rupert.

CRIME DOES PAY— JUST ASK 'BIG JOE'

NEW YORK (AP)—Joseph McGowan has learned that people do care.

A lot of them came forward Friday to help the 53-year-old father, to befriend him and, perhaps most important of all, to show him understanding.

Things looked a lot darker Thursday for McGowan, who earns $70 a week as a mail clerk. Faced with a $285 tuition bill for his 19-year-old college student son, he held up a savings and loan association. He was caught only moments later.

It was, ironically, at McGowan's arraignment that his life began to brighten.

His wife, Catherine, from whom he has been estranged for two years, appeared to comfort him. Gerald was there too, standing by his father.

An assistant district attorney assured him the prosecution was sympathetic to his case.

A bail bondsman posted $2,500 bail and waived his fee.

His 40 fellow employees at the Blue Bell Clothing Manufacturing Company raised more than $300 to help "Big Joe" take care of his legal needs.

The firm's management assured him his job would be waiting for him, and the Blue Bell board of directors voted to furnish "substantial financial aid" to McGowan.

And the president of Iona College, which Gerald attends said the youth can register for the fall semester and forget about the tuition he owes.
